'DON'T RETURN' PRINCE WARNED

PHNOM PENH (AP) — The Cambodian government warned today that it is prepared to use force if Prince Norodom Sihanouk tries to return to power.

"Our army has the right to turn to arms and actions in all forms" if the deposed chief of state "attempts to use the legal authority which he no longer has," said a communique broadcast by Radio Phnom Penh.

The government radio also announced declaration of a "state of danger" and suspension of all constitutional rights for six months.

Sihanouk is still in Peking and reports said he is conferring with members of the Cambodian embassy. There has been no mention of the ouster in the Peking press.

Ottawa Blocks Denison Sale

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Specific new limits on foreign ownership of producing uranium properties were set by the government Thursday, after the head of Canada's largest uranium mine said he plans to go ahead with sale of controlling interest to a United States-controlled corporation.

The limits announced in the Commons by Energy Minister Greene, set a 33 per cent maximum on total foreign ownership of proven productive capacity, and a 10 per cent maximum on holdings by any one foreign interest.

Stephen B. Roman, chairman of Denison Mines which operates the huge Elliot Lake uranium mine, said today "without additional resources, management definitely has to give consideration to closing the mine."

Denison's potential buyer has been Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd., 67.5 per cent of which is owned by Continental Oil Ltd. of Delaware.

At stake is the 25.5 per cent share of Denison now held by Roman Corp. of which Roman is the founder and president.

KEEPS PROMISE

The policy statement by Greene in the Commons was one promised by Prime Minister Trudeau on March 2 when he first told the House of the government's emergency decision to intercede in the sale.

Greene said the new regulations will be effective retroactive to the prime minister's statement.

They will not, however, force present foreign owners who have already held more than the prescribed interest to sell their "surplus" shares, Greene made clear.

The provision will exempt, primarily, Rio Tinto Corp. of London, which holds a 60 per cent interest in Canada's second-largest uranium property, Rio Algom Ltd.

Again, the new regulations will protect foreign companies now engaged in exploration. They will be given a reasonable length of time to demonstrate a commercially-productive mine before the new rules apply to them as well, Greene said.

PROTECT DISCOVERIES

Foreign ownership of new firms seeking uranium will also not be limited. Greene explained that should such a firm discover a mine, it will be permitted to hold a full 33 per cent interest and will be given time to arrange majority Canadian ownership.

Other aspects of the regulations will require foreign owners with more than 50 per cent interest to make any sale to Canadians. Where individual holdings by foreign firms now is less than 50 per cent, their transfer to other foreign investors is permissible.

A further point made by Greene is that the government may choose to bring in special conditions — "maybe even tougher regulations" — to deal with foreign companies which may in fact be an arm of other governments.

Roman said today he could not comment on his next step until the government's action had been thoroughly studied.

He said "many points" were left open in the statement by Greene but "if possible, I definitely will go through with the deal."

Roman called the government's action "arbitrary and discriminatory" and said he was "most concerned that the policy announced should so obviously be aimed at me and the corporations I control."

"The Canadian uranium industry," he said, "faces a very difficult time for three or four years."

Without additional resources of the type he had negotiated with Hudson's Bay, the company would have to consider closing the mine.

"The government knows that — both the federal and provincial government — but they never helped us," he said.

'No Beer' Draws Royal Sneer

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — Prince Philip told embarrassed civic leaders as he and the Queen left the North Island west coast port of New Plymouth today: "I'll always remember it—it's the city with no beer."

The royal couple spent three hours in New Plymouth during their 10-day tour of North Island.

The Queen and Prince Philip were at a civic luncheon at New Plymouth airport when he asked for a glass of beer.

But caterers, whose liquor stocks included everything except beer, said they could not immediately provide any.

After a short delay, they found one bottle in the building and it was served to Prince Philip.

'BRAIN TRANSPLANT NEXT'

PARIS (Reuters) — Dr. Christiaan Barnard, the South African who pioneered heart transplants, said today he is planning to do transplants of the brain.

In an interview with the newspaper Parisien Libre, Dr. Barnard said: "Heart transplants have become a job for immunologists. My goal now is a brain transplant."

Dr. Barnard is in Paris with his wife to launch the French version of his autobiography.

'Dictatorial' Control Over Hospitals Hit

The president of the B.C. Hospital Association, in an angry telegram to Health Minister Ralph Loffmark this morning, condemned proposed "dictatorial" government control of hospitals.

T. C. Marshall, a Vancouver lawyer, was reacting to an amendment to the Hospital Act introduced in the legislature Wednesday which would give a cabinet-appointed administrator exclusive power to run a hospital deemed to have administrative difficulties if the minister considers it in the public interest."

The amendment would also give the cabinet power to appoint at any time a public administrator to manage the affairs of a hospital society or corporation which either owns, operates, is planning or constructing a hospital.

"Conferring additional dictatorial power on minister to suspend board where he disagrees with their policies is not, repeat, not, the most satisfactory or democratic solution," Marshall's telegram to Loffmark says.

"Would appreciate being advised as soon as possible if bill intended as additional advance notice that henceforth all hospitals in province will be gradually taken over by your government."

Hospital boards in B.C. are made up of provincial government, municipal appointees their societies or corporations.

'STARTLING INNOVATIONS'

In a letter to Loffmark last month Marshall drew a bead on proposed bylaws for the new Coquitlam District Hospital, asking the minister to reconsider their "startling innovations."

In that case, he said, there was obviously no hospital society intended beyond the six members who would be on the hospital's board.

And he shot down the draft bylaw reference to the hos-

SEATTLE ARSON HINTED AS BLAZE KILLS 20

SEATTLE (AP) — An early-morning fire at the Ozark Hotel killed at least 20 persons today and Mayor Wes Uhlman said after meeting with fire and police officials that the blaze appeared to have been "intentionally set."

Firemen searching through smoking rubble said others also may have perished in the blaze.

Uhlman said the indication of arson was based on "fires that began almost simultaneously in the hotel's two main stairways." He also said teams of fire department officials had been making night checks of hotels after "receiving infomation from federal sources .... that there was a developing pattern of fire in downtown hotels."

The mayor ordered an immediate investigation to determine what kinds of material were used "to set the fire."

There were 617 arson fires in Seattle last year, fire department officials said.

During today's fire some hotel occupants jumped from windows and others sat on ledges or hung out windows to escape the smoke and flames.

A newspaper man on the scene said a woman crawling across a ledge toward a fire escape slipped and fell to her death.

DESPITE UNEMPLOYMENT — RASMINSKY

'Inflation Fight Must Continue'

OTTAWA (CP) — Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, says Canada should persist with tough credit and spending restraints, despite difficulties such as rising unemployment and regional recessions.

Inflation remains "the foremost economic problem of the country as a whole," the head of the central bank said in his annual report to the government, published Thursday.

Although there has been an encouraging change in the economic climate after more than a year of stringent restrictions on credit and government spending, Rasminsky added: "Policy will not achieve its objective if it is abandoned at the first sign of success, namely as soon as the growth of the economy shows signs of deceleration. . .

"We have no choice but to continue the effort in spite of all the difficulties involved."

The report, which covers the year 1969 but includes comment on developments early this year, is dated Feb. 28. Its publication Thursday coincided with a report of increased Canadian unemployment in February and indications that United States authorities might be relaxing tight-money restraints on credit.

REBUTS ARGUMENT

Attacking suggestions that advocates of continued austerity do not care about people put out of work, Rasminsky said:

"There is not, as sometimes alleged, one group who care about people and their employment and another group who care only about price stability. This is a false antithesis.

"Everyone wants to achieve increases in output, employment and standards of living that are as great as can be managed."

REFLECTIONS

Differences of opinion are largely reflections of different outlooks about timing, he said,

"Some concentrate their attention on the short-run costs of anti-inflationary policies.

"On the other hand, those who stress as I do the importance of price stability believe that we shall have a better chance of maintaining a high rate of growth of employment in the future if care is taken to preserve the purchasing power of money.

PRICES WILL RISE

Tracing efforts to slow down inflation by restricting the supply of money available for spending, Rasminsky said growth of total spending in Canada has slowed down but prices will continue to rise for a while.

Although industrial countries generally have been experiencing inflation, Canada had special problems.

One is proximity to the United States, the major trading partner, where consumer prices increased more rapidly last year than in Canada.

Another result of living next door to the United States is that Canadians base aims for income and living standards on the U.S. example, even though Canadian productivity is at least 20 per cent lower. "This fact sets a real limit on our current living standards which no amount of wishful thinking can remove."

Another Canadian problem in

Hanoi Envoy In Vientiane

Times News Services

VIENTIANE, Laos—Thailand today joined the war in Laos against advancing North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao forces which have now pressed to within a mile of the government army base at Long Cheng.

Two battalions of Thai troops were airlifted to Long Cheng in Air America transports, to bolster what appears to be a last-ditch stand against the Communist forces.

Informed sources here say it is the first real entry into the Laos conflict of Thai troops, although advisers from Thailand have been operating here.

Col. Thongphanh, Laotian defence ministry spokesman, continued to deny reports that the American-supported supply base at Sam Thong had fallen. However, other reports indicate there are no government troops inside the base.

Thongphanh also reported government forces have been driven from their last two outposts in Sam Neua Province north of the Plain of Jars.

The threat to Long Cheng, base of Gen. Vang Pao's Meo tribal army, was increased when the North Vietnamese overran three hilltop positions.

The development came as Col. Pradith Thiengtham, a Pathet Lao emissary, arrived in Vientiane from Hanoi carrying a peace proposal to Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma.

CALLS FOR TALKS

Pradith will present the peace plan of Prince Souphanouvong, the titular leader of the pro-communist Pathet Lao. Among other things, it calls for a conference of Laotian factions to seek peace and for the end of United States bombing in Laos. Souphanouvong is a half-brother of Souvanna Phouma.

Laotian air force T-28 bombers made 15 strikes one mile off the eastern end of the Long Cheng airfield after reconnaissance detected a North Vietnamese force of undetermined size moving toward the headquarters of Vang Pao's army of 7,000 Meo Tribesmen, which is trained and advised by about a dozen American personnel.

The Laotian military command reported earlier today that at least 20 government troops have been killed and more than 100 wounded in the North Vietnamese advance this week.

Fauteux Named Chief Justice

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux of the Supreme Court of Canada today was named Chief Justice of Canada.

Announcement of the appointment was made in the Commons by Solicitor-General George McIlraith who also said that Mr. Justice Bora Laskin of the Supreme Court of Ontario will fill the vacancy created by the retirement Monday of Chief Justice John Robert Cartwright from the nine-member court.

The new chief justice, whose appointment is effective Monday, was named to the Supreme Court in 1949. He has been second in precedence to Chief Justice Cartwright who was appointed before him on the same day. At 70, Mr. Justice Fauteux is five years younger than the man he succeeds.

Mail Slowdown Hits Canada, U.S.

MONTREAL (CP) — Postal service continues behind schedule in this city in the wake of the first meeting of government mediator H. Carl Goldenberg with post office officials and representatives of postal-truck drivers involved in a work slowdown.

Goldenberg said the meeting was "very informative in a friendly atmosphere" and promised to "make my report and recommendations before March 31, probably next week."

With outside help, the post office Thursday managed to deliver mail to all 33 substations, with 23 receiving double loads to make up for an earlier lack of transportation facilities.

Meanwhile, the U.S. government today halted a spreading mail strike by agreeing to re-open negotiations. Postmen had walked out in 11 states. See also Page 6.

Draft Dodger Has No Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thomas Glenn Jolley, who fled to Canada to avoid the military draft and then renounced his United States citizenship, could become a man without a country.

stripped of his U.S. citizenship and without any other, the 26-year old Atlanta resident was ordered Thursday to leave the U.S. within 90 days.

If the deportation order is upheld—several appeal moves are open to Jolley—and Canadian officials refuse to admit him, Jolley would technically become a man without a country.

In handing down the decision, the board of immigration appeals laid the groundwork for a U.S. Supreme Court ruling that could affect the fate of thousands of young Americans who fled the country because of opposition to the draft and the Vietnam war.

The next step for Jolley's lawyers will be an appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington. Then the case most likely will be carried to the high court.

Jolley, a North Carolina native who married an Atlanta girl, went to Canada March 31, 1967. A week later, he asked his draft board for classification as a conscientious objector—a request denied April 18.

Then May 16, 1967, he went before the U.S. consul at Toronto, declared "I do not wish to break the laws of the United States—these draft laws conflict with my present beliefs," and formally renounced his citizenship.

MOVED TO ATLANTA

Jolley returned shortly after his renunciation statement and has lived in Atlanta since.

The majority of the five-member board held this was a voluntary act. Whether or not the renunciation was based on conscientious scruples, it said, didn't make the deed any less deliberate.

The lone dissenter, Anthony L. Montaquila, said Jolley, by his renunciation, "did not acquire a new nationality but became a 'man without a country'.

"Whatever else may emanate from (Jolley's) conduct in violating the draft laws, criminal proceedings or otherwise, his continued attempts at reclassifications, both before and after he left the United States, his stated reasons at the time of renunciation and his letter to the draft board . . . evince a clear intent that his act was involuntary," Montaquila wrote.

Thus the issue focused on whether Jolley voluntarily renounced his citizenship or whether he did so under conscientious objections so strong they "overbore his free will."

Top Court Orders New Leases

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada ruled today that the federal government must renew two long-term leases held by residents of Jasper national park.

In a 9-to-3 decision, the high court said two leases in the park which the government declined to renew "we properly issued pursuant to the 1913 regulations and, consequently, no question arises as to the authority to provide for successive renewals."

The appeal involved leases held by Wilfred Alan Walker and M. E. Clark and Son Ltd. in Jasper and was a test case between the government and about 1,400 leaseholders in Alberta's three national parks.

The government had proposed to eliminate gradually the "perpetual leases" in favor of much shorter ones. The government had argued that the cabinet minister signing the leases did not have the authority "to issue leases renewable at the option of the lessee, for successive terms of 42 years, in perpetuity."

West Berlin Backs Move

BERLIN (CP) — Klaus Schuetz, mayor of Communist-surrounded West Berlin, says he is ready to support full recognition for East Germany provided the Communists are prepared to make life easier for his 2,000,000 people.

The mayor, wounded in the Second World War, is a close friend of West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, the former mayor, and his emphasis on full de jure recognition may be an indication of how far the federal leader may go to reach a settlement after two tension-ridden decades of bitterness that has hit this city and threatened peace for the Western world.

. . . INFLATION

dealing with inflation is regional disparity—the fact that austerity bears harder on economically-weaker Atlantic Canada than elsewhere, or can be exaggerated for regions dependent on one or two products, such as Saskatchewan with wheat and potash, when world markets slump.

SHOWS HANDICAP

Further, the federal system of government makes it more difficult for one authority to manage the economy when demands increase on the provinces and municipalities for health, education, roads and other services.

Rasminsky listed five main reasons why he believes inflation must be curbed by continued austerity measures:

- The risk of severe recession and disruption "from which all would suffer."
- The unequal impact of inflation, which hits the poor, the retired and workers in weak bargaining positions hardest.
- The danger of slowdown in real economic growth as inflation diverts effort away from constructive activity towards trying to out-guess the course of the economy.
- Loss of confidence in money values and the reluctance of those with capital to commit funds to growth-stimulating investments.
- Damage to essential trade if the competitive strength of Canadian products is wiped out by rising prices.

GAGNON
. . . starts April 1

Information Canada Chief Named

OTTAWA (CP) — Montreal editor Jean-Louis Gagnon will become first director of Information Canada April 1, it was announced in the Commons today.

The announcement was made by Robert Stanbury, minister without portfolio responsible to Parliament for the new central information body.

Gagnon, 57, now is co-chairman of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism. He succeeded Andre Laurendeau as co-chairman after serving as a member on the 10-man commission.

STRONG FEDERALIST

Former editor of the Montreal newspaper La Presse, Gagnon has been known as a strong federalist. He has said "it is impossible for 5,000,000 French-Canadians to create a civilization and a culture," and that he "would prefer to see French Canada disappear rather than see it survive in a mediocre ghetto."

Educated at Montreal's Brebeuf College and the University of Ottawa, Gagnon served during the Second World War as director of the West African Broadcasting Unit.

Gagnon's salary for his new post was not specified. However, it is in the range paid to deputy ministers of government departments, $30,000 to $40,000 a year.

Oil Carriers Need Checks, Richter Says

Mines and Petroleum Resources Minister Frank Richter said today he has made it clear that regulations under the Canada Shipping Act need to be tightened up and the seaworthiness of ships plying coastal waters needs to be checked.

He was commenting on reports that huge oil tankers will be sailing the Strait of Juan de Fuca to the Atlantic Oil refinery in Bellingham.

We have had the odd case of small ships having difficulty along the West Coast, Richter said, and unless care is taken there could be a repetition of the Torrey Canyon and Arrow incidents in the Atlantic. The two oil tankers mentioned foundered on rocks spilling oil into coastal waters.

. . . HOSPITALS

pital board having "full control of the revenue and expenditure of the hospital."

"This is of course palpable nonsense . . . no board has had full control of its revenue and expenditure since the execution of Hospital Insurance.

"It has always been a form of joint control and surely it is time to say so rather than carrying forward this myth in what appears to be an attempt to bolster an otherwise indefensible form of organization.

CONTRADICTION

Furthermore, such a provision is in direct contradiction to the basic concept of provincial government control contemplated by the bylaws."

At another point in the letter he says;

"What we are concerned about is the fact that you have seen fit to propose and draft a constitution in which all control for practical purposes is vested in your department . . ."

"In creating a board which in practical terms owes its allegiance entirely to your department, you may have very well removed any moral or legal responsibility of trustees for administering the affairs of the hospital . . .

"Thus we have one more step down the rocky road towards complete provincial government domination of the hospital system . . .

"If this is the 'new look' in hospital administration, then those people who presently make up the hospital community, including some 500 or more trustees, are entitled to know."

When the act amendments were introduced Wednesday, Loffmark declined comment when asked if the bill was aimed at preventing Victoria's plans to extend Belleville Street through land proposed for St. Joseph's Hospital expansion.

Earlier in the session the health minister had criticized the board of directors of the Royal Columbian Hospital in New Westminster as "empire builders" demanding too much from the provincial government.

B.C. BRIEFS

5 Missing Aboard Lost Plane

COMOX, B.C. (UPI) — A massive air-sea rescue was launched today for a private aircraft missing with five persons aboard on a flight from Prince George to Seattle.

Pilot of the twin-engine Beechcraft was identified as Arthur Wiebe of Prince George. Identifications of his four passengers, including two Americans, were not released.

Capt. Milt Agate, search co-ordinator at the Canadian Forces Base here, said the five flew from Prince George to Terrace, where they picked up the coastal air route for the 600-mile flight to Seattle.

Capt. Agate said the Beechcraft left Terrace shortly before 7 p.m. Thursday and two hours later Wiebe reported their progress over Ethelda Island.

At that time, Capt. Agate said, Wiebe estimated they would pass over Malcolm Island in an hour's time. They failed to report to the Malcolm Island station.

Building Studied

NANAIMO (CP) — Nanaimo District Savings Credit Union is studying a proposal to build a 16-storey, hotel-type building for elderly people. Rod Glen, chairman of the board of directors of the credit union, said the $3,500,000 building would house 450 single and 50 married couples on a low-rental basis.

Raise Accepted

PENTICTON (CP) — City administrator Bill Cooper announced Thursday that Penticton firefighters have approved a new two-year contract which provides for a 12.4 per cent wage increase. First-class firefighters will receive a boost to $645 a month from $596 this year and an additional $55 a month in 1971.

NDP Fears Start Of 'Water Steal'

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett expressed the fear that "the great water steal" is already on but Premier Bennett assured the legislature Thursday "not one drop of water" will ever be sold to the United States from British Columbia.

Bennett rose after Barrett warned that talks between Ottawa and the U.S. on joint energy resources are the "first step" along the route to a continental water resource plan.

NOT FOR SALE

"This water is not for sale for money, gems, promises, security or anything else," the premier shouted.

All history shows that countries that lose their water supply are doomed, he said.

Barrett said the North American Water and Power Alliance plan for continental water was a forerunner of a move for a continental energy board and called for federal Liberal MPs to speak out against water sales to the U.S.

He said he is afraid "the great water steal" is already on.

Robert Strachan (NDP—Cowichan-Malahat) said later during debate on estimates of the water resources branch that the government should stop labelling the New Democrats anti-American for fighting a policy of Canadian control of Canadian resources.

He said the only way that Canada will be able to stand up to U.S. pressure to sell water is to be in a position to survive tactics such as limitation on oil or lumber exports from Canada to the U.S.

Bennett said outside the house that he would "set B.C. afire" if Ottawa tries to sell water to the U.S.

Ottawa Move On Secession 'Not Clear'

OTTAWA (CP) — Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand said Thursday it is unclear what action the federal government would take in the event of secession by Quebec.

But a federally-sponsored referendum to determine the wishes of the majority of Quebecers would be a distinct possibility, Mr. Marchand told reporters outside the Commons.

He told former prime minister John Diefenbaker he had been "completely wrong" when he accused Mr. Marchand earlier in the Commons of having made statements suggesting the government would use force to keep Quebec part of Canada.

"I wasn't wrong, I was not the one," said the former Conservative leader, tapping Mr. Marchand on the chest.

Mr. Diefenbaker had just finished telling reporters that Mr. Marchand was quoted in the Montreal Gazette as saying the government could use force over any minority provincial government.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

How is it that you can see your breath as a windsock of fog in the air on a cold morning in March anywhere in the world? This is how:

The air from your lungs exhales into a fogstream because it starts in the lungs where the air is highly humidified and warmed up. As you breathe in the cold morning air it flows by the folds of the mucous membranes inside your nasal passages and into the lungs. There it is humidified and warmed.

When you breathe out a lungful it comes into abrupt contact with the air outside. The water vapor which is present and contained in your expired breath tends to freeze—even in seemingly mild weather—into very minute but visible specks of ice. Those specks of ice make up the body of the fog you see blowing out of your mouth and nostrils.

France, Ottawa Agree On Cultural Charter

OTTAWA (CP) — A charter for an agency to promote educational and technological co-operation among francophone states has been agreed upon at a conference in Niamey, Niger, the government announced today.

The whole thing is settled and in the bag," an official spokesman said.

He told reporters Canada is "extremely happy" with provisions in the draft covering participation by Quebec and other provinces in the work of the agency.

Francophone states are states where French is spoken by a majority or a significant segment of the population. The new agency is expected to embrace more than 20 countries, most of them in Europe and Africa.

The key article in the charter provides that any government can be admitted to the institutions and activities of the agency with the approval of the member-state under which it exercises its authority, and according to the "modalities" agreed to between the two.

The government official said the charter accords in all points with the federal position on Ottawa's jurisdiction in international affairs.

The provinces would have no individual voting or signatory power in the agency, and no right of direct membership.

Quebec and the other provinces represented at Niamey—Ontario, Manitoba and New Brunswick—were expected to sign the document giving birth to the new agency, but as members of the Canadian delegation.

The agreement means that the provinces can participate in international agencies only with federal approval, said the government official.

France originally proposed that all governments should have full right of membership in the organization. This would have meant admittance of Quebec as a member equal in standing with Ottawa and any other state.

When Ottawa refused categorically to accept this arrangement, France proposed that Quebec have direct membership in the agency with the approval of the senior government.

Ottawa also rejected this proposal. Following a cabinet meeting Thursday, Ottawa cabled a "take-it-or-leave-it" counter proposal to Niamey Thursday night.

This was presented to the conference by the Canadian delegation this morning, and approved by the conference's judicial committee. Later in the day it was approved by the whole francophone conference.

The Canadian delegation at Niamey is led by Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier.

Brandt Defends Talks With East

BONN (Reuters) — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt defended today his summit meeting with East German Premier Willi Stoph and said a gradual easing of the situation between East and West Germany now seems more possible.

Speaking before the Bundestag, Brandt said his trip Thursday to Erfurt, East Germany, was right, necessary and useful.

In a brief stop in West Germany on his way home from the summit, Brandt told reporters he is looking forward to meeting Stoph again May 21 in Kassel, West Germany.

Brandt later told the Bundestag—in which he faces stiff criticism from the Christian Democrat opposition—that his visit to Erfurt was a great human experience in that it had allowed him to meet people living in East Germany.

Brandt spent 16 hours on East German soil, including a visit to the notorious Nazi concentration camp of Buchenwald.

The chancellor received a tumultuous welcome from East Germans when he arrived in Erfurt, being greeted by cheers and demands that he appear at the window of his hotel.

VISIT CRITICIZED

Franz Josef Strauss, former West German finance minister, said on West German radio that Brandt has shown "a dangerous readiness for agreements which sooner or later—if not at once—will lead to the recognition of East Germany under international law.

The opposition party will follow Brandt's report today with their own declaration, which is expected to be sharply critical of government policy.

But criticism or not, March 19, 1970, will be a day to remember for Brandt, the first West German chancellor to step on East German soil.

Enthusiastic crowds pushed their way through police cordons to cheer him when he arrived in Erfurt Thursday morning.

But for the rest of the day, well-drilled choruses demanded recognition for East Germany and an end to neo-Nazisms in West Germany.

PATTERNED EXPECTED

The pattern of the talks between the two leaders was perhaps foreseeable. A demand for international recognition from Stoph was countered firmly by Brandt who said his main objective is to launch negotiations with the aim of concluding treaties with East Germany binding in international law as between equal partners.

Hydro to Oust Seven Families

Seven home owners on or near Munn Road in Saanich are opposed to B.C. Hydro and Power Authority taking over their properties for a proposed overhead transmission line.

Pat Kodyre, 1819 Munn Road, spokesman for the group, said B.C. Hydro should install the line underground rather than force seven families out of their homes.

"We don't want to move," he said. "It will mean hardships for many of them as they will never get the market value for their homes."

ENLARGE ACCESS

The line will run from Jordan River through an existing right-of-way which has to be enlarged by about 400 feet to provide room for the new installations.

It will run to a proposed substation near Pike Lake.

Kodyre said the transmission line should be laid underground when it approaches residential areas.

"They do so in Ontario and in England," he said.

Kodyre felt the whole question of overhead transmission lines in or near residential areas should be of concern to all residents in Greater Victoria.

"You must realize that B.C. Hydro is out to make a profit and it isn't concerned at the disruption it does cause to lives of people," he said.

He said past dealings with B.C. Hydro show that people never get the market value for their homes and property. The price was based on its assessed value.

"For example, B.C. Hydro acquired land at $300 an acre from a man living in a district," he said. "This same person had paid $500 an acre for the land. He has 11 children."

He said Hydro had indicated it would move some of the homes on Munn Road to new sites.

"But the question is can these people afford to buy the sites at today's high interest rates?" he said. "These are only a few of the problems. At least 13 children will have to change schools. There are pensioners who don't want to move."

A Hydro official said it would be too costly to lay the line underground.

On the suggestion the line be installed to the north of the existing right-of-way over some vacant lots, he said if this was done it would involve other homes in another district.

"Again it would involve a matter of costs as these homes are more highly priced," he said. "It would also mean extra engineering costs."

The Conflict Widens

UNTANGLING ALL THE strings attached to South East Asian politics is impossible in the wake of recent events. Tiny Cambodia underwent a bloodless right-wing coup in Phnompenh this week, while the country at large remains an unlikely host to Chinese coolies and troops, Pathet Lao insurgents, North Vietnamese troops and United States advisors and Central Intelligence operatives. The country's former leader, Prince Norodum Sihanouk, who was deposed once before in 1963, continues on a diplomatic mission that has taken him from Moscow to Peking even though the government he represents is no more.

It all sounds like an improbable plot for a spy thriller but the consequences will have heavy repercussions in many world capitals. The United States has already recognized Cambodia's new regime but the Soviets and the Chinese have made it clear that they still consider Prince Sihanouk chief of state in Cambodia. This impasse will do nothing for peace in the region. Thailand's military move to support Laos against the Communists adds another important factor to the situation.

Cambodian troops are reported to be moving against North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao positions, and with Prince Sihanouk's neutralist regime out of the way, the Cambodian generals may ask for American air support, as well as allowing United States and South Vietnamese troops to pursue Viet Cong forces into Cambodia. Such action could raise a storm in the United States. Congress has tied United States military hands so that no ground forces can be committed to either Laos or Cambodia without its approval.

If the Laotian experience teaches anything it is that Cambodian forces, even with United States air support, will not be able to contain a Communist offensive. What the Communists will do, given the present situation, is unfathomable. But one thing is plain: if the Communists gain the upper hand in Laos and Cambodia they may be able to force coalition governments in both countries, thereby strengthening their hand for the eventual negotiation of a coalition government in South Vietnam.

This slight twist to the domino theory would probably result in eventual Communist victories in Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam. At present Hanoi holds the best hand in a game where everybody appears to cheat. The ultimate losers appear to be the Laotians and Cambodians who didn't want to play in the first place.

What Kind of an Energy Policy?

WITH THE ANNOUNCEMENT of United States import restrictions on Canadian oil there has been much comment as to whether the cutbacks are a U.S. tactic in a larger strategy for a continental energy policy. Energy, Mines and Resources Minister J. J. Greene has emphatically denied that the United States is using short-term pressures to win an advantage in a long-term deal for all forms of energy. At the same time Mr. Greene says, "Apparently the President believes that by the end of the year a more permanent arrangement can be achieved."

Few Canadians are naive enough to believe that the United States would not dangle a larger share of the U.S. oil market as a reward for agreeing to a continental energy policy. When Canadians have a similar advantage—as in the case of buying U.S. fighter aircraft if we can manufacture them in Canada—we do not hesitate to use it.

The National Energy Board's forecast of supply and demand to 1990 claims that Canadian oil exports to the U.S. market could reach four million barrels a day by 1990. As Mr. Greene sees it this would be a good thing: "An open market for Canadian oil would be good for Canada."

But the U.S. Assistant Secretary for Economic Affairs, Mr. Paul Trezise, says the current level of imports threatens the national security of both Canada and the United States by leaving no reserve capacity in the Alberta system. If Alberta has no reserve capacity at the present level of oil exports, it is only logical to study our future needs and re-examine energy forecasts before we commit ourselves to any kind of treaty that would impose an increased drain. Security of supplies for eastern Canada should have priority over foreign requirements.

Speaking in Oregon, Assistant Secretary of the Interior Hollis Dole recently said, "First our requirements for raw materials and energy in this country will mount rapidly over the next three decades . . . Clearly we must continue to seek—on mutually favorable terms—access to foreign sources of minerals and fuels that are not available from domestic deposits at costs that we can afford."

Mr. Dole added that the richer United States domestic deposits have been skimmed off, and the country's environment has so deteriorated that the rising costs of preserving it must be added to the costs of resource exploration. Perhaps some Canadian politician will be repeating these haunting phrases to a domestic audience in 50 years—if we decide to sell everything today with little thought for tomorrow.

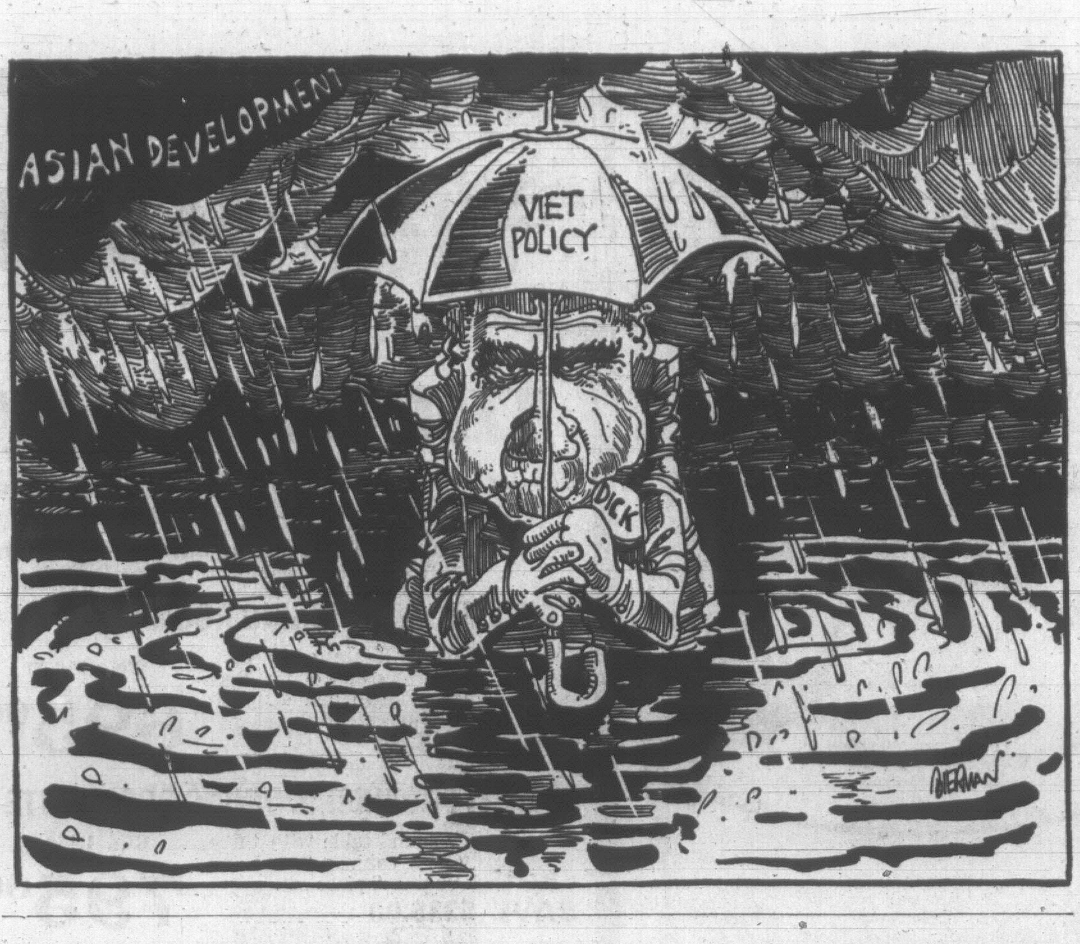
De-Escalating Mid-East Arms Race

NEWS THAT THE UNITED States will not sell any additional warplanes to Israel apparently confirms hints of a tacit agreement between the Soviet Union and the United States to cool the Middle East conflict by refusing the combatants new arms. However, the Nixon administration has left the door open by saying sales will be reconsidered if the balance of Middle Eastern power changes.

While the United States announcement will do nothing to defang the Middle East confrontation, it serves notice on both Israel and the Arabs that repeated clashes will result in the attrition of irreplaceable equipment. In an atmosphere of mutual suspicion it is conceivable but not probable that both sides will try to conserve their weapon stocks in case of a major confrontation. Since Israel's only apparent source of war planes is the United States, any Soviet-U.S. arms embargo in the Middle East will be harder on Israel. With the sale of 120 jet fighter-bombers to Libya, France became another, if unreliable source of arms for the Arabs.

Even without foreign arms the Middle East has an ominous potential for arms escalation. Egypt is working on an intermediate rocket that would put Tel Aviv within easy missile range. And both Arabs and Israelis may be concentrating on atomic research. It is significant that Israel has not signed the nuclear non-proliferation treaty. While Egypt is a signatory to the treaty President Nasser made it clear last year that his government would not be bound by the treaty if Israel developed a bomb. "We have signed it. But if they begin, there will be a race. If they tried to build nuclear weapons, we would try to have our own."

If the Soviet Union and the United States can agree to de-escalate the Middle East arms race, there is little reason why they cannot further defuse the present situation by bringing the two sides together for talks. There will be no lasting peace until this is accomplished and only the superpowers have the influence to bring it about.



Letters

And Even Think . . .

In Bruce Hutchison's March 14, article "Trudeau at the Half Term," he touched upon one of today's most prevailing problems namely: "Little people are learning to think!"

Seemingly, he suggests that if politicians can read, we should end up with a government similar to that of the United States. That may be so, but just take a closer look and tell us which system is best for the majority of citizens in both Canada and U.S.A.?

He then goes on to state that our Prime Minister is using cold pragmatism in a non-ideological move leftwards. Cold, or warm, pragmatism is a matter-of-fact way of dealing with any and all problems and that is exactly what Liberalism stands for, is it not? Liberal reforms?

Many people do seem to resent Mr. Trudeau's endeavors towards individual rights for all Canadians, but I appreciate the liberal and democratic practice of being allowed and encouraged by our leaders to talk, read, write and even THINK.

Unfortunately, I must agree with Mr. Hutchison's "remote" observation: it does seem more difficult to grasp political directions as time moves along. Also, it will take some real effort to make good Canadians out of many egoistic and power-hungry politicians and many ordinary citizens.—Knud V. Larsen, 426 Luxton Ave.

Invading Municipal Fields

Recently, in West Vancouver and in Nanaimo, school bylaws were defeated. This is understandable. It is becoming increasingly difficult for people to pay the present high municipal taxes. Municipalities are desperately in need of new revenue, and thus it is very surprising to find no comment made by any councils about the proposed invasion of the municipal tax field by the federal government in the white paper.

This invasion, disguised as a capital gains tax on real estate (even including one's own dwelling), will be an actual real tax on anyone owning real estate of any kind. If, as Mr. Benson says, the home owner in practice won't actually pay any tax, why is the tax proposed in the white paper?

The fact that it is a federal tax won't mean very much to the owner of real estate. To him, it will be and it is a further tax on anyone owning real estate. It is a tax inseparable from ownership of real estate, and thus has the same effect on him as municipal taxation. If it costs the owner more in taxes to own real estate, does it not tend to limit or inhibit further necessary increases in municipal taxation?

It all comes down to what it costs Joe Doakes to own his own house or other real estate, doesn't it? I won't go into the effect on rents, but it doesn't take too much imagination to understand that apartment owners, for instance, have only one source of revenue to pay additional expenses (taxation).—M. P. Paine, 3620 Quadra.

FROM OTTAWA

By MAURICE WESTERN

The NDP Is Odd Man Out

THE NDP is odd man out in the budget debate in the sense that it does not merely accuse the government of botching the job but also — and unlike the Conservatives — disagrees with Mr. Benson about the nature of the job that needs to be done. To some extent the difference is obscured by the fact that the NDP sub-amendment (voted down on Tuesday evening) would have carried very much farther a Conservative condemnation of the government's failure to provide relief to persons on low income or supplements to those in receipt of old age pensions. specifically, it held that there should be complete tax exemption for single persons earning less than $2,000 and married persons earning less than $4,000 a year.

Western

But the divergence is sharp, Marcel Lambert's amendment was prudently vague. In the course of his speech, however, he indicated that he had in mind transfers of $150 million to $175 million. It is not clear how the Conservatives would finance this but it is obviously small potatoes in comparison with the NDP proposition. In Mr. Benson's White Paper the first year cost of much smaller exemptions — $1,400 and $2,800 — is given as $1 billion. The loss of revenue from the suggested NDP exemptions would be very much higher.

The reason for the divergence is plain. Mr. Lambert recognizes inflation (now coupled with growing unemployment) as a major problem and criticizes the government for contributing to it by heavy expenditures. The NDP attitude is clear from the following remarks of Max Saltsman, the party's financial critic:

Question of Adapting

"In my view the real problem is not inflation; it is the government's refusal to adapt to inflation. This is the crux of the entire problem. Today people are more concerned about unemployment, about their future prospects and about a recession into which they feel we are in danger of sliding, than they are about the rise in prices. A few months ago I would not have said that because an hysteria had been created in our country about inflation. One just could not talk about it. Everyone was concerned about prices, Now they are beginning to see what happens when the government brings in the kind of Draconian measures it has."

The springboard for Mr. Saltsman's criticism is the economic wastage involved in unemployment. It recalls an earlier criticism employed by Mr. Pearson when he was in opposition to the Diefenbaker government and, perhaps significantly, Mr. Saltsman draws on economic analysis applicable to that period. The difficulty is that conditions are not alike for prices were very stable at that time; certainly there was nothing like the rampant inflation we have recently experienced. We did, however, in that recession period have a floating exchange rate which is part of the NDP prescription for our present ills.

Full Steam Ahead

Mr. Saltsman's policy, in effect, is full steam ahead. This would doubtless suit the powerful unions who have been remarkably successful in adapting to inflation. The NDP has no lack of proposals for spending money on projects worthy in themselves (such as housing, urban improvements and anti-pollution measures) and desirable, according to the party's analysis, because they would reduce unemployment. The money, says Mr. Saltsman, would come from a "cutback of waste" but it is apparent that he is not using the term "waste" in a budgetary sense. In fact the "waste" of which he is speaking would be eliminated only if the NDP program did succeed in overcoming unemployment.

This is the rub because, with the upward pressure of prices, we could lose our foreign markets, as the wheat market has been largely lost. In this case, unemployment would be much worse than at present.

Mr. Saltsman minimizes this threat, citing products like copper, nickel and oil for which foreign demand is high. (He admits that there is a problem with heavy machinery and it is interesting, especially in the light of the farm tractor story, that the NDP would fall back on the old policy of protection.)

Still there have been signs recently that imports have been rapidly closing what was a sizable gap with exports. The question is: How would a situation already worrisome to the government be affected by the imposition of NDP policies illustrated by Mr. Saltsman's grandiose sub-amendment? It is a common NDP theme that we import most of our inflation from the United States which at present, in common with Canada, is following policies of monetary and fiscal restraint. If we cannot subtract from such inflation, it is obvious that we can add to it and this, apparently is what the NDP would do with characteristic abandon.

The budget debate has disclosed one oddity. In their immediate response to the Benson speech, the Conservatives expressed alarm about the possible consequences of consumer credit controls, especially on the hard goods industries of Ontario and Quebec. Later Mr. Lambert appeared to be debating with himself, worrying at one moment about the effects on the automobile industry and in the next, after somewhat more careful examination, wondering if the whole operation would not be "an exercise in futility."

Showed Nerve

In this respect Mr. Saltsman showed stronger nerve. The budget may be "callous," "indifferent," "heartless," "stupid" "Draconian" and in other ways terrifying but not because of the proposed controls. "Frankly I do not think they will work, and I do not know why the minister made these proposals. The evidence is that, if it looks as though they are going to work, the merchants will find ways around them and make sure they do not work."

This may well be correct; it will not be surprising if it turns out to be the only sound point in the NDP analysis. Fortified by their lack of confidence in merchants, Mr. Saltsman and his colleagues have in this respect been more successful than the Conservatives in resisting the impulse to panic.

FROM WASHINGTON

By JAMES RESTON

Failure as Violence Breeds Violence

IT IS HARD to generalize about anything these days, but one thing seems fairly clear: The use of physical violence to achieve political and social goals is not working, but is provoking counterviolence and fear, which are the enemies of political and social progress. Even this generalization is not wholly true. There are exceptions. The Soviet Union has achieved control of Czechoslovakia for the time being by the use and threat of military force. Israel has saved its life by fighting for it. The American Negro has made more gains by rebelling against inequality than by submitting to it. But always there is a line, particularly in democratic societies, beyond which force defeats its own ends.

Reston

This is true for nations, for races, for industries and labor unions, for universities and militant student organizations. Force and fear may help them in the beginning, but unless they know when to draw up, they are in trouble.

The United States went beyond the line with its military force in Vietnam and is now trying, under the most difficult circumstances, to withdraw. The Arab nations have tried to destroy Israel on the battlefield and have provoked a counterforce beyond their control, and maybe even beyond Israel's control. The Negro militants in America have not only insisted on their rights, but resorted to violence against their enemies and the legal structure of the nation, and are now confronted by the white counter-revolution.

Dominion of Fear

It would be hard to overestimate the dominion of fear produced by all this verbal and physical violence in the world today. The rash of bombings in the great central cities on America in recent days illustrates the point. They dramatize the fragility of modern communities, which run on electricity and delicate machines. Fifty knowledgeable rebels down the right manholes can paralyse New York. Once the line is crossed from burning the slums to guerrilla warfare against the urban community at large — or even to terror bombings — the whole process of compromise and reason is overwhelmed by fear.

We are not quite there yet. There is no clear pattern to the bombings of the last few days all over the United States. They have no sure purpose and no sharp aim at the electric heart of the urban communities. They are mindless and capricious, but this still sends a shudder of fear and anger through the nation. Everybody is vulnerable. The elements of accident and fear are in control and the elements of reason and compassion are consequently overwhelmed.

In a curious way, the Nixon administration has understood this problem. It knows that there must be law and order if it is to get legislation to relieve the anguish of the poor. But it has not made up its mind whether to explain and remove the Negro grievances, or whether to exploit the backlash against the Negro violence and grievances for its own political advantage. The evidence so far is that it is exploiting the grievances.

Old Problem

President Nixon is up against a very old problem of government. As George Bernard Shaw said over a generation ago, "Without law and order, convention and etiquette, there can be no civilization: Yet when these are established, there must be privilege for sedition, blasphemy, heresy, eccentricity, innovation, variety and change: or civilization will crash again by failing to adapt itself to scientific discovery and mental growth. Governments have to persecute and tolerate simultaneously: They have to determine continually what and when to persecute and what and when to tolerate."

This is the devilish question President Nixon is up against now, and he is clearly confused about when to persecute and when to tolerate. He is being blamed by the left for persecuting and by the right for tolerating, but probably the most valid charge against him is that he is not explaining. His compelling argument is that, in the interests of both the right and the left, we must stop the violence. Law and order is not an argument of a party or an ideology; it is the first requirement of a civilized society.

On this point, the president is undoubtedly correct. The first order of business is to stop the violence, the bombings, the killings, for they are not working either in Vietnam or at home, and they are not working, even in the interests of the people who believe in the use and threat of force.

London:

Our Dream Shattered Too by America's Disease

By DAVID LEWIS STEIN
Toronto Daily Star

They came to warn us about America, two girls ringing bells.

America is bad. Ding-dong. America is crushing people. Ding-dong. The jails are full. Ding-dong. The Chicago conspiracy trial was a phony; it was a legal lynching; it was an abomination. Ding-dong.

The repression is here; the repression is real. Ding-dong. Ding-dong. Are we ready for this? Ding-dong.

No, we are not ready. We are too close to America. We grew up with America. We watch it every night on our television sets. We are bound to America with promises of love and ties of money.

It is hard now to accept that the American way of life may not, after all, be the shiny package deal we bought so eagerly off the supermarket shelf.

•

Nancy Rubin and Tasha Bird came to Toronto to talk about the conspiracy trial and help raise money for the defence. Nancy's husband, Jerry Rubin, and Tasha's father, Dave Dellinger, were two of the five men convicted last month for crossing state lines to foment a riot in Chicago during the Democratic convention of 1968. Their trial was the most publicized political trial in American history.

The two girls were really sounding an alarm to us that something terrible is going on in America and we had better alert ourselves to it. And the Toronto audience listened and applauded and sometimes even cheered but I do not think we understood fully. We did not want to. Understanding would scrape raw too many of our own nerve ends.

•

Consider for a moment, though, some of the things that have happened in Washington in the last few months.

The Senate has passed a drug law with a no-knock clause. This will allow police to enter anyone's home at any time without giving warning at all.

The House of Representatives has passed a defence production bill which will allow the government to investigate the private life of any citizen even remotely connected with any factory or institution, like a university, that is in any way associated with defence production. It doesn't matter whether what is being produced there is of any strategic value or not. The secretary of defence will have the power to bar anyone from working at these factories or institutions.

The government has presented a 349-page bill which is supposed to reform the courts of Washington, but which has become notorious as the "district crime bill."

Attornies for the American Civil Liberties Union believe that under this law, a man could be picked up by the police and fingerprinted and subjected to other physical tests like voice prints even though the police have no evidence with which to charge him.

If they wanted to go looking for evidence, the police could tap his phone, and without a warrant, they could come bursting into his home at any hour of the day or night.

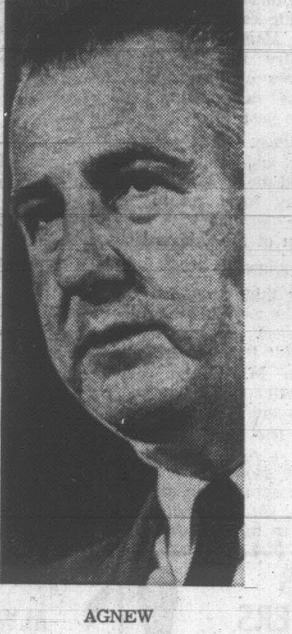
And if they finally got around to charging him with something and made it a "dangerous crime" and the judge decided that his release would "jeopardize the safety of another person," he could be held without bail in "preventive dentention" for 60 days.

•

This law would apply only to the District of Columbia but the District of Columbia is President Nixon's own front lawn. One of his campaign promises was to clean up crime in Washington.

The "district crime bill" is apparently how he thinks the job should be done. And when the lawmakers in the state houses get a good look at Mr. Nixon's model cities program, they will likely enact their own versions of it.

None of these proposals has become law yet, of course. They still have to be passed by both houses of Congress.



AGNEW

But no strenuous opposition to them has been raised. The no-knock drug bill passed the Senate without a single dissenting vote. And there has been no real discussion of these laws in the press. Regular watchers of the TV news would hardly know that these strange and dangerous bills are even being considered. An eerie quiet has desended on American political life. The spirit of Spiro T. Agnew is abroad in the land.

Listen to Mr. Agnew holding forth on the Chicago trial: "Courts are becoming carnivals. Laws are flouted, criminals commit their despicable acts against society in the name of political activity."

•

Mr. Agnew, in his blunt way, has spelled it out for us. Criminals and political activists, one can mention them in the same breath. And look at all those shiny new laws Mr. Agnew and his colleagues have put together to deal with criminals.

Who can believe that Mr. Agnew and his colleagues will be able to resist the temptation to turn those laws against political activists whose politics they don't happen to like?

I think it is difficult for many Canadians to believe it. They point to the conduct of the conspiracy defendants. They were boisterous and rude in court and they called the judge a lot of dirty names, didn't they? Doesn't that prove something? Doesn't it show some kind of guilt?

The conduct of the defendants may have been offensive to many people. They were playing to their followers and they may have made a tactical error. They may have alienated too many of the liberal white middle class who should be their natural allies.

•

But the conduct of the prosecution — most prosecution witnesses were police spies with suspiciously long memories — and the pettiness and viciousness of Judge Julius Hoffman should offend many more people.

It's an open question who succeeded in showing more contempt for American justice, the defendants or the state.

Tasha and Nancy came up here for a benefit performance of the play Chicago 70, which is about the trial. It was produced by Canadians and it is a nice entertainment, lots of singing and rock music.

It looks as if it owes more to Hair than to any understanding of the oppressiveness and sheer terror one felt in Judge Hoffman's courtroom in Chicago. The play got a standing ovation from the audience.

And in the lobby, the audience was contributing to the conspiracy defunce fund. One wondered what these well-dressed, good-looking people who are in no real danger of organized violence really thought they were giving money to. Did they see it a cause, something like civil rights or the Indians, the new Biafra?

America has to solve a lot of problems, liberals say — its cities, its black people, its war in Viet Nam — but once these are straightened out, America will return to being the America we always knew and loved.

And the message the two girls brought here is that it is already too late. America has changed too much. The repression is just beginning and it has already gone too far.

•

If we follow what they say, we are going to have to change completely the way we think about America. And that means changing completely the way we think about ourselves.

I don't think we are ready for that. The two girls were ringing alarm bells — Ding-dong, a dream is ending! Ding-dong, your house is on fire!—but we were not ready to hear it. Not yet, anyways.

Adult Myths Block Dialogue With the Young

By JOHN MUNRO

(From a speech recently delivered by the federal minister of health and welfare to a national conference on mental health.)

One of the major problems of the medical profession in dealing with the mental health problem of our young people is lack of contact with them.

The age group of roughly sixteen to twenty-five has the lowest contact of any with the medical profession. They also have the lowest utilization rate in terms of medical services of all kinds.

One of the priorities, then, has to be the setting up of contact points with this particular age group. One place where contact has been made is the Cool-Aid project in Vancouver.

Boosts Cool-Aid

Medical facilities are made available in an atmosphere which is not threatening to the youth. Last year some 16,000 visits were made to the medical facilities in this one project alone.

Organizations like Cool-Aid, Tell It Like It Is, the Mayor's Committee on Youth are developing techniques and approaches to increase communication with youth. Under Medicare, because of its universal coverage, there is now room within the system to fund the medical side of these various projects.

If health is a matter of adaptation to the physical environment, then mental health can be defined in terms of adaptation to the social environment. Viewed in this perspective, mental health becomes very much a societal rather than a particular age group's problem.

We only have to look at our own professional groups to find the highest rate of alcoholism, and alcohol remains the drug which is most widely abused in this country.

We have also become very dependent upon other pharmacological products. We have been led to believe that there is literally a pill for every ill.

If mother takes pep pills to keep her going during the day, tranquilizers to soothe her in the evening and sleeping pills at night, and if father has his ritualistic martini before dinner, then who can blame junior for developing his own psychological crutch?

But the fact remains that we do blame junior. We blame junior for his attitude, his long hair, his friends or anything that helps us avoid the basic questions involved. We then develop a "we-they" relationship; we the adults, they the youth. This we-they relationship helps us avoid the large societal questions.

We must discover what makes the problems of today different from the problems of the past. Youth has always had problems, but why are they more noticeable now?

By the very fact that we get involved in the categorization of these people. We talk about the problems of youth, rather than the problems of society. We talk about the shortcomings of youth, rather than the shortcomings of society. We see the changing ideals of youth, rather than the changing ideals of society.

When we talk about youth, we are talking about people. When we talk about people, we have to consider the entire environment.

A Fertile Market

It can be argued that youth is an artificial category, created about the time of the Victorians, and now perpetuated, at least partially, by economic motivation. The teenage market is a fertile one, and one only has to read a marketing magazine to realize that it is growing.

I stress the fact that youth can be viewed as an artificial category, because I think our young people see it as such. In pre-industrial society, the period of childhood comes to an end, and adult life begins in a very well-defined manner. Anthropologists referred to the rites of transition, which mark off the stages in life.

The stages in our culture, however, are not well-defined. The child, instead of looking forward to manhood, looks forward to a kind of purgatory, called adolescence. He becomes the victim of what has been called the P.I.P. syndrome — permissive, inconsistent, punitive.

This false categorization also creates other problems. If you can deal with a person not as an individual, not as a human being, but rather as part of a large grouping, then his needs and desires can be more easily dismissed.

Create Prejudice

This is how we create prejudice. We first emphasize the negative qualities of a particular group and lump the members of this group together.

Then we deal with the entire group rather than the individuals on the basis of this prejudgment. In fact, we really do not deal with them, but rather ignore them.

In this case we have developed a whole series of myths which prevent us from talking with the young people, because we try to talk to young people. We do research on them, and we find that we have a "generation gap" or a "communication gap".

Research and talking to implies a one-way process. If we were talking with them we might find the generation gap exists only within our minds.

We argue that their values and their ideals are quite different from our own, and yet when we take away the rhetoric on both sides, we find the ideals are quite close.

I know few adults who argue against love, who argue against peace, or who argue against a humanistic approach to one another, yet when these same ideals are couched in long hair or mini-skirts, they immediately become anti-ideals.

If the ideals are the same, then why does the gap seem to persist? Perhaps it is because our young people are still trying to live by these ideals, and have not yet been forced to make the day-to-day compromises that are necessary in adult existence.

In other words, we as adults have accepted the environment as being imperfect, but at the same time being as good as we can make it. Our young people, on the other hand, see our environment as being imperfect, and are still attempting to improve it.

We do not fault our young engineers for improving our automobiles. We do not fault our young architects for improving our dwellings. We do not fault our young doctors for improving treatment methods.

But we do fault our young people for trying to improve our value structure. We have accepted technological change, but as yet we have not been able to accept human progress.

Adds New Tensions

Our growing technological age with its emphasis on specialization has added new tensions to youth. This emphasis on specialization with decreasing dependency on the family until along with an accelerated importance of post-secondary education has increased the already difficult position of youth.

He is neither fish nor fowl, neither child nor man. He is not allowed to engage in "childish" activities, nor is he permitted to participate as a full member of society.

Because of our cultural values the choice he must make will influence his life style for the balance of his existence. Yet we do not seem to have prepared him to make these choices. This lack of preparation is a contributing factor in the growth of the drop-out sub-culture.

The importance of these choices cannot be overemphasized. If he finishes secondary school certain doors will be open to him. If he attends college further challenges must be met. The pressure is now on to force him to at least consider post-graduate studies.

The college years present tensions that society has not equipped our youth to handle. It is little wonder that the highest suicide rate in Canada is found in the 18 to 21 year old period. We have emphasized the intellectual without giving enough thought to emotional development.

Programs Lacking

We have programs to encourage intellectual growth. We have programs such as the Cross Canada Sports Demonstration and the Arctic Winter Games, which stimulate physical fitness and growth, but we are clearly lacking in programs which aid the social and emotional growth of our youth.

French Touchy About Cutting Speed Limits

By JOHN L. HESS

PARIS — The automobile is a troublemaker, whether standing still or in motion, and the French government says it's determined to do something about it. But being French, it is approaching the problem with a twist of gailic logique and complexite.

After years of anguished debate, a board of inquiry has just come up with a five-year plan to combat what is one of the highest road mortality rates in the world — a record toll of 14,705 last year.

The program offers a variety of proposals including the introduction of tires that would change color to a tattletale red when worn down. But what was reported by Paris newspapers as the "most delicate" proposal was the introduction of a national speed limit.

•

The board was evidently aware of the gravity of such a step. President Georges Pompidou himself, admiring the latest highway missiles at the Paris auto show last October, said:

"It is not speed that causes accidents, it is lack of skill and ignorance of the traffic regulations."

Since awkwardness and ignorance are notoriously characteristic of the other driver, this remark touched a popular note. But experiments in limiting speed on selected highways have produced such spectacular results — a 40 per cent drop in accidents, according to a study published last month — that the authorities have virtually decided to take the plunge.

The proposal now most strongly favored would impose a limit of 110 kilometers an hour (68.35 mph) on all roads except the expressways; some routes have to be kept free, after all, for the new 220 kph Citroen SM

Even so, the safety board offered a relaxation. The motorist on a 110-kph road would be allowed to do 130 kilometers in passing, on the theory that it takes a little extra at those speeds. The board did not explain why it would be desirable to pass another car that was already crowding the limit. It just seemed self-evident.

'Little Annie Fanny'—Soviet Style

By KARL E. MEYER

NEW YORK — The briskest of bidding contests among publishers is under way for a literary property that is highly ribald, wholly novel and is regarded by experts as authentic—the first known example of underground pornographic humor from the Soviet Union.

All the sacred totems of the Soviet state are irrepressibly lampooned in a work smuggled out of the Soviet Union entitled "The Adventures of Supergirl Oktyabrina." The work is in comic strip form and consists of 150 black and white pictures and a 25,000-word text.

★ ★ ★

The heroine's name derives from the October Revolution of 1917, and she is earnest embodiment of Marxist-Leninist virtues, which she defends against an assortment of Chinese, Cuban and other counter-revolutionaries in sometimes wildly exotic settings like the Gobi Desert. At one point she is raped by a gorilla.

Endowed with impressive bosoms and a bottom imprinted with red stars, Supergirl Oktyabrina seems roughly modelled on "Little Annie Fanny" in Playboy Magazine (which is among the bidders for first serialization rights).

Soviet experts who have studied the work judge it to be as significant in its own terms as some of the protest literature being published by Samizdat, the underground publishing group in Moscow.

Produced collectively by 150 writers and artists in a major Soviet city (not Moscow), the work has come to the West with some prefatory notes explaining the motives of its creators.

"We take refuge in the erotic to shelter ourselves from the allegedly beautiful Soviet present," says one of the authors. "It bores us, and it is grey, grey, grey."

★ ★ ★

Calling their work Progressive Political Pornography, the authors delight in joining crudely erotic sexual images with the sacred texts and phrases of Marxism. A maxim of the group conveys the anarchist spirit: "Reason and Karl Marx are reduced to nothing by the female arse—a triumph."

The manuscript was brought to New York by Patrick Seale, managing editor of Observer Books and Features, literary agency of the London Sunday Observer.

The Observer obtained the work from a young emigre from eastern Europe who said that he travelled frequently in the Soviet Union. During his military service, the emigre had served as an interpreter to Gen. Alexander Illich Rodinstev, a Soviet inspector of the Warsaw Pact forces.

Befriended by the general, the young eastern European travelled as his aide and friend to the Soviet Union. During these visits to the Soviet Union he made contact with the underground group publishing political pornography, protest poems and other works which he later smuggled to the West.

The London newspaper subjected the collection and the story of how it was acquired to rigorous examination by specialists, who judged both to be authentic. Among those now bidding for American rights, besides Playboy, are Doubleday and Grove Press.

ANTI-DRAFT FIZZLES

From Reuters-AP

A week of protests against the draft appears to be fizzling out after a small turnout of demonstrators at draft centres across the United States.

During the nationwide protests police arrested about 400 persons.

The anti-draft week started Monday and organizers planned for Thursday to be the highlight. They forecast crowds of thousands at draft induction centres in New York, Washington, Philadelphia and San Francisco.

But protesters never exceeded 500 in any of the cities and the demonstrations were mainly orderly.

In New York, 182 protesters were arrested after attempting to enter the main induction centre. The majority submitted quietly as part of an arrangement made with police at the start of the week.

Officials closed down draft boards in San Francisco, Hollywood and San Rafael, Calif. and San Antonio, Tex. Although some activists hailed the closings as a victory, local draft officials said they were closed to catch up on work, not because of the demonstrations.

In New York City, where officials said the 96 draft boards were closed to avoid confrontations, those arrested included writer Murray Kempton and Anna Bennett, 66, wife of the president of the Union Theological Seminary.

A black coffin was placed at the entrance to the national draft headquarters in Washington, where 500 persons demonstrated without any arrests.

Postal Walkout In U.S. Spreads

By BOB MONROE

NEW YORK (AP) — The spreading United States postal strike leapfrogged into the Midwest today as the court-defying walkout entered its third day with increasingly serious disruptions to the business and financial community.

Some Wall Street brokers feared a continued strike could shut down the entire securities industry by Monday. The garment industry in New York faced the loss of Easter business because rush orders lay buried in the post office.

In Washington, the Nixon administration and members of Congress told the striking postal workers they must return to work before there will be any consideration of their demands.

SEEKS MEETINGS

"The only thing that can be done is for the postal workers to go back to work and start moving the mail," Postmaster-General Winton M. Blount said Thursday after an hour-long session with the House of Representatives post office committee.

The White House said "the thrust of the activity" in the administration is to co-operate with all seven major postal unions that have condemned the walkout and called on striking locals to go back to work.

There was no indication today this was working as the strike spread westward from the Atlantic seaboard.

More than 17,000,000 persons were without mail delivery Thursday and the number was growing as more branches of the National Letter Carriers Union, AFL-CIO, responded to the strike that started in New York.

NEW YORK HIT HARD

Decisions Thursday night to go out in East Lansing, Mich., Akron, Ohio and St. Paul, Minn., jumped the strike inland from the populous eastern seaboard states where postmen in Newark, N.J., Hartford, Conn., and Buffalo, N.Y., had decided earlier to join the walkout.

More than 60,000 workers already are idle.

The strike paralyzed mail service in the New York City metropolitan area and northern New Jersey, affected upstate New York including Buffalo and was spreading among major cities of Connecticut.

Cypress Bowl Left Debts, Charges NDP

Alpine Outdoor Recreation Resources Ltd. has left a string of debts to sub-contractors who worked on the Cypress Bowl West Vancouver ski development, Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) charged Thursday.

Opposition MLAs challenged a statement made Wednesday by Resources Minister Ray Williston that there are assets as a result of work done on the uncompleted recreational project — the assets being the clearing and access work that has been done to date.

The minister added Thursday that within the last week a ski expert from Switzerland had examined the area and said that from the visitor's point of view there was "no damage at all" and only one pocket of timber in the area had been overcut.

Dowding disagreed with the minister saying that Williston had left an impression that Alpine had assets when the project was ordered to halt in November. In fact, he said, there were "thousands of dollars" of liabilities owed to sub-contractors who had worked on cutting and dealing with the timber on the leased 600 acres and who had worked on the roads.

The sub-contractors had in effect been "bilked", Dowding added. The Cypress Bowl project was a recreational development that was frittered away by the government and by a company that did not have the ability to develop.

'CURSORY GOODBYE'

In future, if companies approach the government to do a job, they should be made to show that they can do it. If they have misled the department they should be given nothing more than a "cursory goodbye," Dowding said.

Dowding added he thought it "incredible" that Williston keeps giving Benguet — the company allegedly connected with the Mafia that has a controlling interest in Alpine — an extension while the government makes a decision whether the Bahamas-based company will be permitted to operate in B.C.

Robert Williams (NDP—Vancouver East) told Williston that the Vancouver Parks District was interested in the Cypress Bowl area. He asked the minister if the regional parks authority of Vancouver made application for the land whether the department would entertain the request.

When Williston did not answer Williams he rephrased the question. Were there any problems that might prevent the parks authority from getting the land? Williston said "no."

Uvic Grad Named Intern

A Victorian is among 10 university students appointed to intern in Parliament.

Garry Curtis, 23, of 3400 Rolston Crescent, will work as assistant to members of Parliament.

The idea of students doing a political internship came from Alfred D. Hales, Conservative member for Wellington, and is designed to give students practical experience in politics.

Curtis, a University of Victoria political science graduate, said the internship will give him an insight into political work.

"I plan to teach political science," he said.

He is presently attending Claremont Graduate College in California where he is working on a thesis for his master's degree.

His internship will start on Sept. 1, beginning with an intensive, one-month orientation course. He will receive $6,000 for the 10-month program.

In Ottawa he will be used for research, meeting delegations and gathering material for speeches of MPs in the Commons.

PARIS (Reuters) — The French Union of Jewish Students said Thursday a recurrence of anti-Semitism is becoming more evident in France every day. The union, which says it has 5,000 members, said in a statement that Nazi-inspired slogans attacking Jews are being scrawled in French provincial towns and police have shown indifference toward the problem.

Raise Chinchillas with Canada's Largest Chinchilla Marketing Association

CHINCHILLA has long been recognized as one of the world's most valuable furs. The velvety softness and light weight of chinchilla has contributed to the spectacular growth of this industry, and the demand for top quality pelts far exceeds the supply.

INCOME — Commercial pelting has become a reality. The Chinchilla "Guild" provides all ranchers a written contract wherein their chinchilla offspring are purchased by the "Guild" at a minimum guaranteed price. The "Guild's" contract also provides a sire exchange program controlled by IBM machines.

CONVENIENCE — Chinchillas are generally raised in basements and spare rooms, as they are among the cleanest of animals, odor free, quiet and gentle.

CARE AND FEEDING — Chinchillas cost less than $3.00 a year to feed and second income families in their spare time produce most of the pelts sold on today's market. You too, can share in the millions of dollars being earned by these people throughout the world.

SERVICE — Force priming, grading, killing, pelting, dressing and marketing are provided by the "Guild" including ranch inspection, training seminars and delivery of related equipment and supplies.

INVESTMENT — The chinchilla business is one of the easiest and least costly in which to get started. Qualifies for bank financing. Your down payment need not be large (as modest as $495.00). Chinchilla ranching also provides special tax advantages. If you are facing retirement, or in need of a second income and fond of animals, let us show you why "CHINCHILLA" can be a sound investment.

CENSORS AND DICTIONARIES

He's Involved in a War of Words

By ED GOULD

It was an abrupt change.

Within 12 hours of hurrying through wet Vienna streets to the airport, they were suddenly faced on the morning of Nov. 12, 1968 with a new country, new language, new customs — a whole new life.

Josef and Jana Kinsky, with baby daughter Gabriela (now nearly two), Peter and Marta Klinovsky and bachelor Milan Karasek were among thousands of refugees fleeing the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia.

They were located, in an unprecedented move by the Canadian Department of Immigration and Canada Manpower, who joined forces to place groups of refugees in large and small communities across the land.

Now, more than a year later, only the Kinskys are still here. Karaček is working in Calgary and the Klinovskys are settling into life in Victoria.

Kinsky, who didn't speak a word of English when he arrived, now determinedly is working himself toward a good vocabulary by referring constantly to a well-thumbed English-Czech dictionary. He refuses to get by with shrugs and gestures.

Although the only one of the trio of men now out of work (he was laid off Dec. 12 by Phillips Industrial of Duncan), Kinsky is far from being depressed. A succession of jobs with a private contractor, B.C. Forest Nurseries at Koksilah and Hamilton Electric in Duncan were only temporary.

●

Unlike the others who left the area to find permanent jobs, he prefers to live in Duncan now that he has rented a small, neat, $65-a-month home and his wife is expecting another child.

However, he'll consider commuting to work in Victoria or Nanaimo. He looks for work on his own and Canada Manpower and the IBEW union (he's registered as an electrical apprentice) are helping too.

The lull in workaday routine is taken up with constant practice at the dictionary and answering letters from home.

The letters are often censored.

"I know from the replies I get that some of the information about Canada and the qestions about the old country are not getting through," he said.

●

The censor is not well-organized however, "probably because it is such a big job to check every letter coming in and going out. And maybe if I were an important man my mail would be censored more.

Bit by bit, a picture builds up of what is happening in the country the Kinskys left behind.

Unlike the mild Cowichan winter, Czechoslovakia has had a harsh season and record snowfall. A relative informed him that only 1½ tons of coal a year are alloted to each family. Other daily necessities are in short supply and long lineups are common.

"There are over 500,000 Russian soldiers in the country and they must be fed before the citizens."

●

His friends and relatives are envious and wish they had taken the chance to escape the Iron Curtain. Despite layoffs, Kinsky has been able to collect some modest possessions: a 1962 Comet and enough secondhand and home-built furniture to fill the one-bedroom home.

For the future he has high hopes. Although he enjoys the free enterprise system in Canada, he has no intention of joining the competitive world of the private electrical contractor.

Although fully qualified in his own country his journeyman status relies upon successful completion of department of labor exams. And that means lots of word searches through the dictionary.

SPEC President Urges Backing for Park Plan

DUNCAN — It was a time for pats on the back, including one for themselves, when Cowichan-Malahat Society for Pollution and Environmental Control met Thursday night at Khowhemun School.

Vice-president Jim Egan complimented the municipality for installing its new incinerator which is to go into operation soon and will eliminate a number of open, rat-infested garbage dumps in North Cowichan. He hoped, however, the disposal of the residue from the machine did not pose another pollution problem.

WRITE TO DAVIS

President Kurt Horn urged all members to write Fisheries Minister Jack Davis and back him on his proposal of an undersea national park in the Gulf of Georgia.

He said ferry services, sport and commercial fishing apparently would not be affected, "only the things we don't want — like oil wells in the Strait."

Chemainus Rod and Gun Club got a vote of thanks for its cheque for $25 and for making a recent SPEC pickup of pesticides a success in that area. The club is affiliated with SPEC.

Mickey Sharp was supported in his motion that SPEC thank MacMillan Bloedel for its recent decision to install a 2,000,000 gallon settling pond at Chemainus sawmill division which would eliminate a source of several large herring kills.

WATCH COMPANY

That's where SPEC itself came in for a pat on its own back.

"I think we can probably credit ourselves for the holding pond at Chemainus," Horn said.

Sharp warned that an eye should be kept on the company to see that it lived up to its promise.

It was the general feeling that any official, regardless of party or company affiliation, deserving of praise for his efforts to control pollution should receive it.

Horn was given a warm round of applause to indicate a vote of confidence after discussing a recent incident in which he bore the brunt of criticism levelled at SPEC.

NO DEBATE

The criticism came from Chamber of Commerce member Walter Taylor who said the SPEC chapter did not always have the facts before it made negative public statements that could harm attraction of industry.

Horn said he was disappointed Taylor had refused to debate with him.

Horn said, however, that SPEC welcomed the Duncan-Cowichan chamber's plan to hold a pollution forum and he would be delighted to participate. He said the society could count on an increase in the amount of criticism levelled at it in the future, particularly from businessmen who are concerned with benefits derived from new industry.

Death Fire Probe Takes on New Weight

DUNCAN — Federal and provincial authorities are reported to be interested in determining the cause of a house fire at 5936 Lakes Road that took four lives on March 7.

Ald. Tom Burge, chairman of North Cowichan fire protection committee, said after a council meeting that an inspector from the federal bureau of standards had been in touch with the fire department and an investigator from the B.C. fire marshal's department in Vancouver had been here for several days.

An older model television set, not of the "instant picture" variety, is the prime suspect in the fire which broke out around midnight and spread rapidly, taking the lives of Mrs. David O'Connell and her three daughters.

★

Ald. Margaret Robertson broached the subject at the council meeting, indicating a number of residents had expressed concern over the safety of their own sets.

Fire Chief Jack Scoular said Thursday the fire in all probability originated with the television set. He said it had been sent to Vancouver for analysis and was badly charred when taken from the home.

Scoular said results of the tests probably will come out at the inquest set for April 6.

No Talks About Mill —Williston

Resources Minister Ray Williston said Thursday he has had no discussions with anyone planning to build a pulp mill in Cowichan-Malahat constituency.

Replying to Robert Strachan (NDP — Cowichan - Malahat), Williston said he had no idea why rumors persist that a mill would be built in the vicinity of Cowichan Bay and neither did the officials of a timber company (Pacific Logging Co.) who have been rumored planning such a mill.

Mail Strike Big Worry To Exchanges

NEW YORK (WP) — The New York financial community faced the possibility that stock exchanges may be forced to close if the postal strike kicked off this week continues.

At its regular meeting Thursday afternoon, the American stock exchange board of governors re-affirmed the power of their top officers — the chairman, vice chairman and president — to close the exchange if the strike creates an emergency situation.

After published reports that the exchanges might be closed, the New York Exchange issued a statement which said the big board "has no present plan to alter its established market hours or requirements concerning clearance and settlement of trades."

TORONTO (CP) — Simpsons-Sears Ltd. of Toronto announced in its annual report plans to build stores in Surrey, near Vancouver, and Kelowna, and to enlarge stores in Quebec City, Thunder Bay, Ont., and Calgary.

A new Toronto headquarters office building is scheduled for occupancy by 1971, and since the report's preparation plans have been announced for a second store in Quebec City, a third store in Winnipeg and a store in Trois-Rivieres, Que.

The company reports profits rose by 5.5 per cent to $15,420,190 in 1968.

The company declared dividends of 48 cents a share in 1969, compared with 40 cents a share the previous year.

Light, erratic trading prevailed in flax with prices moving fractionally in both directions on small orders.

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures declined nearly 1⅛ cents a bushel in the Board of Trade today. Other grains were generally irregular.

Prices in the soybean group were generally weak, except for some strength in oil futures.

The liquidation of wheat futures was attributed to reports that the U.S. winter wheat crop had been aided greatly by a record snowfall over sections of the southwest in the last week.

Prices in the corn and oats pits held to a relatively tight range, except for new-crop corn futures, which were under selling pressure for a time.

Western Hotels

Seattle-based Western International Hotels and the parent company of United Airlines seek a merger that would leave UAL Inc., the major company. Imperial Inn, of Victoria, and Hotel Georgia in Vancouver are among Western's Canadian holdings.

Directors of the two companies have agreed on an exchange plan in which UAL would issue 1.3 shares of a new preferred stock for each of Western's 2.9 million shares outstanding.

It would bear a 40-cent annual divident and be convertible after three years into common shares of UAL, one-for-one.

AT and T

American Telephone and Telegraph Co. reported Wednesday increased sales and earnings for 1969 over 1968.

The company said it had 1969 earnings of $2.1 billion or $4 a share on revenue of $15.8 billion. It said this compared with 1968 earnings of $2 billion or $3.79 a share on revenues of $14.3 billion.

Bombardier

Bombardier Ltd. has bought all the shares of Ski-Doo West Inc., distributor of Bombardier products in Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, Nebraska and Oklahoma.

The acquisition will assure the "continued rapid expansion" of the sales of the company's snowmobiles and other products in those states, vice-president John Hetherington said.

Ski-Doo West Inc. has an estimated 60 per cent share of the snowmobile market in its territory.

Dominion Bridge

Dominion Bridge Co. Ltd. and its subsidiaries report net earnings of $5 million or $1.95 a share for the 14-month period ended Dec. 31, 1969, up from $3.6 million or $1.40 for the 12-month period ended Oct. 31, 1968.

Sales for the 14-month period in 1969 totalled $184.7 million, up from $154 million for the 12-month period in 1968.

CZ Sales Establish Record

VANCOUVER (CP) — Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. Thursday reported a record sales volume of $205,043,000 in 1969, an increase of 13 per cent over the 1968 total of $181,389,000.

The company's annual report showed net income rose to $13,782,000 last year, compared with $12,776,000. Earnings per share equalled $1.78, up from $1.66.

However, R. G. Rogers, president and chief executive officer, said the percentage increase in net income, following the pattern of recent years, did not keep pace with the growth in sales because of rising operating costs and higher taxes.

Rogers said the effective rate of all income taxes in the British Columbia forest industry is the highest of any industry in Canada and has resulted in "a punitive effect, particularly when the highly competitive nature of this export industry is considered."

"In the year ahead, the impact of the inflationary trend in the Canadian economy and the outcome of negotiations to renew our main labor contracts with the International Woodworkers of America), which expire in June, could materially affect our future manufacturing costs," he said.

Mining Magnate Dislikes Paperwork

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bernard Orlande Brynelsen ran a deliberate pen stroke through a line on a list of his companies and said: "Hell, this must be old."

He made another stroke through the summation of his corporate history, adding: "Don't bother mentioning this one, it isn't too important. And this one I'm not with now."

Several emphatic lines later he handed over the amended list.

Seated in a deep, square, tartan-upholstered office couch, he had an expression of surprise that suggested he hadn't kept track of the many changes.

"I don't know how many companies I'm connected with. There are so many projects."

Brynelsen gave the impression he does not really like his office—situated high above Vancouver harbor and overlooking the north shore mountains—and the bookkeeping it entails.

He seldom uses the boat kept in a marina below his office; last year he logged more than 400 hours in his jet.

Chairman of the board of Brameda Resources Ltd., president of six other firms, including Brenda Mines and the Bank of British Columbia, Bern Brynelsen, 58, digs the mineral business.

The sports-jacket-and-slack-wearing mining magnate has gambled himself into a bid to build a giant of the industry based in B.C. Brameda was organized last spring after the Brynelsen group relinquished control of a huge copper-molybdenum operation in the Okanagan to Noranda Mines Ltd. as part of the financing arrangements.

The mine, explored and developed by Brenda, cost more than $60,000,000 tp put into operation.

Brynelsen, who lives in the Spanish Banks area near the University of British Columbia with his wife, Eileen, spends much of his time in the air or on the ground checking mines.

DOESN'T LIKE DESK

His mining interests reach as far as the Philippines, through licensing of the Brameda-owned Thermochem sulphur-regaining process to Benguet Consolidated Inco., and into Mexico, Costa Rica and Peru.

After a complicated series of stock manoeuvres, Brameda gained control of more than 15 companies—including the McCracken silver holdings in Arizona and Churchill Copper Corp. Ltd.'s Magnum holdings in northern B.C.

Studies have been conducted on a coal holding at Pine Pass in northern B.C. and Brameda has signed a letter of intent with Nissho-Iwai Canada Ltd., subsidiary of a Japanese trading firm, to sell at least 2,000,000 tons of coal annually for 15 years.

In the Yukon, the firm is studying a possible swamill operation at Carcross and has a "potential giant" in a Casino Silver Mines Ltd. copper-molybdenum holding.

By parlaying shares and directorships, Brynelsen, a one-time mine supervisor, has become a millionaire on paper who dislikes paperwork.

"Every time I can get out of the office I get the hell out, to check things myself. I don't like to sit at a desk.

"Once I get a thing into production I like to put it off and go on to the next thing."

Pipeline Revenue Shows 13.7% Gain

VANCOUVER (CP) — Trans Mountain Oil Pipe Line Co. had revenue of $41,847,028 during 1969, up 13.7 per cent from the previous year, the company's annual report said Friday.

Earnings per share were $1.52, up from $1.39 in 1968. Oil movement also increased over the company's Edmonton-Vancouver pipeline system, from 269,144 barrels a day in 1968 to 308,411 barrels a day last year.

President E. C. Hurd said in the report that operating expenses jumped 21.3 per cent mainly because of increased costs of fuel for pumping oil, expenditures for research on a Mackenzie Valley pipeline and inclusion of a subsidiary company's operating costs for the first time.

The subsidiary, Central heat Distribution Ltd., supplies steam heat from central boilers to 33 buildings in downtown Vancouver.

He said the preliminary study on the feasibility of a 48-inch pipeline from the Arctic slope to Edmonton was "encouraging" and prompted formation with Interprovincial Pipe Line Co. of a research subsidiary.

A test section of 48-inch pipe line near Inuvik, N.W.T. is operating "at least until mid-year to observe the total effects of pumping warm oil in the Arctic environment."

Hurd also said the proposed trans-Alaska pipeline from the oil fields at Prudhoe Bay to the port of Valdez "will have some unfavorable effect on Trans Mountain volumes between Edmonton and the West Coast."

Grape Growers Support Market Board

A substantial increase in the price wineries pay for B.C. grapes is anticipated this year with proposed formation of a grape marketing board.

A petition requesting Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford to set up a marketing board has been signed by 97 per cent of growers owning their vineyards in the Okanagan Valley, or 116 growers holding 1,940 acres.

A spokesman for B.C. Grape Growers Association said it is expected that negotiations for the 1970 crop will proceed shortly. The only other commercial grape growing area in the province is the Similkameen Valley.

The major wine makers have up to this point refused to discuss higher prices, which for the bulk of B.C. grapes have gone unchanged for 15 years.

The range is between $125 and $140 per ton. In other grape areas on this continent there have been price hikes of between 40 and 70 per cent.

Impressive List of Ibos Didn't Flee

By MORT ROSENBLUM

LAGOS (AP) — Biafra's unsuccessful attempt at secession from the rest of Nigeria took a heavy toll of Ibo tribal leaders who fled the state into exile.

But an impressive group remains two months after the end of the civil war.

Sir Louis Mbanefo, former federal Supreme Court, justice and once a World Court judge, is still here He has slipped quietly to the sidelines, telling friends he may resume private law practice.

The 58-year-old white-haired jurist led the first peace talks delegation to Kampala, Uganda, in 1968.

A close relative of Mbanefo's said his family survived the war practically unscathed. They gathered at the family compound in Onitsha and found all present and relatively well, she said. The house, though, was emptied by looters and "not a pin was left."

Dr. Jaja Wachuku, a Nigerian foreign minister for a time, turned up safe when Biafra's borders dissolved. He had been under detention in Biafra since July, 1968. He told a magazine correspondent he thought Biafran leaders were afraid he would make contact with the federal side.

SAYS WAR WAS WASTE

"They suspected me of not being too convinced about their whole exercise," he said. "If tempers had not run amok the family quarrel could easily have been settled. . . . A whole generation has been gambled away."

Wachuku is from a small village near Aba. After he withdrew from politics at the January, 1966, coup d'etat, when Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa was killed, he practised law in Aba. He and his wife ran a small clothing factory. They, too, had their home looted.

Many well-known Ibos are back at home waiting for the next move. They include Raymond Njoku, former federal transport minister; Matthew Mbu, former navy minister; Dr. Eni Njoku, former vice-chancellor of University of Nsuka; Dr. Pius Okigbo, federal economic advisers; author Cyprian Ekwensi, now seeking his old job as federal director of information, and N. U. Akpan, former ranking civil servant who was chief secretary to Gen. C. Odumegwu Ojukwu leader in exile recently.

Dr. Chike Obi, a famed mathematician who says he worked out a long-sought mathematical formula while in prison, is teaching at the University of Lagos.

OTHERS PLAY IT SAFE

A number of influential Ibos held diplomatic posts for Biafra when the war ended and have not seen fit to try their luck at returning to Lagos, the federal capital. Some have private funds safely deposited in foreign banks.

Among the diplomats was C. C. Mojekwu, Ojukwu's cousin and internal affairs minister, who was posted to Lisbon, Portugal, as senior Biafran diplomat in Europe. He was in charge of buying arms and arranging their transport. A radical hardliner, it is doubtful he will soon return to Nigeria.

Other diplomats still out include Dr Kenneth Dike, who travelled in France and former French colonies; Ignatius Kogbara, representative in London, and Austine Okwu, representative in East Africa. Kingsley Mbadiwe, a man of private means who was an unofficial roving envoy, is still out.

In exile, besides Ojukwu, is Dr. Michael Okpara, once premier of the Eastern Region (later Biafra) and then political adviser to Ojukwu. Akpan says Okpara is "somewhere in Europe."

Money Hunger Kills

MADISON, Wes. (AP) — The death of a valuable six-year-old rhea ostrich at the Milwaukee County zoo was blamed on visitors who enjoyed watching the ostrich gobble up various items thrown at it. An autopsy turned up two quarters, two dimes, two nickels, 27 pennies, two washers and a perfume bottle.

Forest Probe 'Long Overdue' To Study Corporate Monopoly

An inquiry into the forest industry is long overdue and one should be held now to halt a trend to monopoly, opposition members told the legislature Thursday.

Robert Williams (NDP—Vancouver East) said the forest industry had been developed at too great a price—the shutting off from resources of some developers, the development of a system of sharecropping for once independent operators, and low revenues for the government.

The Sloan commission into the industry in the mid-1950s, Williams said, had recommended that the forest industries be reviewed every 10 years. This examination was long overdue, he commented.

Any investigation into the industry must inquire into agreements made between companies, Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) said, and business connections disclosed.

He charged the Social Credit government talked about private enterprise, but did nothing to stop a trend to monopoly. The government must oppose any such trend, else they have no valid claim to be the real defenders of private enterprise.

The woods should be accessible to all, Dowding added, urging Resources Minister Ray Williston to set up a commission to look into the industry, with special emphasis to be placed on the "corporate monopoly situation."

OPEN TO BIDS

Williams said every sale of forest resources should be open to bidding so the people will know what the resource is worth.

Williston answered criticism of "low" returns in revenue to the government from the forest companies by saying it was the philosophy of the government to stabilize the industry.

Robert Strachan (NDP—Cowichan-Malahat) asked why revenues had dropped from 1966 to 1968 from $50 million to $40 million. The minister replied that revenues during 1969 were $80 million, the highest return ever to the province.

The government was nut just trying to maximize returns to the province, Williston said, but attempting to keep the industry going.

'CRAZY' SITUATION

Something crazy is going on in the province, Strachan suggested, when a home owner can't even buy decent timber without paying "ridiculous" prices, and when lumber from the Cariboo is being brought to Vancouver Island for sale here.

On the question of secrecy in the department, Williston told Williams that it would be an administrative impossibility to give out details on 4,000 different agreements between the forest service and private timber operators.

Williams replied that Williston's statement differed considerably from a March, 1969, letter he had written stating that the details of agreements between the forest service and private operators are confidential matters.

Children Hurt In Collision

Two five-year-old girls were treated for minor injuries at Royal Jubilee Hospital Thursday morning after a collision between two cars at the corner of Oak Bay and Richmond.

Injured were Margaret Reid and Louise Vezza, 1740 Emmerson, who were passengers in a car driven by Andrew G. Reid, 1949 Quamichan.

The Reid car was southbound on Richmond when it was in collision with a car going west on Oak Bay, driven by Thomas S. Shorthouse, 2164 Cubbon Drive.

Airline Suspended

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — The Brazilian air ministry has suspended all operations of Paraense Air Transport until completion of an investigation of the crash that claimed 38 lives in the city of Belem last week. An airline spokesman said the suspension means the airline will lose about $15,000 in revenues. He said in 18 years Paraense had only two air crashes.

SPARKS FLY OVER 'GIFTS'

A suggestion that some government forest service employees have accepted Christmas gifts from forest companies set sparks flying briefly in the legislature Thursday.

Resources Minister Ray Williston reacted angrily when William Hartley (NDP—Yale-Lillooet) said he knew "friends and relatives" in the forest service who had received Christmas hampers from local forest industries.

Williston said he wouldn't stand for that sort of allegation against civil servants and challenged Hartley to produce names and specific charges of "bribery."

Premier Bennett said Hartley shouldn't keep forest service employees "under a cloud" and Hartley replied he hadn't intended to impute "bad motives" to anyone.

The exchange came after Bob Williams (NDP—Vancouver East) had accused the forest industry of putting pressure on government-timber scalers to see that estimates of timber tended to favor industry rather than government.

★

He said that having a supervisory scaling committee with eight industry members and two civil servants was like having "the fox in the henhouse looking after the hens."

All scalers should be full-time civil servants and free of pressure from the industry, he said.

Williston denied Williams' charge that morale was low among scalers because of industry pressure. It is low because a switch currently under way to weight-scaling will reduce the number of scalers needed to about one-tenth of the current number.

Williston agreed with Williams that there had been some concern over accuracy of scaling, particularly where small mills were concerned and some scalers also did other jobs in the mills.

But he said there are other checks to see if scaling is accurate and denied that the supervisory committee in question actually comes into contact with scaling itself.

★

Leo Nimsick (NDP—Kootenay)—asked if air force men could be trained to use water bombers for fighting fires. Fires could be controlled much more quickly if squadrons were used in this way.

Williston replied that he agreed with Nimsick "1,000" per cent, and that he had been negotiating with the Canadian International Development Agency about the matter. A fire-fighting force that could go to warmer countries during the winter here could form part of Canada's foreign aid commitment, he suggested.

Opposition leader Dave Barrett said B.C. should seek co-operation from Washington and Oregon in setting up a regional fire-fighting service.

BRUINS, JACKSONVILLE IN HOOP SHOWDOWN

From The Washington Post

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — UCLA's Bruins overwhelmed New Mexico State Aggies 93-77 and Jacksonville Dolphins put down an inspired St. Bonaventure 91-83 Thursday to advance to the U.S. National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball final.

Saturday's final, to be televised in the Victoria area on Channel 5, will start at 1 p.m. PST.

The well-balanced Bruins, winning their 23rd straight tournament game and bidding for a fourth straight national title, had little difficulty in defeating the Aggies before 14,380 fans.

The Bonnies hustled away to an early lead against favored Jacksonville, then caved in after losing four players through fouls late in the game.

Bill WALKER

Two years ago, the Victoria Cougars were nothing. Thursday night they filled the Memorial Arena. Hockey hadn't had it so good since Colin Kilburn was a growing boy.

The Cougars were playing the Vernon Essos in the sixth game of the British Columbia junior "A" finals. They had to win to keep alive to defend the honors that had come their way last season. They didn't. They lost to a better team but they lost when they should have won. It was that kind of a game.

And there were 5,219 fans in the place. Never had so many attended a game since Kilburn, once coach of the old, old Cougars, had been fired, and was returning as an Edmonton Flyer. That was 12 years ago.

Since then there had been other Cougar teams, and Maple Leaf teams. There had been championships series in the Western Hockey League, and there had been a championship. There also had been a game between the Maple Leafs and the Rochester Americans. Rochester at that time were run by Joe Crozier. They were the best team in minor professional hockey.

That game was believed to be a sellout, but the records say more could have come. The Maple Leafs put the lie to the American League that night. They stopped Rochester easily.

Last night, unfortunately, it wasn't to be that successful. The Cougars went out, quietly at the end, when earlier it appeared that they could not be denied.

●

They completely outplayed Vernon in the opening period, and again at the start of the second. So wide was the margin in the first 20 minutes that goalie Ed Forslund had only two direct shots to handle.

This was not to be the case much longer. Vernon had won the league championship. They were not to be humbled this easily.

Then, there had been that second period three-goal explosion for Cougars.

Alex Shibicky had made it look so easy when he split the defence and deaked Gary Osborne to put the Cougars ahead. Shayne Webster got the second with a smile from above. A deflected shot off a defenceman surprised Osborne. Then when Pat Askew intercepted an errant Vernon passout, it was 3-0, and the seventh game was scheduled for Vernon tonight. Or so it appeared.

But then all manner of things began to happen, most of them bad for the Cougars. Vernon's Don Craig knocked in a rebound and Forslund was looking for help on the play. When Gord Osinchuck did the same five minutes later, the concern was beginning to show. The Cougar defence was under extreme pressure.

This already had been a long season. There had been a tough seven-game series with Kamloops. It was the 13th game in 16 nights. Young legs supposedly can go on forever. But not this Thursday. The Cougars had shot their bolt earlier, and now Vernon was on the way back. They had rolled with the punch, and were taking control. And when Laurie Moore fell down, and Jim Marsh went around him, there was cause for dismay. Marsh simply waited for a rebound and the score was even. It was the third rebound that had been cleared, not by Victoria, but by Vernon, into the net.

●

Again Victoria got the lead. Again Vernon tied it, and the extra play was necessary.

It was at this stage that the Cougars could have grabbed it all, but unexplained forces were against them. Webster, who must be awarded the gutsy award for playing with a painful hernia, hit the post with Osborne beaten. On the next play Larry Quechuck drew Vernon even at 4-4. Thus inspired, Vernon was not about to be thwarted.

The winning goal was a dandy, for Vernon. Jack Marsh took the puck from a faceoff deep in Vernon territory, swung up the left boards, cut through the defence and flipped the puck past a startled Forslund into the net.

Vernon had come all the way back from a three-goal deficit, on foreign ice, this is the mark of a champion.

The Cougars had given much, but they faltered at their peak. And it hurt them dearly. They sagged when they had Essos on the ropes. That was their mistake.

It was fitting that a clean-cut goal decided the game. Forslund and Osborne, despite the score, had been that spectacular in their duties. It was unfortunate that one had to yield.

But to the 5,219 fans, this was hockey action that had a distinct homey flavor.

The Cougars had done what no other team had accomplished for years. They had won back the hockey faithful. They lost the game but they went down proudly. Their heads were high, in defeat.

University School XV Splits Opening Games

LONDON (CP) — A rugby team from University School of Victoria has won one game and lost a second since arriving in Britain for a series of games against schools here.

But today the boys were relaxing on a sight-seeing tour of London before embarking on a game against Eton Saturday.

Mel Reeves of Victoria scored two tries as the Canadian visitors romped to a 28-3 victory against Canford school in Dorset Wednesday.

The Victoria team had arrived in Britain by air Tuesday.

The combined effect of continuing travel fatigue and of the effort they put into their victory against Canford may have been a factor in the 36-5 defeat the Canadians suffered Thursday at the hands of a powerful squad from Harrow.

An American, Andy Hall, scored Victoria's lone try on that occasion.

The British Columbians continue their series of games next week.

Saanich Cards Signing Times

The Saanich Minor Lacrosse Association wants to sign players as well as parents.

Player registration will open Saturday, between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., at Hampton and Braefoot Parks, will continue Wednesday (7-9 p.m.) and again the following Saturday (10-2).

Now registrants are asked to bring birth certificates.

Parents anxious to help either in a coaching or managerial capacity also are invited to "sign up."

Cougar Hopes Crushed In Overtime, by Marsh

Victoria Blows 3-0 Lead As Vernon Collects Crown

By ERNIE FEDORUK

The signs in Memorial Arena declared it to be "Cougar Country," but Vernon Essos clawed hardest Thursday night to emerge as British Columbia's junior "A" hockey champions.

An unassisted goal by Jack Marsh after 14 minutes and seven seconds of overtime kayoed the defending champion Victoria Cougars, 5-4, and shifted the B.C. Junior League title to Vernon for the first time in history.

Marsh's sudden burst through Victoria's defence ended it all and sent Vernon against Weyburn Red Wings, the Saskatchewan title holders, in the first round of the interprovincial playoffs for the Memorial Cup.

The Weyburn-Vernon series is scheduled to open in the Okanagan city on Saturday, although Essos' manager Vern Dye "would prefer" starting on the Sabbath.

MORE SPORT ON 15, 16, 17

If the Cougars, as league runners-up, are "second best," you can't convince Vernon coach Odie Lowe. Entitled to recruit three playoff additions along with an extra goaltender, Lowe will reach across to Vancouver and Penticton for the pickups.

He has tentatively made overtures to pick up centre Alex Dick, winger-centre Neil Murphy and goaltender Lionel Trudell of Vancouver Centennials, and defenceman Dwayne Pentland of Penticton.

Largest Crowd to See Junior Game

For the partisans among a record 5,219 fans — largest crowd ever to see a junior game in the province — their consolation was a heart-fluttering 74 minutes of hockey.

The sellout crowd watched Cougars break away to a 3-0 lead early in the second period, blow it, then move ahead midway in the third. When the Victorians blew that advantage, they never drew a third chance.

Marsh and goaltender Gary Osborne saw to that. Osborne prevented Cougars from forcing a seventh and deciding game with an eye-popping save.

A snappy pass from Ted Plowe put Cougar teammate Alex Shibicky in the clear with just 30 seconds remaining in a 10-minute overtime. Shibicky, with time to do it, got away a good close-in shot but Osborne's gloved hand came out of nowhere to pick up the puck.

That brought on the sudden-death overtime, and Marsh was the one who came along to hammer the nail in Cougars' coffin.

Shibicky, Plowe, Shayne Webster and Pat Askew scored Victoria's goals. Vernon's matchers were supplied by Bob Craig, Gord Osinchuk, Jim Marsh and Larry Quechuk.

Cougars Discard Effective Tactic

But the Cougars' letdown was the big disappointment. Fore-checking, hitting and skating, the Cougars overwhelmed Vernon in the scoreless opening period. They out-shot Essos 10-2, and it just seemed a matter of time before the Cougars took command.

That time came in the first seven minutes of the second period. With fore-checking opening the door, Shibicky, Webster and Askew made it 3-0 within a span of four minutes and 24 seconds.

Then ignoring the tactics that proved so successful for the first 25 minutes, the Cougars opened the door on Vernon's behalf. They played it wide-open, and the positional-minded Essos were quick to capitalize.

That put the pressure on Victoria's rearguards. They stumbled and, quite suddenly, it was a tie game again.

Cougar coach Doug Anderson shuffled his lineup after Wednesday's 3-1 loss in Vernon. He dressed the still-ailing Webster and, surprisingly, rookie Greg Robinson.

Victoria Lineup Changes Debated

In dressing Robinson, who managed only two assists in his previous playoff appearances, Anderson dropped John Kwasney from the lineup. Kwasney had been a playoff sparkler with eight goals and four assists in nine games.

Anderson's decision has to be questioned, particularly since Kwasney performs far better on the large Memorial Arena ice than in Vernon's band-box.

Webster suffered another injury early in overtime, stopping a hard shot on the side of an ankle.

Anderson resorted to using two lines, but lacked the skating legs needed in overtime.

ICE CHIPS: Thursday's crowd count raised Cougars' seasonal total to 73,619 in 24 league and seven playoff games ... It works out to an unofficial average of 2,375 ... Teams packed 50 of the game's 54 minutes in penalties all into the second period ... Most of the penalty mileage was touched off by a fight between Cougars' Bruce Cowick and Vernon ace Wayne Dye ... both drew majors ... Dale Pennock of Victoria and Osinchuk then went at it and drew misconducts as well as majors ... Both Cougar players won unanimous decisions ... While Osborne's save off Shibicky in the 10-minute overtime loomed all-important, Victoria's Ed Forslund had his moments in the third period to force overtime ... Osinchuk was the victim of Forslund's three best saves, including a particularly great one at the 15:45 mark.

"Oops, there goes another one," say the officials as Gord Osinchuk (12) of Vernon and Cougars' Dale Pennock (extreme right) start swinging. Second bout got under way just as officials pried Bruce Cowick (14) and Wayne Dye (on ice) apart during flareup in B.C. Junior Hockey League final at Memorial Arena Thursday. Buyck's Two Goals Help Bruins Bounce Hot-Stepping Chihawks

By The Canadian Press

Boston Bruins had their backs to the boards Thursday night but came up with a key victory that could ultimately bring them the National Hockey League East Division title.

The Bruins topped Chicago with a 3-1 win that pushed their division lead to three points over the Black Hawks with just eight games remaining in the regular schedule.

The Hawks' remaining games are no less difficult than the Bruins'. Each has four more home games and four on the road and each faces an East Division opponent in six of the eight games.

In other Thursday action, New York Rangers gained a 2-2 tie with Philadelphia Flyers to join the idle Detroit Red Wings with 85 points in the standings, just one behind the Black Hawks. St. Louis Blues beat Pittsburgh Penguins 3-1 and Montreal Canadiens whipped Los Angeles Kings 6-1.

The Bruins took two penalties to start the game at Boston but broke loose to score while one man short to take an early advantage. Centre Derek Sanderson scored the opening goal with veteran left-winger Johnny Bucyk collecting two more in the second period before a home crowd of 14,835.

DENNIS HULL TALLIES

Dennis Hull beat goalie Ed Johnston for the lone Chicago goal in the final period. Hawks' rookie goalie Tony Esposito stopped 38 Boston shots while Johnston kicked out only 36.

The Hawks' loss ended an eight-game unbeaten string.

At Los Angeles, the fifth-place Canadiens kept alive their playoff hopes by pulling to within two points of New York and Detroit and staying six back of the leading Bruins.

Jean Belliveau beat Los Angeles goalie Denis DeJordy to start the Canadiens attack with Larry Mickey, Pete Mahovlich, Henri Richard, Yvan Cournoyer and Mickey Redmond following up.

BALON SCORES

The Rangers twice came from behind in the contest before a crowd of 14,606 in Philadelphia.

Simon Nolet's 21st goal for the Flyers midway through the first period was matched by Dave Balon's 30th for the Rangers. Reg Fleming gave Philadelphia a 2-1 lead in the second period with Orland Kurtenbach getting the goal back for New York in the final session.

Defenceman Tim Horton set up both goals for New York which outshot the Flyers 35-30.

O'Keefes Can Clinch Second Spot

Victoria O'Keefes will be in position to clinch third place when they play the final match on their Pacific Coast Soccer League schedule Saturday at Royal Athletic Park.

O'Keefes will be going against New Westminster Blues, the only team with a chance to catch the Victorians and a victory or a tie for O'Keefes would end Westminster hopes of grabbing the third spot.

O'Keefes also have an outside chance of earning a tie for second. This would require a win Saturday and two losses for Croatia in its last two games.

Game time is 2 p.m. Saturday, which is also "awards day" for individual Victoria players.

Columbus had clinched first place with 28 points. Croatia has 21, Victoria 19 and Westminster 16.

Canada's Absence Showing at Gate

STOCKHOLM (CP)—It was a case of separating the men from the boys in the world hockey championship today as Sweden tackled unbeaten Russia and surprising Finland clashed with Czechoslovakia.

They were the only games scheduled in the fifth round of the 10-round tournament.

Sweden shellacked Poland 11-0 Thursday to share second place with the Finns, who managed to squeeze a 1-0 victory from a scrappy East German team.

The Russians, who have outscored their opponents 24 to 3 so far in the 30-game tournament, lead with eight points from four straight wins, while Sweden and Finland each has a 3-1 won-lost record for six points apiece.

Czechoslovakia is 2-2, while East Germany and Poland have yet to score a win in their four starts.

ATTENDANCE DROPS

The organizers of the double round-robin tournament, which runs 17 days and ends March 30, have been feeling the absence of Canada at the 1970 championships.

The Canadians, who pulled out of the competition after a disagreement over professional participation, always were a big drawing card at world tournaments. Without them this year, attendance at the first dozen games has been on average fewer than 4,000 a game—hardly 40 per cent of the 11,000-plus capacity of Johanneshov Stadium and far below the figures for the 1969 championships in which Canada took part.

Profits are expected to drop to about one-third of last year's tournament, also played here. The 1970 championships were scheduled for Montreal and Winnipeg before Canada withdrew in protest of her opponents' refusal to abide by an International Ice Hockey Federation decision to permit use of professionals.

Automatics Advance To McGinnis Finale

Victoria Automatic Transmission advanced to the best-of-five Stuffy McGinnis Hockey League final against league-champion Empress Paint despite a 4-2 loss to Ingraham Buckaroos at the tag-end of semi-final action Thursday night in Pearkes Arena.

The best-of-three semi was changed to a two-game, total-goal series after the first game ended in a 2-2 tie as ice-time ran out. VATs then scored a 4-0 victory and took the series, 6-4.

Terry Tweedy scored two goals to pace Buckaroos.

First game of the final will take place at 8:15 p.m. Monday in Memorial Arena.

Boxla Boys To Register

Registrations for boys five to 16 years of age wishing to play on teams in the Victoria Minor Lacrosse Association will be held between 2 and 5 p.m. this Saturday and next at Stevenson Park.

Boys living in Victoria and Oak Bay qualify to register and are required to bring birth certificates and health insurance plan numbers as well as a parent or guardian to sign the registration forms.

COLORADO TOURNEY . . . . . . JUST FOR CLUB TEAMS

It Won't Be Open, Says Bunny

STOCKHOLM (CP) — John (Bunny) Ahearne, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, today denied as completely wrong a report from New York that he had approved an "open" world hockey tournament in the United States for the top teams in the current world championships here.

Tom Lockhart, president of the United States Amateur Hockey Association, was quoted as saying he had Ahearne's approval for such a tournament, in which Canada would be able to compete, using some professional players.

"No such thing has ever been mentioned," Ahearne said.

"What I have approved is a tournament being set up for Colorado Springs Dec. 26-31, but definitely not for the top teams here but for the two top teams of the current European Cup championships for amateur club teams. And it will not be an open tournament.

"The Canadian team will be the winner of the Allan Cup for amateur teams. Lockhart has been thoroughly misquoted on this."

Czechoslovak and Russian members of the IIHF directorate confirmed that the proposed U.S. tournament has nothing to do with the national-team world competition here but is intended for their amateur club teams.

The IIHF leaders will meet with Canadian representatives here Saturday to debate the controversial amateur-pro question.

In Toronto, Buck Houle, general manager of the Canadian national squad, said the team was being disbanded because "there was really no point in carrying on."

"Nobody wanted to play us and our players lost their desire to continue. . ."

Winter Spring Returns Good

By STEWART LANG

Trout and salmon anglers around Vancouver Island can be expected to enjoy a greater chance of success again this weekend than their steelhead-seeking bretheren, despite the arrival of a few new runs of these sea-run rainbows in upper-Island streams.

First, as to trout, flies are proving to be the best producer in Shawnigan, Dougan's and Kemp lakes on the southern part of the Island.

A fair return of sea-run cutthroats is also reported in Sooke Harbor.

Other big and juicy sea-run trout are being taken out of Quamichan and Somenos lakes near Duncan as well as in the lower reaches of the Cowichan River.

In the upper-reaches of the Cowichan, above Skutz Falls, some of those lurking brown trout are being caught by bait fishermen.

Westwood and Brannan lakes are beginning to yield the odd trout near Nanaimo.

* * *

Great Central and the head of Sproat Lake have been noteworthy producers in the Port Alberni vicinity and bobber fishermen on Comox Lake were reported to be doing quite well.

Near Campbell River, some of the lakes in the Sayward forest area are producing trout up to 14 inches and the spot where Miller Creek empties into the Lower Campbell Lake has been particularly hot.

Fresh "March" runs of steelhead reported in the Big Qualicum, Puntledge, Oyster, Quinsam and Salmon rivers are mediocre in number and producing only fair returns.

* * *

Local salmon fishermen are catching winter springs near Goldstream Island, the entrance to Tod Inlet and along the Wall to Willis Point in Saanich Inlet while jack springs are hitting in Indian Bay, Coles Bay and along the Bamberton shore.

Bluebacks are being landed in good numbers well offshore from Willis Point as well as near Senanus Island, Indian Bay, Coles Bay, Patricia Bay and Deep Cove.

Blues and jacks have also been nibbling hardware near Sidney Island and the outside of Galiano Island, an area where some of the bigger winter springs are also to be found.

Trial Island and Fiddle Reef have been good producers off Oak Bay for those fishing fairly deep and blues are said to be cruising around on the outside of Discovery Island.

Becher Bay is reported to contain a fresh group of winter springs.

* * *

A few winter springs are being landed off Cowichan while blues (in good numbers) are scattered from under the power line in Sansum Narrows to Tent Island.

Strip-casters and Buzz-Bombers are catching some good-sized winter springs between the red and white buoys off Nanaimo.

Northwest Bay seems to be provoking the most comment this weeek after Cecil Admanson of Port Alberni came back with a 35:08-pounder last Sunday.

Returns on salmon north of Northwest Bay are scarce.

* * *

NIBBLES: Frank Jenvey captured first prize in the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers Association "Chinook Club" frostbite derby on Sunday with a 17½ pound spring . . . Bob Redgrave came second with a 12½-pounder and Bob Coldwell was third with one 6:7 . . . South Vancouver Island Rangers are holding a shotgun and rifle shoot from 10 a.m. 'til dusk on Good Friday . . . range is located on Luxton Road in Happy Valley . . . prizes include two chickens per shoot . . . events include categories for novice and expert marksmen.

Courtenay Rink Grabs Elks Title

DAUPHIN (CP) — Dave Paterson and his British Columbia rink from Courtenay, runners-up this year to Lyall Dagg of Vancouver for the provincial curling championship, Thursday won the Canadian Elks curling championship.

Paterson, with lead Dunc Ross, second Frank Coates and third Sandy Sandberg, defeated Manitoba, 7-5, in the final to win the Corby Cup.

Manitoba, skipped by Howie Sager of Morden, had gone through the six-team round-robin event with five straight wins, but couldn't come up with the clincher.

B.C. took Jerry Wiebe of Dawson Creek, B.C., representing Alberta, 9-8, in the semi-final to advance against Sager in the final.

In the final, Manitoba missed three of its last four shots on the final end to allow B.C. to grab three to win.

School Swimmers Compete Saturday

Young splashers from thirty Victoria-area elementary and junior high schools will compete in the 44th annual Inter-School age group swimming meet Saturday at the Crystal Garden.

The elementary meet starts at 8 a.m. with the junior high school competitors slated to hit the water at 11 a.m.

All schools can enter three swimmers in each individual event and one team in each relay race of the Victoria Amateur Swim Club-sponsored meet.

Competition is certain to be spirited among schools for team trophies in three categories.

The Daily Times Trophy will go to the top elementary school, the Dickinson and Dunn Trophy to the leading junior high school and the VASC Trophy will be awarded to the private school accumulating the most points.

Hoop Tourney

First United Saints will be defending the Vancouver Island bantam girls' basketball championship in a tournament starting Saturday at 9:30 a.m. in Victoria High School.

Considered as the main threat to the title is Campbell River, although Duncan, Nanaimo, Saanich Peninsula and Metropolitan Rebels are not counted out of the running.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Making debut in "Bowler-of-Week" winners' circle is Judy Cody, who topped women's fivepin section in 21st week of seventh annual competition sponsored by The Times. Judy collected award and earned berth in Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs on Sunday, May 10, with 288-279-250—817 series rolled in Friday Breakfast Club at Gibson's Bowladrome.

Claudia Morrow Wins

Claudia Morrow won silver division honors in a distaff medal and pin competition at Victoria Golf Club. Other divisional winners were Mrs. E. McPherson and Margaret Graham.

Canucks Play Hide-and-Seek To Trip Yanks

UTICA, N.Y. (CP)—Don Duguid and his Canadian champions from Winnipeg ran into a United States rink that matched them shot for shot in the world curling championship Thursday night.

So the Canadians changed their strategy and broke up the game with a three-ender that gave them a 10-8 victory, leaving Canada undefeated going into the seventh and final round of the preliminary eight-country round-robin tournament.

Another win by the Canadians would give them a first-place finish and the bye into the final Saturday afternoon against the winner of tonight's semi-final between the second- and third-place finishers.

SCOTS SECOND

Scotland, skipped by Bill Muirhead from Perth, was in second place after six rounds with a 5-1 record while Josef Bjaanaes of Norway was third at 4-2 and Art Tallackson of the United States was tied with Sweden's Tom Schaeffer at 3-3.

The big game Thursday was between Canada and the United States. The Americans, who had played under par to that point, hit their stride on the opening end and matched the Canadians shot for shot through the first nine ends.

Tallackson had an almost perfect record until that point with only one full miss in 18 shots.

So the Canadian rink had a strategy talk and decided to play hide and seek in hopes of taking two.

When the U.S. rink left its first stone of the 10th end just inside the hogline, the Canadains placed one right behind it in front of the teeline.

CLUTTERED FRONT

Then as the Americans tried to get up a shot rock, the Canadians kept cluttering the front of the house before hiding two stones. Duguid guarded a possible U.S. raise with his first stone, Tallackson wrecked on an almost impossible shot and the Canadians drew into the house for a big three-ender.

In the only other close game Thursday night Scotland downed Sweden 9-7 while Norway beat Switzerland 10-5 and France finally reached the victory list with a 14-4 rout of Germany.

In fifth-round games earlier in the day, Sweden defeated Germany 11-6, Scotland edged France 7-6, the U.S. beat Switzerland 14-3 and Canada beat Norway 14-6.

January, Cerrudo Share Early Lead

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Don January, a weathered, 40-year-old veteran and Ron Cerrudo, one of the brightest young stars on the pro tour, fired 68s Thursday and shared the first-round lead in the $100,000 Greater Jacksonville Open golf tournament.

January, who hasn't won since he took the 1967 PGA national championship, and the 25-year-old Cerrudo held a one-stroke lead over a big group at 69, headed by current PGA champion Ray Floyd, the defending title-holder at the tournament.

The others were veteran Jack McGowan, Gardner Dickinson, R. H. Sikes, Bob Mitchell, Don Bies, and Dale Douglass, winner of the Phoenix Open earlier this year.

Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus matched 70s, two under par on the 6943-yard Hidden Hills Country Club course.

South African Gary Player, the other member of golf's Big Three, had a par 72.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg was in the group at 72. Al Balding of Toronto fired 73, Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver 77 and Gary Bowerman of Toronto 78.

STRAIT OF GEORGIA EVENT AT EASTER ... ELK LAKE MEET THIS WEEKEND

Distance Race Attracts Big Entry

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

The surge in winter sailing is reflected in the growing number of racing events. A "classic in the making," the Southern Strait of Georgia race, will probably field close to a hundred entries when the starting gun is fired on Good Friday.

This long-distance event, inaugurated only last year, has already attracted two dozen Seattle area yachts, as well as a strong contingent from the Island and many of Vancouver's finest ocean racers.

Hewett

Most of the competing yachts will also be entered in the Swiftsure, while a few will tackle the Victoria-Maui Race at the end of June. But unlike Swiftsure, the 146-mile course has three marks, rather than one. From the start line off Dundrave Pier in West Vancouver, the fleet will go to the first mark at Entrance Island (off Nanaimo); to Alden Bank (off Orcas Island), and the White Islets (off Sechelt).

The three-day race is open to all yachts in Divisions I, II, III, and IV meeting category II requirements. (This year, for the first time, a proper radar reflector will be mandatory.)

Time limit for the race, which starts at 11:00 a.m. Friday, is 50 hours.

★ ★ ★

For those who don't know a luff from a lubber, this weekend's Elk Lake Regatta is an ideal chance to sample the spirited fun of an organized affair, without actually rounding the racing marks.

While there will be two separate circuits, one for the Toro-Sabot group and one for the planing dinghies, everyone with a sailboat is encouraged to turn out and just sail around. (Or watch from the shoreline, if they are wielding a camera rather than a tiller!)

So if the prospect of "crossing tacks'" with the better sailors intimidates you, take heart from the fact that some of us who are sadly out of practice will likewise be sailing around on the outskirts. (If we can reactivate an ancient El Toro which has long since disintigrated into its several dozen bits and pieces.)

Registration for the Elk Lake Regatta takes place at Hamsterley Park at 12:30 p.m. Saturday, and 9:00 a.m. Sunday; in each case, an hour before the start gun for the first of the three daily races.

Dennis Parsons and Peter Hemphill will man the committee boats.

Ken Harrelson Out for Season

By The Associated Press

Ken Harrelson of Cleveland Indians broke his right leg in an exhibition game against Oakland Athletics Thursday and an Indians' spokesman said the outfielder might possibly miss the entire 1970 baseball season.

Harrelson's injury occurred while he was sliding into second base on a fourth-inning force-out in a game won by the Athletics, 9-0.

"I knew right away it was bad," Harrelson said. "I heard it snap and I saw my foot pointing in the opposite direction."

Harrelson, 28, was obtained from Boston Red Sox last April. He batted .221 with 30 homers and 92 runs batted in.

Ken McMullen slashed a three-run homer and started a triple play in Washington's 8-4 victory over New York Yankees, which snapped a six-game New York win streak. Frank Howard made his spring debute for the Senators, and had one single in three times at bat.

Hank Aaron slammed his sixth homer of the spring while Pat Jarvis scattered three hits in six innings, leading Atlanta Braves to a 2-0 triumph over New York Mets.

Ace right-hander Bob Gibson went seven innings, and Richie Allen drilled a homer in St. Louis Cardinals' 3-1 trimming of Minnesota Twins.

The brothers May did battle at Sarasota, Fla., with Lee slamming two doubles and a single and driving in all three Cincinnati runs, not enough as Chicago White Sox beat the Reds, 7-3, with Carlos knocking in two runs with a double and single.

Willie Crawford's two-run homer in the 10th inning gave Los Angeles Dodgers a 5-3 triumph over Detroit.

Claremont Advances To Finals

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—Salmon Arm Jewels, New Westminster Hyacks and Richmond all boasted 3-0 win-loss records Thursday after two days of the 21st annual British Columbia high school girls basketball tournament.

Salmon Arm, with two wins to its credit from Wednesday, whipped Abbotsford 49-28 as the modified round-robin portion of the tourney wound up. Looking for their sixth straight title, the Jewels were up 24-12 at halftime and collected 15 points from Marilyn Raymond.

New Westminster defeated Prince George 34-28 and then took Queen Elizabeth of Surrey 36-29 in a second game. Richmond beat Claremont of Victoria 44-34.

CLAREMONT IN

The three unbeaten teams today (Friday) join Claremont, Hillside of Vancouver, Mennonite Education Institute of Clearbrook, Penticton and Prince George in the winners' bracket with single knockout play.

In other games Thursday Penticton beat Nelson 28-23; Claremont stopped Prince Rupert 53-15; Creston defeated Abbotsford 26-22; Prince George beat Nanaimo 32-18; M.E.I. took Nelson 18-11; Kamloops downed Prince Rupert 21-20; Hillside dumped Creston 24-21; and Oak Bay whipped Penticton 46-36.

High scorer after the first two days of play was New Westminster's Debbie Phelan, who scored 11 points in the game against Queen Elizabeth for a total of 23 points.

Age of Children 'Saves' Woman

Mrs. Ida May Matheson, 34, of 1214 Carlisle Street, was fined $400 in Victoria court Thursday on a charge of shoplifting.

"The only thing saving you from a jail term is the age of your children," said Judge William Ostler, who has said repeatedly he is determined to put down shoplifting.

Mrs. Matheson stole items to the total value of $5.45 from the Safeway Store at 1153 Esquimalt.

* * *

"This shoplifting has got to cease," Judge Ostler told Mrs. Ann Dietrich, 45, of 2620 Prior Street.

He sentenced her to one day in jail for stealing some barbers' shears from Simpsons-Sears' department store, March 11, and fined her $300 for stealing items worth more than $9 from Cunningham's drug store.

* * *

A young American, Timothy Carson, pleaded guilty to a charge of staying in Canada "by stealth" from Feb. 1 to March 15 this year.

Carson was said to have travelled to Vancouver Dec. 19 and later went to Victoria. He registered under another name after hearing that three draft-dodgers had been handed over to U.S. authorities at the border by the RCMP.

"I figured I would be hassled by them," he said.

Judge Ostler sentenced Carson to 45 days, noting that he is already serving 30 days after a conviction at Campbell River for possession of marijuana.

* * *

Melvin R. Smith, 23, of 1006 Tolmie, was fined $350 for impaired driving and $200 for refusing to take a breath test on Feb. 6.

Gillis Lemay, 26, of no fixed abode, was sent to Riverview mental hospital for treatment for drug addiction.

He pleaded guilty Feb. 23 to a charge of being in possession of marijuana.

Judge Ostler said an order-in-council from the B.C. provincial cabinet directed that Lemay should be sent to Riverview.

DRUG USE FORUM

A public forum on drug use will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. in Gordon Head Junior Secondary School.

It is being arranged by the Saanich Chamber of Commerce in co-operation with Sgt. Bill Chisholm of Saanich police. The public is invited.

A film on drug use will be shown. Questions will be answered by an ex-drug user and a medical doctor.

N.Vietnamese Beseige U.S. Base

SAIGON (Reuters) — North Vietnamese troops besieged a U.S. artillery base for seven hours today, killing 10 American troops and wounding 31 before pulling back, a military spokesman said.

The heavy American casualties followed the deaths of nine Americans Thursday when an armored personnel carrier ran over a mine made from a 250-pound bomb.

Both incidents were in northern South Vietnam.

The spokesman said this morning's attack on the artillery base 18 miles west of Hue began when the North Vietnamese force opened up with rifles, machine-guns and rocket grenades.

Searchers later found 10 North Vietnamese bodies scattered around the outer perimeter of the base, occupied by the 3rd Brigade of the 101st Airborne Division.

WAS NEAR DA NANG

The mine explosion that killed nine Americans took place 27 miles southeast of Da Nang when an armored cavalry squadron of the division and infantry were moving across country looking for guerrillas, the spokesman said.

Viet Cong terrorists exploded two bombs in central Saigon this morning, police sources said.

The first wounded seven civilians, three of them children, when it damaged a barber shop, the sources said.

Ten minutes later the second bomb exploded in a house occupied by American civilians working for a U.S. construction firm. No one was hurt and the house was only lightly damaged.

Fire Spotter Gets Badge

A Fire Honor Badge for helping to suppress a forest fire in the vicinity of Triangle Mountain, has been awarded to Junior Forest Warden Murray Greig, 623 Kelly Road.

Murray is a member of the Metchosin Junior Forest Warden District No. 121.

The award is given to wardens who report or assist with the suppression of forest or bush fires in Canada.

BRONZE MEDAL struck by the The Bay to commemorate its 300th anniversary is turned over to provincial archivist Willard Ireland (right) by Victoria store manager G. J. Kosich. The company struck 100 of the four-inch medals, to be used as gifts for special occasions. It was designed by Toronto sculptor Dora de Pedery-Hunt.

8,200 Sign To Save Peaks

The rugged snow-covered peaks of Mount Arrowsmith are an impressive sight.

Rising majestically from the mountains rimming the smoke-shrouded head of the Alberni Canal, they completely dominate the surrounding countryside.

But the area surrounding the mountain, long a favorite haunt of nature-lovers and hikers, is in danger of being mutilated by expanded logging operations and two young Alberni Valley residents want to do something about it.

PRESENT PETITION

Miles Porter and Linda Webster were in Victoria this week to present a petition to Recreation and Conservation Minister Kenneth Kiernan, asking that the mountain be saved from what they call "exploitation and devastation."

Kiernan told them the matter would be "looked into" as part of an over-all study of Island park areas.

Unable to enlist the support of any outdoors groups or anti-pollution organizations in Port Alberni, simply because there aren't any, the two started cold. They gathered information on the logging operations and circulated a petition asking for suport from the residents of what is essentially a company town. They got 8,200 signatures, with more on the way.

The pair say that, surprisingly enough, many of the signatures came from company employees, loggers and millworkers whose livelihood depends on how many trees are cut down.

The pair propose that a 9,000 acre wilderness park be created in the area around Mt. Arrowsmith, not only to prevent the ugly scars resulting from its being logged off, but also to preserve the wildlife in the area, which will disappear when the chain saws go in.

OPPOSITION MLA RAISES POSSIBILITY

'New CPR Monopoly a Threat'

The Canadian Pacific Railway is trying to dominate the movement of goods in B.C. for the next fifty years by the construction of a products pipeline corridor across the province, an NDP MLA charged Thursday.

As an alternative, Vancouver East MLA Robert Williams suggested that the government build a publicly owned pipeline to handle the transportation of goods.

Williams called the CPR a giant that has dominated B.C. for the last 50 years in transportation, finance and real estate, and that has discriminated against the province.

If the company gets the right to build the pipeline — they have made an application to the government — "they will again be in the driver's seat in a monopoly position," he said.

Coal from near the Alberta border, Williams said, could go into "a peashooter" and end up at Roberts Bank with the use of only five pumping stations.

Williams added the issue was whether CPR would be able to dominate the best corridor across the province. If they got the corridor, they would then be able to set prices on the transportation of goods.

FUNDAMENTAL ISSUE

He asked the government to think of a publicly controlled pipeline as the same as the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, which he termed a corridor to the north. "You're proud of that," he added.

Williams said the pipeline should be a major consideration of the province, and that it was a fundamental issue that would affect the futue of B.C. for decades.

Commercial Transport Minister Frank Richter said no application had been approved yet, and that there were many problems to be considered before anything serious can be done about a pipeline. There were problems in handling things like sulphur and potash, for example, he added.

The financial estimates of the commercial transport department totalling nearly $992,000 were passed after an hour and a half of discussion, and the legislature rose at 11:40 p.m.

'B.C. Not Liable For Seattle Loss'

There is no way that B.C. would be liable to pay Seattle for "millions of dollars" spent on construction of the Ross Dam if the province opted out of an agreement to flood the Skagit Valley, according to opposition spokesman.

Dave Brousson (Lib.—North Vancouver-Capilano) Thursday denied a statement made by Resources Minister Ray Williston Wednesday that the province might have to make good on millions spent by the American city on raising the dam.

The last work on the 475-foot dam was completed in 1949, Brousson pointed out, and the agreement to allow the flooding of 6,000 acres in the Canadian Skagit Valley was signed in 1967.

Brousson made the comments outside the legislature after being ruledout of order by Deputy Speaker Herb Bruch when he tried to answer the minister's statement. Bruch said the point was repetitive as the matter had been discussed Wednesday under another estimate vote.

Williston had said if Seattle did not want to continue with the project that would flood the valley for an annual return to the province of $35,000, he would say "hurrah," but that he did not want to commit the people of the province to repay the "millions of dollars."

Gordon Dowding (NDP — Burnaby-Edmonds) said Thursday it was wrong to say B.C. was liable because the federal government has final authorty over whether the land will be flooded.

Medical Plan Doctor Fees Published

Gross payments to doctors under the Over-All Medical Services Plan in B.C. were published Wednesday and tabled in the legislature by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black.

The information was required to be made public by an order of the provincial cabinet last October, placing the medical plan under the Public Bodies Financial Information Act.

The figures cover gross payments in excess of $500 to doctors, clinics, laboratories and other medical agencies for services under the medical plan and range from the minimum figure to several hundred thousand dollars.

The financial statement of the plan showed an excess of cash totalling $28 million for the nine month period from July 1, 1968 when the plan began to March 31, 1969. The cash was being held as provision for liabilities accrued but as yet unpaid.

The final statement for the first nine months of operation shows $53 million paid and $86 million taken in.

Cash received consisted of $49 million in subscribers' premiums, $21 million federal government payments under the Medical Care Act, $14 million in provincial government payments subsidized premiums for low income persons, and $877,000 in interest on investments.

Salaries and employee benefits for the medical services plan cost $2.1 million and general office expenses, $1.8 million.

The $28 million excess was accounted for by $21 million in accrued but unpaid bills and $7 million in premiums paid in advance.

Health Act Amendments Presented

A bill introduced in the legislature Thursday will enable regional districts to take over the functions of union boards of health on authority from the provincial cabinet.

Amendments to the Health Act will also enable regional boards to appoint a representative to existing union boards of health.

Another amendment will permit the health department to charge for tests and inspection services under the act, a provision expected to tie in with amendments to the Pollution Control Act giving the department powers of enforcement in that field.

New Student Aid Proposed in U.S.

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — President Nixon proposed legislation guaranteeing financial aid to every student from any poor American family who enters college.

Nixon also proposed to Congress the creation of a national student loan association which would raise its own capital through sale of stock.

Under the president's plan, federal grants and subsidized loans will be concentrated on students from low-income families.

Navy Bell-Bottoms Facing Deep-Six

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — News that the Royal Navy may soon shed its trusty bell-bottom trousers in favor of gear more in line with modern needs has raised surprisingly few groans from Britain's tar population despite the legwear's long association with the service.

What rumbles of discontent there have been have come mainly from the old-salt element, notably a retired admiral who once was Britain's first sea lord.

There may be regrets, too, among the girls who traditionally have loved sailors for the quaint-looking uniforms standard with the navy for 113 years.

But first indications are that Royal Navy ratings are glad, on grounds of comfort and practicality, at their prospective adoption of less eye-catching ensembles.

The sailors' reaction contrasted sharply with the hostile reception some of them gave to the recent announcement that their cherished tot of rum will be abolished next September.

Dr. David Owen, undersecretary of the navy, says a survey of 2,000 ratings last year led the navy to decide on trying out new uniforms, probably in 1971.

These outfits will feature, among other innovations, slimmed trousers with vertical creases.

Fleet trials of the uniforms are likely to take about a year to complete, Owen said.

On shore, naval ratings probably will sport uniforms similar to those currently worn by petty officers—double-breasted jackets, slim trousers and collar and tie.

The move, if it materializes on a permanent basis, would be a British counterpart to the Canadian navy's shift from bell-bottom trousers, part of the change to the unified-services uniform now under way in Canada.

An 18-year-old radio electrical mechanic aboard the British frigate Ajax welcomed the likelihood of a new trouser style for the Royal Navy.

CALLED 'AWKWARD'

"Bell bottoms are uncomfortable and awkward to wear," said mechanic Harry Stringer.

However, Lord Fraser of North Cape, a retired admiral of the fleet who was first sea lord from 1948 to 1951, felt differently.

"A pity to change things more than necessary," the 82-year-old Fraser said.

Sir Casper John, a former first sea lord and a son of the late painter Augustus John, remarked on how slowly the navy alters its ways.

John, who saw service in Canada during and after the Second World War, cited the long survival of sea-going institutions like the rum ration and the present uniform.

"The navy's rather a difficult thing to shift," he said. "It's got a lot of headwind against change."

Stockade Riot

MANNHEIM (Reuters) — A riot over living conditions broke out in the U.S. Army prison in this West German city Wednesday, leaving 17 soldiers injured, five of them severely, the U.S. command reported. Informed sources said the soldiers were protesting lack of medical attention, bad food and generally poor living conditions.

Opposition Condemns High Jobless Rate

By KEVIN DOYLE

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons ended the first four days of debate on the federal budget Thursday night after the government defeated easily a Conservative non-confidence motion 109 to 67.

The final two days of the debate are expected to follow the Easter recess, expected to begin Wednesday.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield blasted the government for not providing some tax relief in the March 12 budget. There should be an $85,000,000 tax rebate for those below the poverty line, he said.

Tax relief for the poor and low-income groups has been a major theme of the Conservatives throughout the debate. All opposition parties also have condemned what they describe as the government's acceptance of high unemployment as part of the anti-inflation fight.

CLAIMS CRIMINAL

T. C. Douglas, the New Democratic leader, told the Commons the government has deliberately created high unemployment. This was criminal, he said.

Any government unable to meet the problem of unemployment was unfit to govern. The government should present a program to create jobs within a few days or resign, Mr. Douglas said.

While Finance Minister Edgar Benson promoted the government's fight against inflation, thousands of Canadians were walking the streets looking for jobs, Mr. Douglas said.

Mr. Stanfield said tax relief could have been provided as an interim measure pending an over-all tax reform program by the government. Mr. Benson's claim that his budget contained no tax increases was misleading.

Taxes would increase substantially because inflation had eroded the value of personal tax exemptions on which the poor depended.

In the last few years Canadians had suffered from increased "formal taxation" and subtle inflationary increases, Mr. Stanfield said.

Hyliard Chappell (L—Peel South) devoted his speech to what he said is a need for a reorganization of the Toronto harbor commission so development of the Toronto waterfront could proceed.

Adrian Lambert (Creditiste—Bellechasse) said government dairy policies are defective, another theme that has been used frequently by the opposition.

The government had spent millions to aid western wheat growers, but did nothing to help dairy farmers, Mr. Lambert said.

J. A. Mongrain (L—Trois-Rivieres) suggested the government establish summer camps to employ university students to work on forestry and other projects.

Earlier Thursday, the opposition seized on the latest unemployment figures for a 20-minute attack on the government in the daily question period.

Both Conservatives and New Democrats tried unsuccessfully to have a special debate on unemployment. Figures released earlier showed the 6.5-per-cent rate to be the worst in six years.

Mr. Stanfield asked the prime minister whether he considered this an effective tool in fighting inflation. "Is the prime minister pleased," asked Mr. Stanfield.

"What does the honorable member think," replied Mr. Trudeau.

Mr. Douglas asked whether the government will speed up the housing and vocational school construction in the country to provide more jobs.

Mr. Trudeau said more funds have already been provided by the government to promote house-building.

Marijuana Only Start

TORONTO (CP) — A study of drug use in three Canadian cities shows that high school students who smoke marijuana are likely to use other drugs as well.

Released today by the Addiction Research Foundation, the study of drug use in Toronto, Montreal and Halifax shows that marijuana smokers are 62 times more likely to use LSD than are students who don't smoke marijuana.

It also shows that marijuana smokers are 29 times more likely to use opiates and 24 times more likely to use hallucinogenic drugs.

Use of tranquillizers, glue, stimulants, barbiturates, tobacco and alcohol also was found to be higher among marijuana smokers.

'No Evidence' Union Caused Slowdown

VANCOUVER (CP) — "Not a tittle of evidence" exists that International Typographical Union members put obstacles in the way of Pacific Press Ltd. in producing The Sun and Province newspapers, the lawyer for the ITU said in Appeal court Thursday.

Raymond Cocking, acting for ITU local 226 in appealing an injunction to stop alleged slowdown tactics by the ITU "caused or sanctioned" a work stoppage either.

He also quoted a Province front page editorial printed at the time of the alleged slowdown which said that "a small number" of employees can surreptitously sabotage the operation of a newspaper, "thwarting the majority of our staff."

Justices C. W. Tysoe, A. B. Robertson and J. D. Taggart of the B.C. Court of Appeal adjourned the appeal against the supreme court injunction until this morning.

Contempt proceedings launched by Pacific Press against three mechanical unions, including the ITU, were adjourned earlier this week pending the outcome of the ITU's appeal. Pacific Press claimed the ITU, pressmen and mailers disobeyed the slowdown injunction.

On Tuesday, the ITU brought a supreme court action of its own.

The ITU seeks a declaration that Pacific Press caused a lockout of the union Feb. 15, a declaration that the lockout is illegal, damages for breaches of the acts and court costs.

Pacific Press is allowed until Wednesday to make an appearance in the matter.

Reciter Laughs, Cries, Mocks And Acts Role

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

You say you're going to Expo '70? And while there you'd like to learn something of Japan's culture and traditions? Then certainly you'll want to see the puppet or doll drama. Bunraku the Japanese call it. And that should be easy as Osaka, site of Expo 70, is also the home of bunraku.

When I was in the land of the rising sun I travelled to Osaka specially to see the puppets, in a theatre that was more than 100 years old.

The audience was a different type entirely to that at Kabuki described in my last column. Many older folk were there. Grandparents with the youngest grandchildren and parents with the smallest in the family. There were few teen-agers or young moderns.

★ ★ ★

Bunraku is a combination of three traditional Japanese arts, the reciter, the samisen musician and puppets.

On an elevated platform at the right hand of the stage sat the samisen player and the reciter, dressed in the richly fabricated costumes of the samurai of old Japan.

The puppers were given voices through the reciter who read from a book placed on a raised dais before him. He sang the action of the dolls on stage, spoke their conversational parts, described with much emotion their feelings and the scene before us.

In the peculiar intonation of bunraku, he laughed, cried, mocked, assumed the high soft voice of a woman, spoke with the toothless lips of old age, the roar of the samurai warrior and in the dialect of the country folk.

★ ★ ★

All in the Japanese language, of course, but in such a way I could easily follow the story.

He acted every part too, as he sat back on his heels. Sometimes his face was red and contorted. Perspiration streamed from his forhead but he never stopped to wipe his brow. He was a dramatist, first, last and always.

The face of the samisen player, in comparison, had no expression unless it was what appeared to my western eyes, to be one of boredom. He sat perfectly still, only his hands moving, and twanged out the notes of the accompaniment.

★ ★ ★

The dolls, two-thirds life size were handled by a chief puppeteer dressed in ceremonial robes. He moved the body of the doll and right hand. His first assistant took the left hand and a second assistant, the legs.

As in kabuki, these assistants wore black robes with hoods over their heads supposedly to make them invisible. But if there were five dolls on stage, there would be 15 manipulators.

Perhaps the Japanese didn't see them but I most certainly did.

Head puppeteers always appeared on stage without a hood. The others veiled their faces. This until they mastered the art, which could take anywhere from 10 to 15 years.

★ ★ ★

Bunraku originated in Japan in the 17th century and in 1703 was established in Osaka. Performances are given in that city the year around and units go from there to the other cities and the smaller towns to keep the art alive.

Osaka's main bunraku theatre has a large troupe of puppeteers, reciters and samisen players. When the play is long, they change with each act. The platform on which the reciter and samisen player sit is revolved and immediately another twosome is presented to the audience.

★ ★ ★

I saw young men just starting to learn the three arts of bunraku, also experienced troupers who had been playing their parts for years.

Among these last was an 83-year-old puppeteer, quite deaf but giving a superb demonstration of co-ordination and rhythm. And another man 74, who was still considered one of the best and most popular of the reciters.

So you have kabuki and bunraku. Both individual in presentation, both keeping alive the country's culture and arts and both well worth viewing if you are going to Japan this year.

This Sunday afternoon, commencing at 2, there will be a very interesting conference in Victoria's Red Lion Inn, organized by the youth division of the Greater Victoria and District Safety Council.

★ ★ ★

It will include two workshops, one on defensive driving and the other on lowering the driving age as it affects teenagers, also a seminar on careless and thoughtless driving.

There's a nominal fee of $2 to cover expenses. This includes the afternoon program and a wind-up dinner and entertainment.

Anyone interested and wishing further information may contact the youth division headquarters on Saturday. Telephone number is 385-7241.

CHIEF PUPPETEER IN ACTION

Canada's Working Diplomats Hit by Bad Case of the Blues

By JOHN BEST

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp's recent remark that morale in his department "has not been particularly good" merely confirmed what has been common knowledge here for some time.

But the chief spokesman of working diplomats insists that morale is not as bad as it was a few months ago.

John Sharpe, president of the Professional Association of Foreign Service Officers, gives External Affairs Undersecretary A. E. (Ed) Ritchie a good share of credit for the improvement.

Mr. Ritchie took over the top departmental job last month from Marcel Cadieux after serving as Canadian ambassador in Washington since 1966. He has embarked on a program to improve communications between management and staff.

One of his first acts was to get out a circular to all ranks in the department giving details of the current retrenchment program, made necessary by government austerity measures.

This helped to dispel—if not entirely eliminate—the disquiet and uncertainty generated by the government's announcement of public service spending cuts last August.

The effect of that general announcement, felt by most government departments, was compounded in the case of the external affairs department by two factors:

—The fact that it has relatively few capital programs to cut back on, making it more vulnerable in a personnel sense to an economy wave;

—The fact that Prime Minister Trudeau had publicly questioned the usefulness of some activities of the foreign service, coupled with a feeling that some of Mr. Trudeau's closest advisers had it in for the service.

Late last month, the department disclosed that 63 employees, including 38 diplomatic personnel, had been declared surplus. Of these an undetermined number, unable to find jobs elsewhere in the public service, will be left without work.

This at least cleared the air.

"There aren't rumors any more," says Mr. Sharpe, who works in the department's United Nations division. "The information is on the table. Everybody knows what is happening."

Both Mr. Sharp, the external affairs minister, and Mr. Ritchie are making a "real effort to communicate with people and tell them what's going on."

One change recently inaugurated provides for a yearly system of proficiency ratings, designed to let employees know how their work is judged to be shaping up.

This innovation may have ben given a shove by the case of Allan Millard, a career officer who successfully appealed in the courts against a departmental decision to deny him a promotion and release him from service.

As a gesture of support, PAFSO gave $100 to Mr. Millard.

McLain Loses Furniture

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Tiger pitcher Denny McLain's furniture was seized Wednesday to meet back income taxes of $9,460 that the Internal Revenue Service claims he owes.

An IRS spokesman said the move was "to satisfy an outstanding liability." He said that he does not know how McLain would go about getting the furniture back.

The furniture was taken from the Beverly Hills home that the pitcher rented. A friend of McLain's, Tom Weyland, was living in the home with his family when the furniture was taken.

Weyland had arranged to rent the home while working out a settlement with the landlords, who wanted to evict McLain for non-payment of rent.

Weyland said he was arranging to buy the furniture in the home, before the IRS and the moving van came.

Labor Group Criticizes Police Chief

Police Chief Jack Gregory Wednesday was severely criticized for barring a Victoria radio station from police news sources.

Victoria Labor Council delegates passed an executive recommendation supporting president Roger Stonebanks of Victoria Newspaper Guild, who condemned the chief in a letter Monday for his news blackout against C-FAX. The labor council also commended the guild for opposing the dangerous use of police power.

RIGHT TO SPEAK OUT

VLC secretary-treasurer Larry Ryan said Stonebanks "spoke quite eloquently" in his defence of the public right to know. The press, said Ryan, has the "right to speak out, report the news, comment on the news and raise hell when they want to raise hell."

He said freedom of the press and freedom of the labor movement are synonymous.

The chief's action, which was done without warning and which was based on hearsay, was "almost like a dictator in South America who prohibits an editor from printing an editorial critical of his regime," said Ryan.

Delegate Neil Hindle said the council should ask for a meeting with the mayor to express the feelings of labor about Gregory's abuse of power and discrimination against the radio station, and support given to the chief by the mayor.

MAYOR 'ERRED'

Hindle said the mayor "erred in compounding the situation." Recalling that two years ago Ald. Robert Baird had advocated whipping the hippies out of Centennial Square, Hindle observed, "Baird is looking better everyday. I think we'd better have a talk with the mayor before this thing gets out of hand."

Another delegate reminded the meeting that information was already suppressed at city hall, referring to private council meetings which have been held this year, including one at Imperial Inn, which he said was a form of censorship.

Death Ruling Up To Doctor

LONDON (Reuters) — The decision on whether a potential heart transplant donor is dead should be left to the individual doctor concerned, a committee on medical experts recommended today.

They also recommended that if a transplant is to take place, the recipient should be taken to the donor and not the donor to the recipient.

They questioned whether the wishes of a close relative should ever be overridden, even if there is proof that a potential donor wanted his heart to be transplanted.

These views were expressed in a report, published today, by a special committee on organ transplantation set up by the British joint consultants committee.

The special committee took the view that it is still impossible to be certain on every occasion that death has occurred. It was unanimous in its view that the individual doctor should be left to determine whether a patient is dead.

Turf Condition Report Sought

Victoria lawyer George Jones wants "an immediate investigation and a professional opinion" on the condition of the turf at Royal Athletic Park.

Jones, a rookie member of the city's Recreation and Community Services Committee, says during recent weeks he has received complaints that soccer games scheduled for Athletic were being booked into Macdonald Park to the detriment of rugby players.

In a letter to committee chairman Ald. Percy Frampton the former rugby player and member of the James Bay Athletic Association claims that "rugby players were unceremoniously advised on very short notice that the park (Macdonald) would not be available to them."

CALLED FOR RAIN

Jones said notification of cancellation of the rugby game took place in February following temporary closure of Royal Athletic after days of heavy rain.

He added that while he was concerned at the cavalier treatment of rugby players he was more concerned about closure of the new park.

"It seemed inconceivable to me that in the best winter we have enjoyed for several years, it would be necessary to cancel games at Royal Athletic Park," Jones wrote.

He noted that a year ago the general public had been assured that all problems related to the park were in the past.

"The state that it is in now would not seem to bear this out," Jones said. "Soccer players have advised me that in some instances players have even received travel burns from going right through the turf this season."

NOT UNUSUAL

Parks superintendent Herb Warren said there was nothing unusual in the temporary February closure of the park.

"We had a lot of rain and it just made good sense to move the game out to save the turf being gouged up."

The answer doesn't satisfy Jones who claims to have talked to a number of soccer players who advised him that several of their games were cancelled or when played, played in atrocious conditions.

Director of community services Jack Morgan says it is standard practice to warn anyone booking events into Royal Athletic in January or February that weather could force cancellation.

The Jones protest will be heard at the April meeting of the recreation committee.

Closed-Circuit Outfit Sues Football League

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A closed-circuit television company, charging monopolistic practices, has filed a damage suit against the National Football League, 16 of its teams and the three major television networks.

In its suit in United States District Court, Management Television Systems Inc., of New York, claimed the defendants refused to deal with it for closed-circuit showings of special football games like the Super Bowl.

The suit charges monopolistic practices in violation of the Clayton Antitrust Act.

It claims that in December, 1969, and January, 1970, the defendants "jointly and illegally combined and conspired" to have the board of commissioners of the Port of New Orleans cancel a lease for rental of an auditorium after a deposit was given and the closed-circuit showing of the Super Bowl in the blacked-out city was scheduled.

Viking Kicker Scoring King

NEW YORK (AP) — The toe of Minnesota's Fred Cox earned the Vikings' place-kicker the National Football League scoring crown last season with the most points ever accumulated in the NFL solely by kicking.

Figures released this week show Cox with 121 points. He booted 26 of 37 attempted field goals and was perfect with 43 extra points in as many tries.

Mike Clark of Dallas finished second with 103 points, Bruce Gossett of Los Angeles was third with 102 points and Errol Mann of Detroit had 101 for fourth place.

Alberta Upsets Lemoel Quartet In Legion Play

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — Mel Jordan's Vulcan, Alta. foursome Thursday night pulled off the upset of the Royal Canadian Legion curling championships by downing the previously unbeaten Gil Lemoel rink of Trail, B.C. to force a two-way tie for top spot.

The Vulcan rink cracked an even game with a four in the eighth end to down Lemoel 10-7 and leave the Trail foursome with a win-loss record of 7-1.

Also with a 7-1 record was Ontario's Jess Jesse of Trenton, the youngest rink in the championships, who defeated New Brunswick's Al Miller 13-5. Ontario's only loss was to B.C. 7-6 in the third round.

In other games Thursday night, Saskatchewan beat Newfoundland 11-7, Manitoba whipped winless Nova Scotia 11-6 and Quebec squeezed past Prince Edward Island 6-5.

Earlier Thursday, Lemoel came back from the brink of defeat to edge Ted Bloomer's Winnipeg foursome 9-8 for his seventh straight win.

Lemoel was down 5-3 after six ends but came up with two in the ninth end to go ahead, then stole one in the 10th and Bloomer made a last-rock take-out but rolled out himself to take only one.

In other seventh-round matches, John Pike of Grand Falls, Nfld., beat Jordan 14-6; Tom Hunter of Hudson, Que., took Roger Argue of Rouleau, Sask., 10-9; Nova Scotia's Irv Burgess of Truro dropped a 7-6 decision to Al Miller of Campbellton, N.B.; and Ontario defeated P.E.I. 10-8.

Sweden Seeking Answers On 'Computerized' Health

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Sweden should have some answers by 1972 on the advantages of using computers for records storage and retrieval and other chores in hospital regions of up to 2,000,000 persons.

They may be applicable to Canada which has already displayed some interest in the Swedish experiment, Professor Sixten Abrahamsson said today.

Professor Abrahamsson is the Swedish biochemist who devised the Swedish experiment and the man who piloted federal Health Minister John Munro around it on a tour last year.

He spoke Thursday to a national symposium of the computer in health services at which Mr. Munro said Wednesday the public must be convinced of the merit of harnessing computers to health service systems.

The Swedish experiment involves 10 hospitals in the Stockholm area. By 1975-80 the number is expected to be 40 hospitals with 20,000 in-patient beds plus 2,000,000 out-patients.

All participating hospitals have instantly available a full medical record of anyone previously in hospital and a certain amount of basic data about new patients. This includes such critical information as special sensitivity to drugs, particularly disease conditions such as diabetes and blood grouping records.

It has been in operation for about 18 months and in that period it has become evident that half the acutely-ill patients who appear at the hospitals are already fully identified in the data bank and one-third of them had critical medical data on record. The data is usually vital for saving life in giving emergency treatment.

The data bank on the potential pool of 1,500,000 patients in the Stockholm area is kept up to date partly through the national census which supplies such basics as names, addresses, sex, age and the like.

Professor Abrahamsson said that when the system is operating fully it is hoped to be able to do such things as scheduling hospital resources through the computer so that pressure is taken off over-taxed facilities in one section of the Stockholm district by diverting patients to other hospitals.

He said that nothing has yet occurred to disprove the basic assumption of the system—that it can mean considerable savings over a five-year period.

The hope is that the computer health system can be integrated with a community based social service system and, perhaps, ultimately with the federally-based health insurance program.

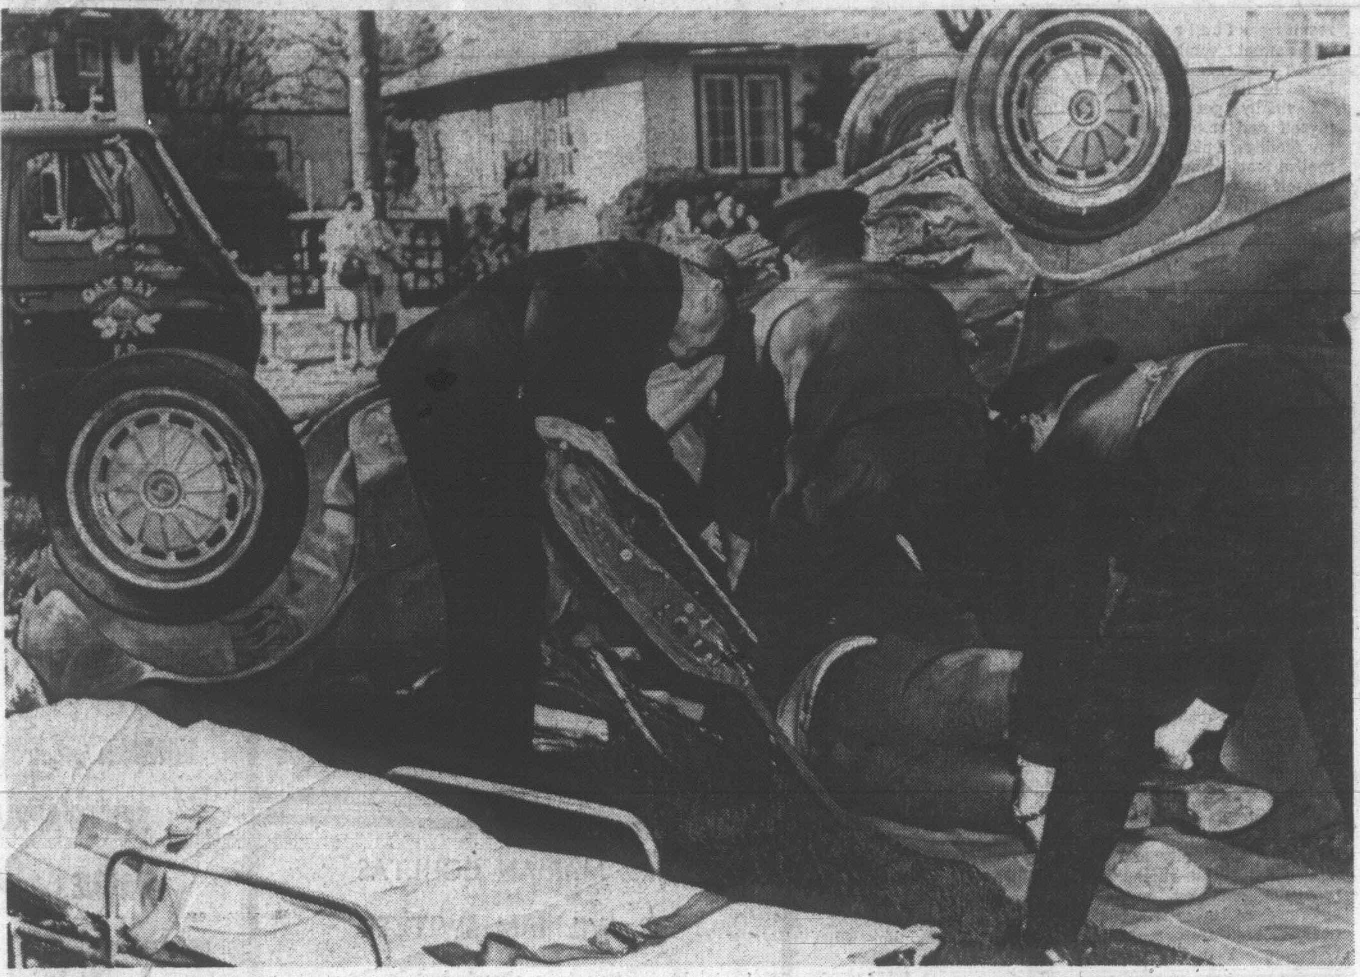
VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, MARCH 20, 1970 —PAGE 25



OAK BAY POLICE pull occupant from small car that overturned at the corner of Beach Drive and Bowker Thursday afternoon after the vehicle swerved and struck a tree. Mrs. Susan Fisher, 1178 Fort, a passenger, was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital where she is in fairly good condition with a broken pelvis. Another passenger, Bob McCutcheon, of Work Point Barracks, suffered minor injuries while the driver, Wayne March, also of Work Point, escaped injury. (Robin Clarke Photo)

'Let's get on with program for extended-care beds,' says Regional Board chairman after another inconclusive meeting with health minister.

CURTIS

Sidetracking Urged For St. Joseph's Expansion Plans

The Capital region's hospital board will be asked to shelve expansion plans for St. Joseph's Hospital for the time being while pushing full speed ahead with adding beds elsewhere.

Yet another top-level huddle between provincial government and regional hospital representatives this morning showed the hang-up on St. Joseph's remains with no sign of a solution in sight.

The continued stalemate has raised again the possibility St. Joseph's Hospital may end up on another site.

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis, who is chairman of the regional hospital board, said following the meeting that all sides are solidly agreed that getting on with the balance of the extended-care bed program is paramount.

"Therefore, my recommendation to the regional district will be to leave the St. Joseph's question in abeyance for the time being and make every effort to speed along with the balance of the 600-bed extended-care program," said Curtis.

Attending today's meeting were Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, regional hospital board, St. Joseph's Hospital and BCHIS officials.

Loffmark continued his opposition to city plans to extend Belleville Street through the St. Ann's Academy property slated for St. Joseph's expansion.

He argues it would prove too costly to the expansion plans and the major traffic artery must go around the site.

$2 Million Job Too Much

The regional hospital board says splitting the property is practical but spending an additional $2 million to circumvent it isn't.

With the St. Ann's property costing $1.5 million, it would mean taxpayers would be billed $3.5 million before one bed is added to St. Joseph's.

Curtis said that if no answer to this conflict presents itself, "the site itself is thrown into some doubt."

Ratepayers approved funds for the extended-care beds by referendum two years ago and 150 beds were earmarked for an expanded St. Joseph's, 150 at Royal Jubilee Hospital, 75 at a new Saanich Peninsula hospital to replace Resthaven, 150 at Gorge Road Hospital and 75 at St. Mary's Priory, Colwood.

Curtis said the general attitude of today's meeting appeared to be "a very clear recognition that the public of this region are extremely concerned over the apparent lack of progress in provision of extended care beds — and that the impasse over the St. Joseph's extended care bed site should not permit the balance of the extended care program to be further delayed."

Extended care beds are essentially for bedridden patients, mostly elderly, who require round-the-clock nursing but not so much doctors' attention. Acute care beds are for patients hospitalized temporarily by illness or for surgery.

Curtis said there is no point considering a referendum to finance acute care beds until the regional hospital board is able to show the extended care program is completed—with beds either in use or under construction.

Manager System Ruled Out

A municipal manager system for Saanich is not being contemplated, Mayor Hugh Curtis said today.

He made the comment after a meeting this week between council and a representative of Kates, Peat Marwick and Company, management consultants undertaking a study of municipal administration.

Asked if there was a decision regarding the municipal manager system, Curtis replied "we are not considering a municipal manager."

There has been speculation that Saanich will move to adopt this system, already employed in Victoria. Ratepayer approval would be necessary to support the change.

Curtis described this week's meeting as "further work between council and one of the consultants leading to eventual decisions on the organization of the municipality and its needs."

It was not known, he said, when a report will be ready.

TRAFFIC INQUEST MONDAY

A coroner's inquest will open Monday to probe the death of a 42-year-old man killed almost instantly when he was hit by a truck Thursday morning on Bay Street near Rock Bay Avenue.

Police said Bela Dallos, 1317 Gladstone, died after he was struck by the truck driven by William Ashton Hodgson, Jr., of 3781 Saanich Road.

Dallos' death is the 10th in the Greater Victoria area this year.

The inquest is to be held at the Law Courts at 7:30 P.M.

News Embargo to End Monday As Three-Way Talks Succeed

The embargo against Radio Station C-FAX's access to city police records, in effect since March 12, will be lifted Monday at 8:30 a.m.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson announced the shortening of the 30-day ban folliwing a meeting Thursday in his office with Chief Jack Gregory and C-FAX president Clare Copeland.

"We discussed the matter quite thoroughly for one hour resulting in the chief lifting the ban as of Monday at 8:30 a.m.," Peterson said.

He said he thought the most significant part was that both parties talked about future relations between the radio station and the police department designed to avoid a similar situation arising again.

Gregory stated there has been a mutual agreement "for future communications on an amicable basis.

"The lines of communication have been established," he added.

The "lines" are telephone lines.

Copeland made it clear that he would be available by phone at any time the chief wished to talk to him.

As to the lifting of the ban on Monday, Copeland said it meant the station still had to suffer the effects of the blackout until it is removed.

NO CHANGE

He emphasized that C-FAX still stood for its rights.

"I still think the chief is wrong, freedom of the press was involved and the chief knows this," he said.

The ban was invoked by Gregory in a letter to Copeland March 10 saying that the radio station's access to police records for newsgathering purposes was curtailed for 30 days because of a broadcast March 7 reporting police action in an incident involving a member of the attorney-general's department. The letter said erroneous and derogatory remarks had been made in the broadcast.

Copeland said after the meeting Thursday these allegations still had not been proved.

Gregory stated in the letter he had not heard the offending broadcast himself but had been informed by persons he considered "most reliable."

Copeland said the question of the right to restrict the news media had not been solved and added there is conflict between a news agency working in an aggressive capacity and a police department administering the law.

Peterson had said in his statement he found the men reasonable during the discussion and each with a legitimate argument; the radio station pursuing an aggressive policy and the police department desiring to maintain law and order.

New Kidney For City Man

A former S. J. Willis Junior Secondary teacher is in good condition at Vancouver General Hospital after undergoing surgery Saturday in which he received a kidney transplanted from a 17-year-old youth killed in a motorcycle accident.

John S. Craddock, 33, of 709 Wains, North Saanich, is believed to be the first person in the Greater Victoria area to be a recipient in a kidney transplant operation.

Dr. Al Ranta of VGH said Craddock will probably be moved out of the intensive care unit this weekend and, if all goes normally, be discharged in three weeks.

●

Craddock was on his way to Royal Jubilee Hospital, where he has been receiving treatments on an artificial kidney machine three times a week, when he was alerted for the operation.

The call came through a paging device, leased from the telephone company, which he has carried since January.

Craddock phoned his wife, who arranged a flight with Victoria Flying Services Ltd. and a taxi to meet him in Vancouver.

The operation was one of three transplants carried out at the weekend.

B.C. Teachers Dissatisfied With Pensions

Dissatisfaction with pensions is already emerging as the dominant issue of the B.C. Teachers' Federation annual meeting 10 days from now.

When 1,000 teachers from all over the province meet at the Hotel Vancouver March 30-April 1, the BCTF pensions committee will present a resolution calling for teacher work-stoppages or "other sanctions" if the profession does not get government guarantees of substantial improvements to pensions legislation next year.

★ ★ ★

The government contributes $281 a year per teacher to the pension fund, as they have since 1961.

Teachers contribute six per cent of their salaries.

Pension committee chairman Tom Hutchinson said teachers are deeply dissatisfied over the situation.

Notice of the resolution was contained in a special issue of the BCTF newsletter which is sent to teachers, school trustees and MLAs.

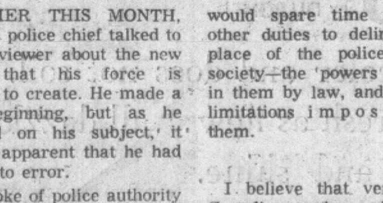
★ ★ ★

Delegates from the Greater Victoria school district will meet Wednesday to discuss how they will vote at the annual meeting on pension debate and other issues.

DEANS MEET HERE

About 30 deans from 14 western Canadian universities met today and Thursday at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel to discuss common problems.

The University of Victoria's dean of arts and science, Dr. John Climenhaga, said topics under discussion included student representation on curriculum committees, transfer of credit, the general science degree, entrance requirements and research.



Arthur Mayse . . .

EARLIER THIS MONTH, Regina's police chief talked to an interviewer about the new image that his force is working to create. He made a good beginning, but as he enlarged on his subject, it became apparent that he had fallen into error.

He spoke of police authority as if the policeman and the law were one and the same.

This dangerous delusion needs correcting, because implicit in it is a threat to the rights and liberties of the individual citizen.

We have heard far too much from the police about police authority in recent years. It's past time, I suggest, that we heard more about the law, and the policeman's role under the law.

I wish, in fact, that the Supreme Court of Canada would spare time from its other duties to delineate the place of the police in our society—the powers invested in them by law, and also the limitations imposed upon them.

I believe that very many Canadians who uphold the law, but wonder increasingly about the police role, would welcome just such a clear and precise statement.

My concern is heightened by the local incident involving radio station C-FAX and Victoria Police Chief Jack Gregory.

A chief constable has formidable powers by virtue of his position, but do these powers include the legal right to cut a recognized news purveyor off from one of its news sources?

The judgment was arbitrary. Very well: police chiefs tend to be arbitrary, and no doubt there are times when they must be so.

But in banning the radio station from a news area, Gregory also banned such portion of the public as receives its news from that station.

This, I suggest, places the matter in the grey area referred to above.

Police power is no substitute for judicial authority.

Attorney-general Peterson has chosen to intercede in the dispute between Police Chief Gregory and the radio station that incurred the chief's ban.

Normally, I'm all in favor of peace-making.

But the attorney-general's action leaves unsettled an issue that badly needs settling.

I wish the matter had gone to the courts, where the law resides, and where a precedent clear beyond misinterpretation might have been established.

I am not in the habit of bleeding whenever little sister radio gets her fingers caught in the gate. But there are disturbing signs that we may be closer to an authoritarian state than we can afford to be.

One of them is an attack on the substance of the law that seems to be renewed whenever chief constables meet in convention.

What's sought is a capsizing of the principle that any man remains innocent in the eyes of the law until he is proved guilty beyond any reasonable doubt.

I find it ominous that enough heads of constabulary to indicate a distinct stratum of thought should seek to transfer the burden of proof to the person charged.

Police impatience with provisions that make a hard job harder is understandable.

However, I do not think that so basic a provision of law should be a matter for police tampering, and it is well for Canadians that such attempts have been received coldly.

Let that reversal take place, and the police state would not be merely a shadow on the horizon. It would have arrived, and we would be stuck with it.

The police have their role. It's an essential one. Without them, this city or any other would become a jungle. That fact was proved to the hilt in Montreal.

At the same time, we can't afford to ignore another fact, which is that police power does have its limits, and that those limits should be very plainly charted.

Baha'i Marks New Year

More than 40,000 New Year parties in about 350 countries and dependencies around the world will be held tonight.

One of them will be at the St. John Ambulance building on Pandora.

The celebrants are Baha'is and, locally, the evening will be spent eating, playing games and dancing.

Mrs. Robert Beattie, 216 Wildwood, explains:

"Saturday will be the first day of the year 127 Baha'i Era of the world's youngest religion. This last month is one of fasting for Baha'is around the world, ending with Naw Ruz' (New Year) tonight."

She adds that the Bahai' calendar consists of 19 months of 19 days with four or five intercalary days between the 18th and 19th months.

The Victoria celebration will feature a pot-luck supper, games and dancing.

Puck Theatrics Cut Arena Loss

Victoria's Memorial Arena—getting a big assist from a good hockey season—cut its losses by $5,000 last year and finished $14,000 better off than expected.

A financial statement shows $12,354 as the amount expended over revenues. In 1968 the annual loss was $17,444.

For the 1969 operation it had been estimated that losses could go as high as $28,000.

Concessions were still the big money-earners, pulling in $75,178 in revenue, some $12,000 more than anticipated.

Revenue from skating sessions was down slightly, just topping the $46,000 mark as compared with $50,000 from skating in 1968.

★ ★ ★

Balancing that drop-off was a 100 per cent increase in revenues from hockey games.

In 1968 hockey generated $10,684. Last year the ticket office reported sales of $20,602.

The McPherson Playhouse also trimmed its losses in 1969.

In 1968 the theatre was subsidized to the extent of $15,826. Last year the expenditures over revenue amounted to $13,069. The expected loss had been $24,416.

Building rentals totalled $46,206 as compared with $42,194 in 1968.

Please Take Care: Too Small for Dare

By PENNY SAVER

"Why don't you try a pair on?" said Mathilda.

"Why don't you?" I replied.

"Obviously, because none of these is my size," she replied.

"Hah, you think I'm any smaller?"

"Well," she said slowly, giving me a long look from head to toe, "you might have a point there."

"I have no points," I replied bitterly. "That's my problem — too much padding."

We were looking at a pair of "wet-look" pants in a store display.

The slinky black material of which they are made actually does resemble a wet slicker (a claim I had never quite believed).

Cut with a flair at the cuff but what looks like a close fit elsewhere, these pants have a line of white top sitiching down the front and around the pocket-flap shaped trim. The zipper closing is in the front.

Even had Mathilda or I the nerve to try a pair on, we couldn't have done so.

A passing salesgirl informed us that the pants came only in sizes nine to 15. We don't qualify — I won't say by how much. We also learned that black is the only color available and the pants cost $13 a pair.

"Now this is my style," said Mathilda as we came to a rack of wide-legged, one piece lounging jumpsuits in cotton.

"Like this?" I asked holding out one with huge cut-outs in the sides, no sleeves and a squared-off neck.

"Yep," she replied, "And this for you."

Her choice was much more modest with puffed elastic sleeves, an elasticized scoop neck (for pulling off the shoulder when one is in a Carmen mood) and elasticized waist.

Mad Moments

These lounge outfits come in brightly patterned cotton and have back zippers. They should wash fairly well. The price is $7 — not bad for a mad moment.

A bit further down the rack we found pant outfits for $11 also, as I remember, in cotton, but in more subdued shades.

The tops have spaghetti straps, a high waist and built-in shaping. The pants have elastic at the waist and are fashionably wide legged.

Another item to remember is cotton mini-length house dresses at $5 and $7. The $5 dresses are no-iron. They have buttons down the front and a sash. They come in bright solid colors.

The $7 dresses are a bit fancier and have zipper fronts. One particularly nice one had ruffes at the hem and the vee neckline and a bright tassel matching the print on the zipper pull.

If you would like to know where Mathilda and I found these clothes, please call 382-3131 between 9 a.m. and 12 noon.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Past Problems

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a man who has been divorced for several years. I am presently going with a woman who has also been divorced, and I am seriously considering marrying her.

She told me that since her divorce she has had numerous men in her life, but I am her first "true love." (She says the others were "mistakes.")

However, when she entertains, she always wants to include one or two of her former lovers in the guest list. She says that inasmuch as this is a "small town," I will be meeting them anyway. I say that if we meet somewhere besides in her home I wouldn't mind so much, but I do not care to have a circle of friends comprised of my wife's ex-lovers.

She is an intelligent woman, and logical most of the time. I would appreciate your views on this. — Mr. Anonymous.

DEAR MR. A Her first mistake was telling you about her previous "mistakes." However, if you intend to marry this woman, let her know that after your marriage you will insist on having for friends, gentlemen with whom she hasn't been so friendly. And if she doesn't see it your way, lose her. She's trouble-deferred.

DEAR ABBY: I have been reading your column for a long time, but you finally printed a letter which touched me so much I had to write to you. It was from a woman who was "hopelessly in love" with her best friend's husband. It would seem from the number of times this situation has appeared in your column, that it's a fairly common problem, and while I agree with your answer that this woman wasn't really looking for advice, but condonement of her activities, I have something to add, and hope that you see fit to print it.

A number of times I have found myself powerfully attracted to men who were considered "off limits," so to speak; one in particular. He was unhappily married with two children. I succumbed to it, feeling as the woman in the letter did, that our love was stronger than we were. The resulting affair was that bitter-sweet combination of stolen moments of bliss, followed by long hours of guilt.

I finally got a hold of myself and tried to analyze my feelings. I slowly came to realize that it wasn't the man himself that attracted me, but the fact that he was "forbidden," and that, when compared with the dull, rather boring aspects of day-to-day living which most of us lead, the intrigue of such an affair seemed so exciting and irresistible. (I proved this to myself on another occasion when a "forbidden" man suddenly became available, and the "magic" quickly disappeared.)

Fortunately I realized this in time to end the affair before anyone was hurt.

I offer my own experience to those who are involved in such an affair, and suggest that they consider the possibility that this could be the motive, rather than "hopeless love."

There are less selfish ways of putting excitement into your life. — Been Through It In Santa Barbara.

DEAR ABBY: An acquaintance of mine is about to give birth. She is married, but the baby is not her husband's. He married her when she was six months along, knowing about her condition, but he decided to forgive and forget. (The baby's real father just took off.)

My question is this. After the baby is born, what should one say to her husband? Would congratulations be appropriate under the circumstances? Or do you think it would be in poor taste? After all, it is common knowledge that he didn't have anything to do with it. — Curious.

DEAR CURIOUS: Congratulations are indeed in order. If not for the achievement, for showing himself to be more of a man than the baby's natural father.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Komosol Fails to Curb Gangs of Vodka Sippers

MOSCOW (UPI) — The country girls who went to Fergana to work in the silk weaving mill found the advantages of their high wages outweighed by terror on the streets, a Soviet newspaper reported.

Komsomalskaya Pravda said at one point the girl workers' dormitory was "under a state of siege" by drunken youths. One particularly vicious gang was said to be led by the secretary of the factory's Young Communist League branch.

Although five members of one gang were arrested, all were later released, the newspaper complained. It attacked the city committee of Komsomol (Communist Youth) for failure to curb the youths.

About 600 young girls go to work in the mill each year and about the same number leave because of conditions there, the article said. They make $165 a month, a relatively high wage.

Between the mill and the women's dorm were nine vodka bars. And girls sometimes had to arm themselves with bricks to protect themselves while walking home, the report said.

Mrs. Nixon Nixes Longette Length

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Msr. Richard Nixon, 58, might become a protester against the new midi fashion.

The first lady has let it be known she does not think "women should be dictated to" by the fashion industry that is bent on lowering the mini hemlines to mid-calf.

The president's wife spent two days in New York last week searching for a new spring wardrobe and the Seventh Avenue designers beseiged her with armloads of the "longette" styles.

Mrs. Nixon had given a preliminary blessing to the new look when Mrs. Georges Pompidou, wife of the French president, was in Washington.

But when she took a look at the styles for herself, she was turned off. She made a concession and bought one midi, as she put it, "just for fun" and only for evening. And as one who is not the first to make a change, she has lowered her hemlines about an inch, to just below the knee.

BLACKIE AND CHICKADEE EXPELLED FROM SCHOOL

When they were fluffy little yellow chickens last September, Blackie the hen and Chickadee the rooster were favorites of Margo McCue's Grade 1 class at View Royal School. But as they grew up problems increased. Blackie laid an egg, but squashed it. Her next egg was retrieved and put away in the science corner on the theory that Blackie was not cut out to be a mother. Then Chickadee fell in love with the sound of his own voice and refused to be quiet in class. It was interesting nature study, but the end was inevitable: Expulsion to Mrs. McCue's garden, where Chickadee can be as noisy as he likes and Blackie may yet figure out what to do with her eggs. Revolution Is Now, Say Panelists

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — Men may be surprised to hear it but marriage is probably doomed, sex roles must go and the women's revolution is under way.

These were ideas presented during a panel discussion on women in the '70s at the 10th annual meeting of the Grocery Products Manufacturers of Canada.

Moderator Judy LaMarsh said it might come as a surprise to the audience of businessmen, but women in growing numbers and to a varying degree are becoming involved in the revolution. Miss LaMarsh is a Niagara Falls lawyer and former secretary of state.

JUDY

Solange Chaput-Roland of Montreal said she has not found it difficult to express herself as a human being, but to be accepted as a political commentator has not been easy. She is author of several books on Quebec.

"There must be a reassessment of a man's point of view toward the woman who is beside him . . . ." she said.

Montreal economist Amy Booth said women's traditional role is now redundant. Women trained to believe that marriage and the sewing circle represent a virtuous way of life are now not so sure.

Marriage and careers may need to be changed every 10 or 15 years, she said. It is ridiculous to expect someone who is 21 to stay married to the same person for 40 years.

Dorothy Curzon, a chartered accountant and radical feminist, supported the idea that all society must change.

"There is an underlying assumption that human beings are male. A woman must be defined as other and her relationship, and lack thereof, to a man is spelled out in Miss or Mrs."

Adrienne Clarkson, Toronto television interviewer, said she feels male-female sterotypes must change. People must be able to act as individuals without hindrance by sex roles imposed on them.

White House Delighted By 'Woman Power' Move

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A national women's organization has set up a "talent bank" to promote more high level female appointees by President Nixon — and the White House says it welcomes the move.

The talent search is being conducted by the national federation of business and professional women's clubs, which has expressed disappointment in the number of women Nixon has placed in policy-level positions.

At a recent meeting, Charles W. Colson, a special counsel to the president, and representatives of the BPW discussed its concern over "underadministration utilization of woman power."

Colson told the women leaders that the White House would be delighted to consider their recommendations and he agreed to be a "focal point" for their suggestions for openings for federal appointments.

The federation has since submitted the names of eight women to Colson for possible appointment to the new, 16-member commission on school finance established by executive order March 3.

So far only the chairman — former defence secretary Neil McElroy — has been named to the panel which will study and report on future revenue needs of elementary and secondary schools.

Colson praised the federation recommendation and said it submitted "a very good group of very qualified women." He added that he was sure some women would be selected to serve on a new commission on population growth created under newly enacted legislation.

The federation particularly lamented the fact that no woman was appointed to the new environmental quality council.

"We look for good people, not women per se," Colson said, and defended the administration's record in picking women for high level posts.

Colson said Nixon had named 26 women to top strata jobs. The ranking appointee is Helen Bentley, chairman of U.S. Maritime Commission.

Others he cited were Patricia Hitt, an assistant HEW secretary, and Eileen Donavan, ambassador to the Barbados.

The White House also gets a hand from the Republican National Committee on suggestions for naming women to big jobs. Two who made their contribution to the party and won their rewards were United States Treasurer Dorothy Elston and Mary Brooks, director of the U.S. mint.

Cafeteria Food Can Too Be Good

EDMONTON (CP) — Institutional food will only be as good as the food director thinks it can be, says the director of a student cafeteria where the kids rave about the good food.

"Too many food directors are complacent and accept the idea that institutional food is institutional food," said Paul Fairbrook, director of food service at the University of the Pacific in Stockton, Calif. "With that kind of attitude, imagine what the food is like."

Mr. Fairbrook believes that institutional food can be great, and he recently visited the University of Alberta to speak at a three-day seminar on food service management to representatives from universities, hospitals, commercial operations and industrial cafeterias.

JOB IS TO BRAG

The food service representatives were all experienced persons, said Mr. Fairbrook.

"My job was to tell everybody to brag about themselves a bit so that everybody will know how good food in a cafeteria can be."

One of the topics discussed at the seminar was how to make food more attractive.

"It's important for every banquet plate to have a garnish," he said. "And how tired everybody is of spiced apple."

He presented his students with a list of 130 garnishes, divided into separate color categories, to spark their imaginations.

"There are so many exciting ways you can make food look better," he said in an interview. Many of these involve ways to serve it more attractively.

Not all the ways of improving food service mean higher costs. In fact, Mr. Fairbrook discussed several ways of keeping quality up and costs down.

He said he was appalled to hear that in some of the institutions in Alberta the food service people had no control of the purchasing. They had to make do with what the purchasing agent bought.

"Convenience foods for the food service operator have been ballyhooed too much," he said. In some instances, better organization of the food service department was better than packaged convenience.

"In many cases all it means is that a certain standard of mediocrity is obtained at a higher cost when that mediocrity is canned and wrapped and bottled and frozen and sold under the guise of being the answer to the restaurant operator's prayer."

MR. AND MRS. DONALD HANCOCK

Idle Voice Roused By Stubborn Love

SEATTLE (AP) — A man who remained mute for 18 months has exercised his vocal chords with marriage vows here in a voice he didn't use until his girl-friend insisted a proposal in writing wasn't good enough.

Donald Hancock, 23, and Susan Martin, 21, were married Monday in a midtown Seattle pawn shop after a silent courtship.

The pawn shop proprietor, Reuben Label, says he's been "best man and godfather for several hundred street people."

Hancock, a native of Illinois, let his voice go idle after he got into a fight with a motorcycle gang in California.

"I got stomped on pretty hard," he said. "I couldn't speak for about three weeks. Then I got out of the hospital, just whispering, and I broke the law and wound up in jail. I guess I decided then I just wouldn't talk any more."

To communicate, he wrote notes, whistled or pointed.

He had met Miss Martin in Idaho several years ago, then again when he came here and found Miss Martin working as a hotel maid. After a courtship, he proposed to her by note.

"Nothing doing," was her reply. "You'll have to propose to me in your own voice."

"It took me about 30 minutes to find my voice and say the proper words," Hancock recalled.

But once he did, he was so excited he rushed to see Label at the pawn shop.

Label said the news was almost enough to knock him out of his chair. He never had heard Hancock's voice.

After he got married Monday, Hancock told about his new job as night desk clerk at the hotel where his wife works.

"If he can stop talking for a minute," said his bride, tapping her foot and smiling, "I'd like to have a word with him."

The instructions for both these afghans are on the leaflet offered this week by May Mac Lean. The afghan on the right is made up of crocheted hexagons and can be made with leftover wool. The other afghan is knitted in strips and features a leaf pattern alternating with strips of a plainer stitch.

KNIT AND CHAT . . . . . . By MAY MAC LEAN

Signs Encourage Knitters

While I was sitting in one of the big London buses, after flying there from Denmark, my attention was caught by an advertisement that struck me as very appropriate.

It said "Don't just sit there — KNIT," and showed a lovely two-piece dress, knit with a yarn from the company sponsoring the ad.

This reminded me that I had brought some knitting on the trip. I had done quite a bit while sitting and listening at the conference in Denmark and now I remembered that in England people think nothing of knitting in buses, subways or trains.

I do so in Montreal, but I know I get a lot of curious glances.

It is surprising how these moments add up, though.

For example, I am making the baby set on my leaflet 9-67 which is begun at the neckline and worked down. It features a leaf-shaped design around the neck on a garter stitch yoke with the main body part in a light, lacey stitch.

As the instructions are for the three-month size only, and I wanted about a nine-month size, I decided to use larger needles.

During the train ride between London and my aunt's home in Bournemouth, I completely finished the bonnet. Despite my taking time out for lunch and a nap I knitted half the jacket during the seven-hour flight back to Canada.

The mail waiting for me on my return included a request from a reader, She asked for the instructions for a scarf in which the stitches are all on one needle, yet are worked in such a way as to make a tube. This is the second time I have been asked this question.

If any reader has these instructions I would appreciate her lending them to me so I could pass the information along in my column.

This week I am offering instructions for two afghans, one knit and the other crocheted.

Three blending shades were used for crocheting the hexagonal pieces of the one shown in the picture, but the materials could just as easily come from your oddment bag, thus putting left over wool to good use. A basic color like black is best for the joining color.

The knitted afghan is made in strips, with alternate panels worked in a lovely leaf design. Instructions for both are on the same leaflet.

To order leaflet No. 6723, send 35 cents in coin or money order (no stamps or personal cheques, please) to May E. Mac Lean, KNIT AND CHAT, care of the Times. Your order must be acccompanied by a stamped, fully addressed return envelope, a long one if possible. Please be sure to state pattern number when ordering and allow two or three weeks for delivery.

Warm Welcome Awaited Canadian

IROQUOIS, Ont. (CP). — Brenda Law went to Ecuador as an exchange student last summer and came back enthusiastic and engaged.

The attractive 17-year-old was the only Canadian among 38 students to be accepted for the 10-week stay in Guayaquil. She says she is not sure why. She applied to International Fellowship Incorporated and left for Ecuador last summer with seven boys and 30 other girls, all from the United States.

"I had no apprehensions until I stepped off the plane in Ecuador. Then I began to wonder, what if they don't like me."

She says her fears were put to rest by the warm welcome she got from the family she was to live with. She became engaged to a 22-year-old member of the family, Gustavo.

"In Ecuador everything centres around the family, and in my home the motto was Always Together. The father is the head of the home and he always plays that role. He remains dignified in everything he does."

BRIDGE THE GAP

Brenda says she thinks this family unity does much to keep a generation gap from developing.

Guayaquil is a seaport city of about 800,000. Brenda attended an all-girl high school there. School instruction was in Spanish, and although she knew none when she arrived, she soon picked up a vocabulary.

"I still have a lot to learn before I can really converse intelligently in Spanish," she says.

She found Ecuador's social system different in many ways.

"Young people are expected to have chaperones on dates, and it's not uncommon for a boy to be expected to take the girl's whole family out for an evening. If the family doesn't go, the teen-agers usually go on group dates.

"Drinking is completely free and open and teen-agers don't have to sneak around if they want a drink. Because there are no restrictions, the teen-agers in Ecuador aren't trying to drink all the time. When drinking is reserved for adults, teen-agers are anxious to prove they're grown up and experiment with liquor.

"Ecuador is based on a class system, and the upper-class people never mingle with the lower class. It's fairly evident everywhere you go. I noticed that the upper class swim in elegant pools while the lower classes swim in the ocean."

MANY NEED WORK

She says there is a lot of unemployment in Ecuador. "Where you normally expect to see one person doing a job, there are four or five persons working in an effort to keep more people employed.

"There's also a lot of prostitution. When I asked one of my adopted brothers why, he said there was so much unemployment the girls had to do something to make money to live.

"Some people want equality for everyone, and communism is becoming really prominent. There were a few riots while I was there."

Brenda wants to go back to Ecuador when she completes Grade 13. She wants to take a secretarial course there.

She and her fiance intend now to be married some time next year.

Pay as You Go on 'Life Cycle Plan'

NEW YORK (UPI) — A leading retail credit executive said here he believes the day will come when newlyweds will be able to set up housekeeping with a lifetime line of government-guaranteed credit.

William H. Blake, executive vice-president of the International Consumer Credit Association, told the associated retail credit men of New York his vision of the future is based on a survey taken among 500 certified credit executives and business leaders.

Black said that what he called the "life cycle plan" would be secured by an insurance policy which would pay off outstanding debt if the husband were disabled or killed.

"Under the life cycle plan, the young couple, upon marriage, would apply and receive from the government a guaranteed certificate of credit," he said.

"This certificate would become the initial basis upon which a long-term credit line could be established at a financial institution of the family's choice."

Labor Fights Cutbacks At Library

Organized labor wants to meet the library board to oppose cut backs in Greater Victoria public library services.

Victoria Labor Council Wednesday supported an executive recommendation to meet ligrary trustees and urge rejection of the Woods-Gordon report advocating operating economies.

The report was described by VLC vice-president Lew Eckford as "another attempt to attack our basic liberties."

Secretary Larry Ryan said the report was commissioned by intermunicipal authorities and was done by "super efficiency experts."

Any reduction of services would not be in the best interests of the public, it was felt.

"The public library is the working man's university. We have a stake in this institution," Ryan said.

There are already inadequacies, such as the lack of certain books, and the report urged $100,000 a year cut in outlays with staff reduction. Ryan said the board should be injecting more resources into library services rather than diluting what is there.

He called the report "anti-intellectual and an insult to the intelligence of those who use the library.

"I hope we can convince the board the recommendations of this report are completely wrong and fallacious."

Operators Eavesdropped on Phone Calls for Fun

By JOHN HANRAHAN

ANNAPOLIS (WP) — A former U.S. telephone company employee testified Thursday that he and other workers at a Baltimore office regularly listened in on the conversations of local prostitutes, members of the Students for a Democratic Society and various anti-war groups, and any others they found interesting.

* * *

Stephen Blumenthal, 21, of West Orange, N.J., a senior at Johns Hopkins University, told the Senate judicial proceedings subcommittee the monitoring of calls was not done maliciously but rather to alleviate "the boredom of an evening."

Bluementhal said he worked part-time as a telephone repair clerk. His duties did not involve using the equipment to cut into any phone lines, but Blumenthal said the procedure was "very easy to learn just by observing."

"Several hundred people work in that building, and any one of them is potentially capable of using that equipment," Blumenthal testified.

* * *

"The plain, cold, hard fact is that in the boredom of the evening, some of the deskmen would cut in on the local chapter of SDS to see what's happening. There are a couple of houses of ill repute in that area and they liked to monitor them, too.

"Occasionally . . . I'd pick up the phone myself. I liked to monitor the whorehouses. I heard about some of the wildest perversions I've ever heard of in my life."

Company regulations forbid this, he said, but were not strictly enforced. Security was so lax, he said, he had no trouble getting into the files of unlisted numbers, containing what he said were the phone numbers of various public officials, including State Attorney General Francis B. Burch and Johns Hopkins University president Lincoln Gordon.

* * *

John Schisler, public relations spokesman for the telephone company in Baltimore, received word of Blumenthal's testimony, incredulously.

"Oh, wonderful," he groaned, during a telephone interview. "The company does have very strict rules protecting the privacy of communications. These rules are reviewed regularly with each and every employee. Any violation results in prompt dismissal of the employee. I think that we're all very fortunate that Steve Blumenthal is no longer with the telephone company."

* * *

He said that there are "any number of federal laws against illegal interception of phone calls," and that employees have been dismissed in the past for listening in illegally on conversations. He could give no exact number, but said one person was fired for such a violation last year.

Blumenthal testified he had not broken any federal law because "I didn't tap the phone—I used regular phone company equipment."

MPs See Jail Changes

By GERARD McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP) — The man in the concrete cell waved at the visiting members of Parliament and shouted through the orange steel door.

Donald Tolmie, Liberal MP for Welland and chairman of the Commons justice committee, tried to understand and finally got the message:

"Are you from the NDP?" the prisoner wanted to know.

Mr. Tolmie grinned and motioned John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) to take over.

A couple of cells away, in the formidable special correctional unit near St. Vincent de Paul prison, Conservative MP Bob McCleave (Halifax-East Hants) met a former constituent.

"I'm your member of Parliament," Mr. McCleave said to the prisoner, whose cell door was open. A guard stood between them.

"What's your problem?"

"Robbery and stabbing," the man said. "I'm in segregation."

Segregation means 23½ hours a day in a windowless cell on which artificial lights shine from 7 a.m. until 11 p.m. Critics of the prison say its set-up may drive some prisoners insane.

SOME SHIELDED

A low, grey, super-security prison, the unit held 86 men as the MPs visited Wednesday. They were told 36 prisoners were there in protective custody.

These were mainly men who had appeared as crown witnesses and would face prison vengeance elsewhere.

The other 56 are among the most dangerous men in Canada. Some border on insanity. Three escaped last summer.

Warden Joseph Page told the MPs guards encourage prisoners to get involved in a program that will lead them to a less-rigid prison.

"We work with courtesy and politeness," Warden Page said. "I think this is the best weapon we have."

"Eighty per cent of them don't know the meaning of the words," a prisoner in protective custody said bitterly.

TESTIFIED FOR CROWN

The prisoner's partner was hanged in 1956 after the prisoner, facing possible execution himself, gave evidence the partner shot a policeman in the back.

This made him a natural target when he was sent to prison in 1965 for armed robbery and he is in the special unit in protective custody.

He says Warden Page, after the escape last summer, all but ended the nightly TV for prisoners. They are allowed to watch only the Wednesday night hockey game now.

The MPs also visited Archambault Institution, a maximum security prison opened last October 14 miles north of Montreal.

The security there is stiff but all 450 cells have windows the prisoners can open. The flat steel bars in the windows look like venetian blind slats.

The MPs were impressed by Archambault's brightness and the facilities in its trades area. Prisoners there can get a certificate from a nearby vocational school if they follow courses in the machine shop.

BAD ONE BETTER

At St. Vincent de Paul, more than a century old, the wild days have gone as Archambault siphons off the overflow, St. Vincent, which held 1,200 prisoners during a 1962 riot, now has about 460.

A sedated group of prisoners from the psychiatric wing was binding Manitoba Gazettes and Ontario Law Reports. Semi-literates were making brooms, and a 21-year-old murderer was slaving over a Grade 3 text as MPs passed through St. Vincent.

Happier was the scene at the Laclerc Institute, a medium security prison for younger offenders. A computer course there is so popular one youth refused release in February until he had completed it.

Three earlier graduates from Leclerc, which is 10 years old, now have jobs with a major airline.

The special correctional unit allows prison officials to get rid of the more troublesome prisoners and put those with potential into Leclerc or Archambault.

Meanwhile, St. Vincent de Paul's reputation as the worst of the 34 federal prisons has faded.

"The women's prison is the worst now," MPs were told by Allen J. MacLeod, the commissioner of penitentiaries.

NOBODY KNEW HIS ACCUSER

WASHINGTON (WP) — A Rutgers University senior from New Brunswick, N.J. came here Wednesday for his trial on disorderly conduct charges arising out of a Feb. 21 demonstration near the Washington Monument.

He never got his day in court.

When Bill Keokosky arrived, he found that his case had been dropped because the police didn't know who had arrested him.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

ANDY WILLIAMS. 7, Channel 8. This is the last first-run show of the season for Andy, so he spotlights the regular members of the cast. The Williams Wierdos get a good play, as do the Osmond Brothers, the Mike Post orchestra and Andy himself.

★ ★ ★

SPECIAL. 7, Channel 12. Horton Hears a Who is based on a children's story by Dr. Seuss. It features Horton, the good-hearted pink elephant.. It's a cute effort, all narrated in verse. Something for the kids, and a few adults, too.

★ ★ ★

JULIA. 7:30, Channel 2. Sugar Ray Robinson, one-time world heavyweight boxing champ, has a featured role in this second show about Julia's stage-struck cousin Sara. Tonight the ambitious cousin's pursuit of fame and fortune leads her onto a movie lot . . . Robinson is featured as an actor.

★ ★ ★

SINGALONG JUBILEE. 9, Channel 2. Folk singer Edith Butler offers California Dreaming. Fred McKenna and the Jubilee Singers do Sam's Place and Bill Langstroth offers The Cat Came Back.

★ ★ ★

MISSION: IMPOSSIBLE. 9:30, Channel 2. The team assembles a theatre of horror and illusion as part of a plot to expose a charlatan. A small duchy is in danger of being taken over by a self-proclaimed mystic who has the ruling duchess in his power.

★ ★ ★

ADVENTURE SPECIAL. 7:30, Channels 7, 12. "Savage Waters—Savage Beast." Armchair adventurers get a special treat in the first half of this adventure hour. Four intrepid swimmers, two men and two women, brave the waters of a French Alpine river, tempting their fates in a stream never traversed by man before. They accomplish a feat which includes climbing down a mountain through a torrential waterfall, swimming through furious rapids, as well as a rock-falling storm. Following their successful jaunt, the program turns to a challenging project of scientist Dr. John Teal, to domesticate a savage animal of the north, the musk ox, and create a new industry, soft musk ox wool, for the needy Eskimo. Tune in and watch him meet the challenge.

LAUGH-IN. 8, Channels 2 and 6. Rowan and Martin welcome Sammy Davis Jr. in the first rerun of the season. Davis is in the spotlight right through, doing celebrity impersonations for Goldie Hawn, helping Arte Johnson in a Russian song-and-dance act, and playing a member of Vegetables Anonymous. Michael Caine, Debbie Reynolds and Tennessee Ernie Ford appear in cameo shots.

HOGAN'S HEROES. 8:30, Channel 7. Chatty, amusing episode. Col. Crittendon, the natty English idiot, parachutes in with men to kidnap a Nazi bigwig, and does everything wrong brilliantly. Numerous talking scenes are essential to savor Col. Crittendon's full flavor, and then comes the action, a kidnapping in a German hospital with Hogan dressed as a surgeon, putting Crittendon out for a spell. Bernard Fox is always a treat as Crittendon, and his fans shouldn't miss him tonight.

★ ★ ★

THE NAME OF THE GAME. 8:30, Channel 5. "Echo of a Nightmare." The storyline is the best thing about this 90-minute play, an unusual asset for this series. A man who has served his time for a kidnapping is released, contacted by Crime Magazine for his story, and hours later, is found dead. The investigation by Robert Stack and Susan St. James uncovers a lot of suspects, a few interesting characters, and a plot that unravels slowly enough to hold your interest. Ricardo Moltalban, Arthur Hill, Andrew Prine, Hoagy Carmichael and Tom Drake head the cast of guest suspects.

★ ★ ★

SPECIAL. 10, Channel 4. "Mission Possible—They Care for a City." First of a timely three-part series examining the problems plaguing our environment and posing the question whether or not a solution can be found in time. The hour focuses primarily on the San Francisco Bay area and the efforts being made by concerned citizen groups and city officials to clean up the polluted waterways and air; construct new city super blocks designed to accommodate the pedestrian; and improve transportation systems. Ecology is very much in the news these days and this documentary reiterates the necessity of listening to the disturbing facts and acting upon them before it is too late.

Planning a Hanging Basket

By HILDA BEASTALL

Just about now some of us begin to think about hanging baskets and how lovely they are all season.

Seeing them displayed every summer on the city lamp standards makes us believe we can do as well, because after all we can give them daily attention right in our own gardens.

Hilda

And so we can. First thing to remember is that the city's flower baskets weigh around 40 pounds each when the soil is damp. This volume of soil is not so difficult to keep in good condition over summer as is a smaller quantity in a smaller basket or other container.

So allow yourself the largest basket you can manage, whether it is the wire kind or a wooden basket, realizing you will be lifting it quite a few times at the beginning of the season while getting the young plants established.

If you plan to raise the plants yourself, decide whether the baskets are to hang in shade all day, half the day, or be in full sun.

Shady basket plants can be tuberous begonias, or less costly ferns and ivies. Trailing lobelia will flower in shade.

For morning sun and afternoon shade, fuchsias will do well. Sunshine all day calls for tough plants like trailing ivy-leaf geraniums, dwarf bedding petunias, dwarf French marigolds. Filler plants like viscaria, scarlet flax and schizanthus will be useful between flowering periods of the other plants.

Seedlings pricked out into the baskets instead of into flats will give the best results, since their roots will not be disturbed at all, and more plants can be put into each basket.

Another system is to prick out into small peat pots which can be fitted into baskets by the end of April.

Should you buy your plant supplies, get them early while still small enough to put either into small pots or direct into the baskets.

The warmth of a greenhouse and its overhead light are a great help in getting basket plants well rooted and growing well. By the end of April they are better off outside in a partially shaded and wind-protected place to get accustomed to cooler nights.

Small baskets, such as hold just one begonia, are quite difficult to keep moist during summer days.

They will need thorough watering each day, and only if the soil is full of humus is there any hope of the moisture being sufficient to last 24 hours.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

Jack Dreyfus, prominent stockbroker and company president, is reputed to be the best gin rummy player in the United States. He is also one of the US's better bridge players, as can be attested to by the deal presented today. He was the South declarer. The deal arose in a rubber-bridge game.

Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	1 ♠	2 ♡	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ♠.

In retrospect, Dreyfus' rebid of hearts is a questionable call. Had he chosen to raise North to game in no-trump, 10 tricks would have been there for the taking. To make 10 tricks at hearts, Dreyfus had to play real well — which he did, thus exonerating himself.

West's opening lead of the spade nine was overtaken by East's 10, after which the king of spades was cashed. To trick three, East led the jack of spades — upon which Dreyfus discarded the duece of diamonds!

West ruffed this trick with the deuce of trumps. He then led the three of diamonds, which was captured by dummy's ace. Trumps were now played, and West's four remaining trumps were gathered in. Declarer then claimed the rest of the tricks.

If declarer had ruffed the third spade lead, he would have gone down. Had South ruffed, West would have had five trumps left, while South had but four. In this case, declarer would eventually have had to lose both a trump and a diamond.

Dreyfus' refusal to ruff might be classified as the "height of pessimism:" it was a safety-play designed to guard against the possession of five trumps by one of the opponents. Actually, since delarer could never avoid the loss of a diamond trick, it cost nothing to discard it on the third spade lead, and thereby preserve South's trump holding.

It should be noted that if East had elected to lead the spade ace (instead of the jack) at trick three, declarer would have fulfilled his contract with ease. He would have ruffed, drawn four trumps, and then cashed clubs. West could ruff whenever he wished, but declarer's two diamond losers would be discarded on dummy's fourth club and the spade queen.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Borden Handled Critical Problems

By BOB BOWMAN

Political historians and commentators sometimes enjoy looking at the list of Canadian prime ministers since Confederation and trying to assess them as great, good, mediocre, unfortunate, or poor. In what category should Sir Robert Borden be placed?

Borden, a Nova Scotia lawyer, became leader of the Conservative party when Sir Wilfred Laurier was at the peak of his power. The task of defeating the Liberals seemed so impossible that Borden wanted to resign but was persuaded to stay on. Then the miracle happened. Through a combination of circumstances that split the Liberal party, the Conservatives won the general election in 1911 and Borden became prime minister. He led Canada through one of the most difficult periods of history, the First World War, the uneasy peace that followed, and the creation of the League of Nations. It was Borden who made the world realize that Canada had become a great, independent nation although still within the British Commonwealth.

During the First World War the problems at home, including conscription, were so severe that Confederation nearly crumbled. At the same time Canada had performed an incredible feat for a nation of 12 million people by sending more than 400,000 men overseas. They fought under British command and Prime Minister Borden was kept almost completely in the dark about the plans that were made for them. Early in 1917 he protested that except for an occasional telegram from Sir Max Aitken (later Lord Beaverbrook) the only information the Canadian government had about war plans was through the daily newspapers.

The British began then to try to provide more information. It was sent by ship in padlocked bags that were heavily weighted so they could be sunk quickly if the ships were in danger of being captured.

Then, on March 20, 1917, Prime Minister Borden was invited to London to attend meetings of military leaders and he was the first Commonwealth leader to attend a meeting of the British cabinet. When the war ended he succeeded, after a hard fight, in having Canada sign the peace treaty as a nation, and also given an independent vote in the League of Nations.

Where should Sir Robert Borden rank in the list of prime ministers?

1910 — Finance Minister Fielding met President Taft of U.S.A. secretly to arrange reciprocity treaty.

1930 — Federal government transferred natural resources to Saskatchewan.

Body's Resistance To Cancer Cells

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

I may have said here before that I have seen a number of people with cancer that looked pretty hopeless, and yet, years later, I found them walking around apparently well. In almost all cases, they had had some treatment, perhaps with surgery plus radiation.

Often a woman will have had a cancerous breast or womb removed, and then she probably had X-ray treatment, but the physician did not expect her to live for more than a few months. When he met her on the street, perhaps five or 10 years later, he wondered what could have happened. Often she said she had gone to a quack, and he had "cured" her. What is more likely is that the surgical and X ray treatment enabled the woman's body to triumph over the cancer cells, not enough perhaps to kill them, but enough to keep them from killing her.

Often in such cases I learn that when the pathologist examined the cancer removed by he surgeon, he saw signs of a low malignancy, in other words, he recognized a type of tumor that grows slowly and scatters late. Another very important factor which he could not measure was the patient's unusually powerful resistance to the growth of cancer cells.

* * *

I learned of such resistance many years ago when I read somewhere that a great surgeon of Chicago, Nicholas Senn, around 1898, while operating on a person with cancer, made a cut in the skin on his own arm, and put a piece of the cancer under the skin and then sewed up the cut. The cancer did not grow.

Since then, this experiment has been performed many times, and usually the cancer did not grow. Only when the experiment was performed on a person dying of cancer, with his resistance largely gone, did the piece of cancer grow.

Many years ago I was much interested when I read an article, written about 1895, telling what happened to many women in a big London hospital, women who had an inoperable cancer and were never operated on. What fascinated me was the fact that some 1 in 20 of those women never died of cancer, but lived on until death came with a heart attack, a stroke, or a pneumonia. I tell here of this tremendous resistance that some people have to cancer growth just so that some of my readers can cling to the hope that they may be the one person in 20 whom a cancer of moderate malignancy can't kill.

* * *

As I said here, a while ago in the last year or two, two big books have been published full of case reports of people who refused to die of a scattered cancer.

fun with figures

By J A H HUNTER

John picked up a photo from the table. "So you have three boys," he said. "What ages?"

"Figure it out." Mike smiled. "Their product is 90, and they add up to the number of this house."

"A coincidence," John commented, jotting down some figures on a scrap of paper. "But I still can't be sure."

That was enough for John. "Okay, now I've got it."

What were those ages?

(Answer Monday)

Thursday's Answer: FREAK was 70953 (odd).

CBC's DURGENS DIVERSIFIES

TORONTO (CP) — In the new Hollywood, says Newfoundland's Gordon Pinsent who has moved there, diversification is the thing.

So the 38-year-old actor, best known to Canadians as Quentin Durgens, MP, from the CBC television series, has suddenly developed some new careers.

He's a writer—two screen-plays set in Newfoundland—a singer, and as of March, "I've become a production company."

Mr. Pinsent came to Toronto to make an episode of Corwin for CBC-TV next season. He plays a university professor, the son of his co-star, Ed Begley.

It's the second show he's made for CBC since the network dropped the popular Durgens series which ran for four seasons. Last month in Montreal he filmed a program for next season's Canadian Short Stories.

His new production company, in partnership with Canadian actor Lawrence Dane, is called Canart. It will be based in Hollywood and was "formed on the strength of my second screen-play, Rowdy Man, which has a strong Newfoundland flavor."

"We're hoping to produce it in Newfoundland, possibly with help from the Canadian Film Development Corporation."

His other screen-play, At the End of Fortune Road, was bought by a production company.

Last spring he finished a movie for Universal, called The Forbin Project.

Mission: Impossible—Govern Italy

ROME (AP) — The Italians have had 30 government crises since 1944. For many, it just means turning off the television earlier than usual.

"It's the same faces, they all play musical chairs."

"They all must eat—eat and rob."

"Too many parties, too many people."

These are some of the complaints of the man in the piazza, who knows an Italian cabinet has an average life span of less than a year. At the crisis time his nightly session with television ends when the late news comes on—nothing on it but politics.

"A government falls, you can't form another one, but everything goes on as before, if not better than before," the Turin newspaper La Stampa, one of the country's most influential, observed.

Italy is in one of the deepest and longest political crises in post-war history. It passed the 40-day mark Thursday when Amintore Fanfani, who has served four times as premier, became the third man to give up efforts to form a new government.

Caretaker Premier Mariano Rumor, who resigned Feb. 7, has ruled by decree.

TRIES AGAIN

He accepted today a request by Italian President Giuseppe Saragat to renew political consultations for the formation of a new government.

Rumor already has tried once and failed to form a new government. He will report back to Saragat Monday.

Italy's largest opinion poll, Doxa, found recently that out of 100 Italians with a high school education, one-third did not know the meaning of "political leader." Slightly more than half knew the meaning of "government coalition."

Only one-third knew how to define the terms "ratify," "motion," "amend," "legislature" and "bill." More than half did not even know the meaning of "government crisis."

Doxa noted that the majority of Italian politicians spoke in euphemisms, obscure terms and bureaucratic jargon, using such expressions as "parallel convergence" or "dissertation of the infrastructures."

Much of the press, television and radio does not bother to translate; day after day it says Italy is entering a "decisive day."

Is Nothing Sacred?

VADUZ (CP) — The tiny principality of Liechtenstein had a new government for the first time in 42 years when Premier Alfred Hilbe took office Wednesday. Higbe's Fatherland Union party won eight of 15 seats in the state legislature in the Feb. 1 general election.

Commuters Mutiny

LONDON (AP) — Mutiny on the bounty of the special Brighton-London Pullman train broke out today, led by such commuters as Sir Laurence Olivier, his wife actress Joan Plowright, actor Sir John Clements and boxing promoter Jack Solomons.

The tempest started when the railway catering service revised the breakfast menu for the daily one-hour trip from the seaside resort to the city.

Olivier tore into the railway for omitting scrambled eggs. Others complained that kippers are no longer available. The actor said he is organizing a petition to set things right.

U.K. Theatre On Last Legs, Says Report

LONDON (CP) — The British theatre, a top tourist attraction in the land of Shakespeare, is virtually "on its last legs" with the exception of a few famous, publicly-subsidized companies, says a report published Thursday by the Arts Council of Great Britain.

The report, product of a 22-member committee of actors, writers and impresaries which spent two years investigating behind the scenes in London and provincial centres, urges an immediate transfusion of funds from public and private sources.

The committee, which includes such figures as impresario Kenneth Tynan, playwright John Mortimer and actor Sir John Clements, urges the immediate setting up of a $650,000 fund to help managements invest in top-class new plays and revivals and feed them to a network of major provincial theatres.

Some $260,000 of this would come from the British taxpayer via the government-sponsored Arts Council.

GRID AND FILM STARS Joe Namath, New York Jets quarterback, and Ann-Margret are shown together as they announce plans for new movie. Namath will play a motorcycle-riding drifter, C. C. Ryder. He is to encounter Ann-Margret during his wanderings. Alan Carr and Roger Smith will produce the cycle epic. (AP Wirephoto.)

Non-Gig Young Part Opens New Field for Gig Young

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "It doesn't matter where your dressing room is, it's what's up there on the screen that counts."

So philosophizes Academy Award contender Gig Young.

He should know. For nearly 30 years he has been applying his considerable talents to movie roles, quite often as the semi-alcoholic friend of the leading man.

Gig Young's career has taken a different turn during the last few months as the result of his performance in They Shoot Horses, Don't They? He plays a non-Gig Young role as an entrepreneur with heart of brass, the hustling promoter of a marathon dance in the depression era in Ocean Park, Calif.

"It's the best part I ever had in movies," says the actor. "It's a part that nobody would ever hire me for but Marty Baum."

Happily, Marty Baum was at one time Gig's agent. Hollywood agents have virtually taken over the studios recently, and Baum became head of film operations for ABC. One of the projects he inherited was They Shoot Horses, Don's They? taken from Horace McCoy's bitter novel of the 1930s.

Another actor had already been put under contract for the role of Rocky, the schlecky boss of the marathon dance. Baum paid off the actor and hired his former client, Young.

As a result of the movie, Young has been flooded with scripts. The roles are varied and he senses omens that he might be able to escape the type-casting that has plagued his film career.

After studying at the Pasadena Playhouse, he landed a contract at Warner Brothers and began playing romantic leads. The war interrupted his career.

"When I got out of the service, I somehow got stuck playing Errol Flynn's brother all the time," he recalls. "Now I was very fond of Errol Flynn, but it's a difficult thing when you're always losing the girl to the leading man."

Young managed to escape by playing an alcoholic in Come Fill the Cup, which provided his first academy nomination, as best supporting actor in 1951.

Festival Opener Draws Praise

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Brian Friel's Lovers, a two-play program, opened the three-day British Columbia regional drama festival Thursday night.

Adjudicator Roberta Dolby of New York termed the Vancouver Little Theatre Association production "a most entertaining evening."

Miss Dolby pointed out several minor flaws in the performance of the two plays, indicating that she may be hard to please throughout the festival, which ends Saturday.

From the evening's first presentation, Winners, Miss Dolby praised Brian Brown, 19, who portrayed a 17-year-old father-and-husband-to-be. Of Kay Topping's performance as a 17-year-old pregnant girl, Miss Dolby said: "he was almost too young in several instances — more like a 14-year-old than a girl of 17."

Miss Dolby termed the second play, Losers, as "very funny, with very real characters and a wonderful ending."

Pam Glass in her role as Hanna, an aging spinster, was the adjudicator's choice for the best performer of the evening.

Miss Dolby praised the actress for "digging so deeply into the character, and letting the funny lines come naturally instead of forcing them on the audience."

Because both plays are by the same author, Miss Dolby said she felt the theatre group could have done a slightly better job of making them relate to each other. However, she said she was generally pleased with the production, saying both stories were well told.

The festival continues tonight with a production of Sean O'Casey's Juno and the Paycock by the North Pacific Players of Prince Rupert.

RENEWABLE CONTRACTS

MONTREAL (CP) — Judy LaMarsh says marriage is no longer going to be a life-long contract "because the bonds that once held a family together are slowly slipping away."

Miss La Marsh, former state secretary in the Pearson government, told a Jewish women's group Wednesday that marriage contracts soon may be drawn up for "five or 10 years" and then reviewed by the partners.

Husband and wife would then decide whether it was worth continuing the marriage.

Police, Firemen Face Arbitration

EDMONTON (CP) — Labor Minister Ray Reierson introduced legislation Thursday in the legislature that will impose compulsory arbitration as a final stage rather than strikes by police and firemen in contract disputes.

Reierson said the legislation was introduced after consultation with municipalities and representatives of the employee associations.

"Under the act their differences must be settled by final and binding arbitration involving a five-man board," he said.

"With the agreement of both parties however the dispute can be referred to a public emergency tribunal which will be established under the new labor act."

The new labor act has not yet been introduced in the legislature.

Reierson emphasized the legislation provides uniform treatment for both the employees and the employers and revokes separate legislation which now covers each group, firemen and police officers.

He said the new act contains the "best features of both existing bills."

Dealers Aided

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan legislature gave first reading Thursday to a bill designed to lessen the financial hardships of farm implement dealers who are forced out of business.

The proposed measure would require manufacturers or wholesalers to accept unused farm implements at full invoice price and unused parts at 85 per cent of the current net price.

Artist Races Pollution

TORONTO (CP) — A senior technician at the Royal Ontario Museum is working against time to make a permanent pictorial record of the fish which are being killed off in polluted waters.

"I agree with pollution experts who give our wildlife a maximum of 30 years unless something is done," says Peter Buershaper, 29.

"And of course man will go down the drain with it."

As an independent artist, he draws fish as soon as possible after they are taken from the water, because their color changes quickly.

He is one of six artists whose wildlife paintings will be shown at the annual meeting of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists in Niagara Falls April 10-12.

As well, he is supplying drawings for the revised version of Fishes of the Atlantic Coast of Canada.

At the museum, he supervises students, takes care of research collections and gathers data for research texts.

Born in Hannover, Germany, Mr. Buershaper was the son of an amateur naturalist. When his family migrated to Western Canada, he became a lab technician at the Calgary aquarium. He has been on staff at the Royal Ontario Museum for eight years.

LAST DITCH STAND SEEN AT LONG CHENG

Thai Troops Enter Laos War

Hanoi Envoy In Vientiane

Times News Services

VIENTIANE, Laos—Thailand today joined the war in Laos against advancing North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao forces which have now pressed to within a mile of the government army base at Long Cheng.

Two battalions of Thai troops were airlifted to Long Cheng in Air America transports, to bolster what appears to be a last-ditch stand against the Communist forces.

Informed sources here say it is the first real entry into the Laos conflict of Thai troops, although advisers from Thailand have been operating here.

Col. Thongphanh, Laotian defence ministry spokesman, continued to deny reports that the American-supported supply base at Sam Thong had fallen. However, other reports indicate there are no government troops inside the base.

Thongphanh also reported government forces have been driven from their last two outposts in Sam Neua Province north of the Plain of Jars.

The threat to Long Cheng, base of Gen. Vang Pao's Meo tribal army, was increased when the North Vietnamese overran three hilltop positions.

The development came as Col. Pradith Thiengtham, a Pathet Lao emissary, arrived in Vientiane from Hanoi carrying a peace proposal to Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma.

CALLS FOR TALKS

Pradith will present the peace plan of Prince Souphanouvong, the titular leader of the pro-communist Pathet Lao. Among other things, it calls for a conference of Laotian factions to seek peace and for the end of United States bombing in Laos. Souphanouvong is a half-brother of Souvanna Phouma.

Laotian air force T-28 bombers made 15 strikes one mile off the eastern end of the Long Cheng airfield after reconnaissance detected a North Vietnamese force of undertermined size moving toward the headquarters of Vang Pao's army of 7,000 Meo Tribesmen, which is trained and advised by about a dozen American personnel.

The Laotian military command reported earlier today that at least 20 government troops have been killed and more than 100 wounded in the North Vietnamese advance this week.

'DON'T RETURN' PRINCE WARNED

PHNOM PENH (AP) — The Cambodian government warned today that it is prepared to use force if Prince Norodom Sihanouk tries to return to power.

"Our army has the right to turn to arms and actions in all forms" if the deposed chief of state "attempts to use the legal authority which he no longer has," said a communique broadcast by Radio Phnom Penh.

The government radio also announced declaration of a "state of danger" and suspension of all constitutional rights for six months.

Sihanouk is still in Peking and reports said he is conferring with members of the Cambodian embassy. There has been no mention of the ouster in the Peking press.

Ottawa Blocks Denison Sale

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Specific new limits on foreign ownership of producing uranium properties were set by the government Thursday, after the head of Canada's largest uranium mine said he plans to go ahead with sale of controlling interest to a United States-controlled corporation.

The limits announced in the Commons by Energy Minister Greene, set a 33 per cent maximum on total foreign ownership of proven productive capacity, and a 10 per cent maximum on holdings by any one foreign interest.

Stephen B. Roman, chairman of Denison Mines which operates the huge Elliot Lake uranium mine, said today "without additional resources, management definitely has to give consideration to closing the mine."

Denison's potential buyer has been Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd., 67.5 per cent of which is owned by Continental Oil Ltd. of Delaware.

At stake is the 25.5 per cent share of Denison now held by Roman Corp. of which Roman is the founder and president.

KEEPS PROMISE

The policy statement by Greene in the Commons was one promised by Prime Minister Trudeau on March 2 when he first told the House of the government's emergency decision to intercede in the sale.

Greene said the new regulations will be effective retroactive to the prime minister's statement.

They will not, however, force present foreign owners who have already held more than the prescribed interest to sell their "surplus" shares, Greene made clear.

The provision will exempt, primarily, Rio Tinto Corp. of London, which holds a 60 per cent interest in Canada's second-largest uranium property, Rio Algom Ltd.

Again, the new regulations will protect foreign companies now engaged in exploration. They will be given a reasonable length of time to demonstrate a commercially-productive mine before the new rules apply to them as well, Greene said.

PROTECT DISCOVERIES

Foreign ownership of new firms seeking uranium will also not be limited. Greene explained that should such a firm discover a mine, it will be permitted to hold a full 33 per cent interest and will be given time to arrange majority Canadian ownership.

Other aspects of the regulations will require foreign owners with more than 50 per cent interest to make any sale to Canadians. Where individual holdings by foreign firms now is less than 50 per cent, their transfer to other foreign investors is permissible.

A further point made by Greene is that the government may choose to bring in special conditions — "maybe even tougher regulations" — to deal with foreign companies which may in fact be an arm of other governments.

Roman said today he could not comment on his next step until the government's action had been thoroughly studied.

He said "many points" were left open in the statement by Greene but "if possible, I definitely will go through with the deal."

Roman called the government's action "arbitrary and discriminatory" and said he was "most concerned that the policy announced should so obviously be aimed at me and the corporations I control."

"The Canadian uranium industry," he said, "faces a very difficult time for three or four years."

Without additional resources of the type he had negotiated with Hudson's Bay, the company would have to consider closing the mine.

"The government knows that — both the federal and provincial government — but they never helped us," he said.

'No Beer' Draws Royal Sneer

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — Prince Philip told embarrassed civic leaders as he and the Queen left the North Island west coast port of New Plymouth today: "I'll always remember it—it's the city with no beer."

The royal couple spent three hours in New Plymouth during their 10-day tour of North Island.

The Queen and Prince Philip were at a civic luncheon at New Plymouth airport when he asked for a glass of beer.

But caterers, whose liquor stocks included everything except beer, said they could not immediately provide any.

After a short delay, they found one bottle in the building and it was served to Prince Philip.

'BRAIN TRANSPLANT NEXT'

PARIS (Reuters) — Dr. Christiaan Barnard, the South African who pioneered heart transplants, said today he is planning to do transplants of the brain.

Dr, Barnard is in Paris with his wife to launch the French version of his autobiography.

'Dictatorial' Control Over Hospitals Hit

The president of the B.C. Hospital's Association, in an angry telegram to Health Minister Ralph Loffmark this morning, condemned proposed "dictatorial" government control of hospitals.

T. C. Marshall, a Vancouver lawyer, was reacting to an amendment to the Hospital Act introduced in the legislature Wednesday which would give a cabinet-appointed administrator exclusive power to run a hospital deemed to have administrative difficulties if the minister considers it in the public interest."

The amendment would also give the cabinet power to appoint at any time a public administrator to manage the affairs of a hospital society or corporation which either owns, operates, is planning or constructing a hospital.

"Conferring additional dictatorial power on minister to suspend board where he disagrees with their policies is not, repeat, not, the most satisfactory or democratic solution," Marshall's telegram to Loffmark says.

"Would appreciate being advised as soon as possible if bill intended as additional advance notice that henceforth all hospitals in province will be gradually taken over by your government."

Hospital boards in B.C. are made up of provincial government, municipal appointees their societies or corporations.

'STARTLING INNOVATIONS'

In a letter to Loffmark last month Marshall drew a bead on proposed bylaws for the new Coquitlam District Hospital, asking the minister to reconsider their "startling innovations."

In that case, he said, there was obviously no hospital society intended beyond the six members who would be on the hospital's board.

And he shot down the draft bylaw reference to the hos-

SEATTLE ARSON HINTED AS BLAZE KILLS 19

SEATTLE (AP) — An early-morning fire at the Ozark Hotel killed at least 19 persons today and Mayor Wes Uhlman said after meeting with fire and police officials that the blaze appeared to have been "intentionally set."

Firemen searching through smoking rubble said others also may have perished in the blaze.

Uhlman said the indication of arson was based on "fires that began almost simultaneously in the hotel's two main stairways." He also said teams of fire department officials had been making night checks of hotels after "receiving infomation from federal sources .... that there was a developing pattern of fire in downtown hotels."

The mayor ordered an immediate investigation to determine what kinds of material were used "to set the fire."

There were 617 arson fires in Seattle last year, fire department officials said.

During today's fire some hotel occupants jumped from windows and others sat on ledges or hung out windows to escape the smoke and flames.

A newspaper man on the scene said a woman crawling across a ledge toward a fire escape slipped and fell to her death.

Fauteux Named Chief Justice

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux of the Supreme Court of Canada today was named Chief Justice of Canada.

Announcement of the appointment was made in the Commons by Solicitor-General George McIlraith who also said that Mr. Justice Bora Laskin of the Supreme Court of Ontario will fill the vacancy created by the retirement Monday of Chief Justice John Robert Cartwright from the nine-member court.

The new chief justice, whose appointment is effective Monday, was named to the Supreme Court in 1949. He has been second in precedence to Chief Justice Cartwright who was appointed before him on the same day. At 70, Mr. Justice Fauteux is five years younger than the man he succeeds.

Mail Slowdown Hits Canada, U.S.

MONTREAL (CP) — Postal service continues behind schedule in this city in the wake of the first meeting of government mediator H. Carl Goldenberg with post office officials and representatives of postal-truck drivers involved in a work slowdown.

Goldenberg said the meeting was "very informative in a friendly atmosphere" and promised to "make my report and recommendations before March 31, probably next week."

With outside help, the post office Thursday managed to deliver mail to all 33 substations, with 23 receiving double loads to make up for an earlier lack of transportation facilities.

Meanwhile, in the United States the letter carriers union said today that its strike in at least 11 states may become nationwide by Monday if Congress does not act on its demands for higher wages.

DESPITE UNEMPLOYMENT—RASMINSKY

'Inflation Fight Must Continue'

OTTAWA (CP) — Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, says Canada should persist with tough credit and spending restraints, despite difficulties such as rising unemployment and regional recessions.

Inflation remains "the foremost economic problem of the country as a whole," the head of the central bank said in his annual report to the government, published Thursday.

Although there has been an encouraging change in the economic climate after more than a year of stringent restrictions on credit and government spending, Rasminsky added: "Policy will not achieve its objective if it is abandoned at the first sign of success, namely as soon as the growth of the economy shows signs of deceleration. . .

"We have no choice but to continue the effort in spite of all the difficulties involved."

The report, which covers the year 1969 but includes comment on developments early this year, is dated Feb. 28. Its publication Thursday coincided with a report of increased Canadian unemployment in February and indications that United States authorities might be relaxing tight-money restraints on credit.

REBUTS ARGUMENT

Attacking suggestions that advocates of continued austerity do not care about people put out of work, Rasminsky said:

"There is not, as sometimes alleged, one group who care about people and their employment and another group who care only about price stability. This is a false antithesis.

"Everyone wants to achieve increases in output, employment and standards of living that are as great as can be managed."

REFLECTIONS

Differences of opinion are largely reflections of different outlooks about timing, he said.

"Some concentrate their attention on the short-run costs of anti-inflationary policies.

"On the other hand, those who stress as I do the importance of price stability believe that we shall have a better chance of maintaining a high rate of growth of employment in the future if care is taken to preserve the purchasing power of money.

PRICES WILL RISE

Tracing efforts to slow down inflation by restricting the supply of money available for spending, Rasminsky said growth of total spending in Canada has slowed down but prices will continue to rise for a while.

Although industrial countries generally have been experiencing inflation, Canada had special problems.

One is proximity to the United States, the major trading partner, where consumer prices increased more rapidly last year than in Canada.

Another result of living next door to the United States is that Canadians base aims for income and living standards on the U.S. example, even though Canadian productivity is at least 20 per cent lower. "This fact sets a real limit on our current living standards which no amount of wishful thinking can remove."

Another Canadian problem in

Youth Give Businessmen Suggestions

TORONTO (CP) — Floor discussion after a panel here on youth and corporate society produced some suggestions how business could improve its image among the young.

The panel was held during the 10th annual meeting of the Grocery Products Manufacturers of Canada.

Youth-oriented panelists told businessmen there is no morality in the profit motive and that a man trapped in the corporate structure cannot act on his own moral standards.

Businessman M. J. Mooney of Toronto replied there is just as much nonsense talked by the younger generation as by the older.

"There are limits to what businessmen can do," he said.

He asked the panelists whether they had any suggestions for action.

James Richardson suggested they take 15 to 25 per cent of profits to use for public good.

Richardson is an economist and an organizer of Rochdale College, a student-run educational institution in Toronto.

"You don't have the courage to take the money and distribute it in any way you think would be meaningful. This is something you could do tomorrow."

N.Y. Exchange Completes Plans For New Site

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Stock Exchange, America's biggest financial market, is going to move to a new site on "made land" in what is now the East River near Manhattan's southern tip.

The city board of estimate unanimously approved a lease Thursday under which the exchange will occupy the new site for 50 years with options for extension up to a total of 99 years.

The plan provides for 7.5 acres of landfill in a riverfront area now taken up by a number of unused piers. The new exchange building will occupy about half the site and the remainder will become a public park.

The cost of the new exchange building is estimated at $155 million. The exchange will pay the city $360,000 in rent while the building is under construction and $1.8 million after it has been completed. In addition, it will pay full real estate taxes of about $6 million a year.

Mail Strike Big Worry To Exchanges

NEW YORK (WP) — The New York financial community faced the possibility that stock exchanges may be forced to close if the postal strike kicked off this week continues.

At its regular meeting Thursday afternoon, the American stock exchange board of governors re-affirmed the power of their top officers — the chairman, vice chairman and president — to close the exchange if the strike creates an emergency situation.

After published reports that the exchanges might be closed, the New York Exchange issued a statement which said the big board "has no present plan to alter its established market hours or requirements concerning clearance and settlement of trades."

Spending Forecast Continues Strong

By HOBART ROWEN

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Nixon administration has confirmed earlier reports by private surveys that business spending for new plant capacity and equipment would continue to impart a strong thrust to the economy this year.

A regular annual estimate by the commerce department and the Securities and Exchange Commission put such expenditures at $83.8 billion, up 10.6 per cent over the 1969 total of $75.6 billion.

If these estimates are eventually proved out, they would simultaneously cast doubt on the possibility of a serious recession, or on the early abatement of inflationary pressures.

The new government estimate is 2.5 per cent above the 8 per cent gain forecast by the Council of Economic Advisers in its January report to Congress.

PICTURE IN REVERSE

But even more importantly, the commerce-SEC survey team drew a picture of capital investment plans that is the exact reverse of what the CEA predicted. Instead of a strong first half and a tapering off of the investment boom in the second six months, the survey shows a spectacular surge in the latter half of the year. It also forecasts "sizable" sales advances for 1970.

There is no indication what effect this report may have had at the Federal Reserve System's session to determine the course of monetary policy.

The consensus among government and non-government economists was that the SEC-commerce study must have given the FED pause. "If I were on that board," said one official, "I wouldn't have accelerated a move toward ease."

Simpsons-Sears Plans Two New Stores in B.C.

TORONTO (CP) — Simpsons-Sears Ltd. of Toronto announced in its annual report plans to build stores in Surrey, near Vancouver, and Kelowna, and to enlarge stores in Quebec City, Thunder Bay, Ont., and Calgary.

A new Toronto headquarters office building is scheduled for occupancy by 1971, and since the report's preparation plans have been announced for a second store in Quebec City, a third store in Winnipeg and a store in Trois-Rivieres, Que.

The company reports profits rose by 5.5 per cent to $15,420,190 in 1968.

The company declared dividends of 48 cents a share in 1969, compared with 40 cents a share the previous year.

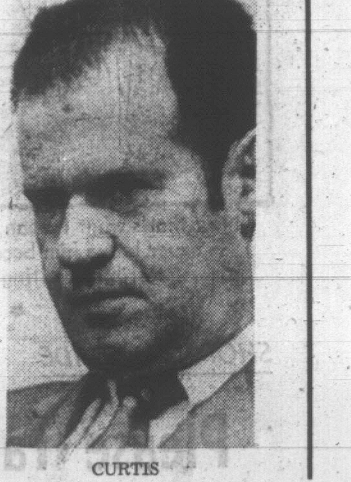
'Let's get on with program for extended-care beds,' says Regional Board chairman after another inconclusive meeting with Health Minister.



CURTIS

Sidetracking Urged For St. Joseph's Expansion Plans

The Capital region's hospital board will be asked to shelve expansion plans for St. Joseph's Hospital for the time being while pushing full speed ahead with adding beds elsewhere.

Yet another top-level huddle between provincial government and regional hospital representatives this morning showed the hang-up on St. Joseph's remains with no sign of a solution in sight.

The continued stalemate has raised again the possibility St. Joseph's Hospital may end up on another site.

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis, who is chairman of the regional hospital board, said following the meeting that all sides are solidly agreed that getting on with the balance of the extended-care bed program is paramount.

"Therefore, my recommendation to the regional district will be to leave the St. Joseph's question in abeyance for the time being and make every effort to speed along with the balance of the 600-bed extended-care program," said Curtis.

Attending today's meeting were Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, regional hospital board, St. Joseph's Hospital and BCHIS officials.

Loffmark continued his opposition to city plans to extend Belleville Street through the St. Ann's Academy property slated for St. Joseph's expansion.

He argues it would prove too costly to the expansion plans and the major traffic artery must go around the site.

$2 Million Job Too Much

The regional hospital board says splitting the property is practical but spending an additional $2 million to circumvent it isn't.

With the St. Ann's property costing $1.5 million, it would mean taxpayers would be billed $3.5 million before one bed is added to St. Joseph's.

Curtis said that if no answer to this conflict presents itself, "the site itself is thrown into some doubt."

Ratepayers approved funds for the extended-care beds by referendum two years ago and 150 beds were earmarked for an expanded St. Joseph's, 150 at Royal Jubilee Hospital, 75 at a new Saanich Peninsula hospital to replace Resthaven, 150 at Gorge Road Hospital and 75 at St. Mary's Priory, Colwood.

Curtis said the general attitude of today's meeting appeared to be "a very clear recognition that the public of this region are extremely concerned over the apparent lack of progress in provision of extended care beds — and that the impasse over the St. Joseph's extended care bed site should not permit the balance of the extended care program to be further delayed."

Extended care beds are essentially for bedridden patients, mostly elderly, who require round-the-clock nursing but not so much doctors' attention. Acute care beds are for patients hospitalized temporarily by illness or for surgery.

Curtis said there is no point considering a referendum to finance acute care beds until the regional hospital board is able to show the extended care program is completed—with beds either in use or under construction.

Manager System Ruled Out

A municipal manager system for Saanich is not being contemplated, Mayor Hugh Curtis said today.

He made the comment after a meeting this week between council and a representative of Kates, Peat Marwick and Company, management consultants undertaking a study of municipal administration.

Asked if there was a decision regarding the municipal manager system, Curtis replied "we are not considering a municipal manager."

There has been speculation that Saanich will move to adopt this system, already employed in Victoria. Ratepayer approval would be necessary to support the change.

Curtis described this week's meeting as "further work between council and one of the consultants leading to eventual decisions on the organization of the municipality and its needs."

It was not known, he said, when a report will be ready.

TRAFFIC INQUEST MONDAY

A coroner's inquest will open Monday to probe the death of a 42-year-old man killed almost instantly when he was hit by a truck Thursday morning on Bay Street near Rock Bay Avenue.

Police said Bela Dallos, 1317 Gladstone, died after he was struck by the truck driven by William Ashton Hodgson, Jr., of 3781 Saanich Road.

Dallos' death is the 10th in the Greater Victoria area this year.

The inquest is to be held at the Law Courts at 7:30 P.M.

News Embargo to End Monday As Three-Way Talks Succeed

The embargo against Radio Station C-FAX's access to city police records, in effect since March 12, will be lifted Monday at 8:30 a.m.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson announced the shortening of the 30-day ban folliwing a meeting Thursday in his office with Chief Jack Gregory and C-FAX president Clare Copeland.

"We discussed the matter quite thoroughly for one hour resulting in the chief lifting the ban as of Monday at 8:30 a.m.," Peterson said.

He said he though the most significant part was that both parties talked about future relations between the radio station and the police department designed to avoid a similar situation arising again.

Gregory stated there has been a mutual agreement "for future communications on an amicable basis.

"The lines of communication have been established," he added.

The "lines" are telephone lines.

Copeland made it clear that he would be available by phone at any time the chief wished to talk to him.

As to the lifting of the ban on Monday, Copeland said it meant the station still had to suffer the effects of the blackout until it is removed.

NO CHANGE

He emphasized that C-FAX still stood for its rights.

"I still think the chief is wrong, freedom of the press was involved and the chief knows this," he said.

The ban was invoked by Gregory in a letter to Copeland March 10 saying that the radio station's access to police records for news-gathering purposes was curtailed for 30 days because of a broadcast March 7 reporting police action in an incident involving a member of the attorney-general's department. The letter said erroneous and derogatory remarks had been made in the broadcast.

Copeland said after the meeting Thursday these allegations still had not been problem.

Gregory stated in the letter he had not heard the offending broadcast himself but had been informed by persons he considered "most reliable."

Copeland said the question of the ribht to restrict the news media had not been solved and added there is conflict between a news agency working in an aggressive capacity and a police department administering the law.

Peterson had said in his statement he found the men reasonable during the discussion and each with a legitimate argument; the radio station pursuing an aggressive policy and the police department desiring to maintain law and order.

New Kidney For City Man

A former S. J. Willis Junior Secondary teacher is in good condition at Vancouver General Hospital after undergoing surgery Saturday in which he received a kidney transplanted from a 17-year-old youth killed in a motorcycle accident.

John S. Craddock, 33, of 709 Wains, North Saanich, is believed to be the first person in the Greater Victoria area to be a recipient in a kidney transplant operation.

Dr. Al Ranta of VGH said Craddock will probably be moved out of the intensive care unit this weekend and, if all goes normally, be discharged in three weeks.

●

Craddock was on his way to Royal Jubilee Hospital, where he has been receiving treatments on an artificial kidney machine three times a week, when he was alerted for the operation.

The call came through a paging device, leased from the telephone company, which he has carried since January.

Craddock phoned his wife, who arranged a flight with Victoria Flying Services Ltd, and a taxi to meet him in Vancouver.

The operation was one of three transplants carried out at the weekend.

B.C. Teachers Dissatisfied With Pensions

Dissatisfaction with pensions is already emerging as the dominant issue of the B.C. Teachers' Federation annual meeting 10 days from now.

When 1,000 teachers from all over the province meet at the Hotel Vancouver March 30-April 1, the BCTF pensions committee will present a resolution calling for teacher work-stoppages or "other sanctions" if the profession does not get government guarantees of substantial improvements to pensions legislation next year.

★ ★ ★

The government contributes $281 a year per teacher to the pension fund, as they have since 1961.

Teachers contribute six per cent of their salaries.

Pension committee chairman Tom Hutchinson said teachers are deeply dissatisfied over the situation.

Notice of the resolution was contained in a special issue of the BCTF newsletter which is sent to teachers, school trustees and MLAs.

★ ★ ★

Delegates from the Greater Victoria school district will meet Wednesday to discuss how they will vote at the annual meeting on pension debate and other issues.

DEANS MEET HERE

About 30 deans from 14 western Canadian universities met today and Thursday at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel to discuss common problems.

The University of Victoria's dean of arts and science, Dr. John Climenhaga, said topics under discussion included student representation on curriculum committees, transfer of credit, the general science degree, entrance requirements and research.

Baha'i Marks New Year

More than 40,000 New Year parties in about 350 countries and dependencies around the world will be held tonight.

One of them will be at the St. John Ambulance building on Pandora.

The celebrants are Baha'is and, locally, the evening will be spent eating, playing games and dancing.

Mrs. Robert Beattie, 216 Wildwood, explains:

"Saturday will be the first day of the year 127 Baha'i Era of the world's youngest religion. This last month is one of fasting for Baha'is around the world, ending with Naw Ruz' (New Year) tonight."

She adds that the Bahai' calendar consists of 19 months of 19 days with four or five intercalary days between the 18th and 19th months.

The Victoria celebration will feature a pot-luck supper, games and dancing.

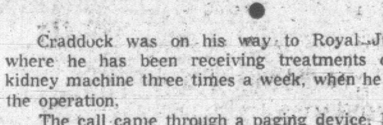
Q. Could you give me the address of the head office of the United Nations?—M.F.

A. Write: United Nations, New York, N.Y., and specify which UN agency you would like your letter to go to.



Arthur Mayse . . .

EARLIER THIS MONTH, Regina's police chief talked to an interviewer about the new image that his force is working to create. He made a good beginning, but as he enlarged on his subject, it became apparent that he had fallen into error.

He spoke of police authority as if the policeman and the law were one and the same.

This dangerous delusion needs correcting, because implicit in it is a threat to the rights and liberties of the individual citizen.

We have heard far too much from the police about police authority in recent years. It's past time, I suggest, that we heard more about the law, and the policeman's role under the law.

I wish, in fact, that the Supreme Court of Canada would spare time from its other duties to delineate the place of the police in our society—the powers invested in them by law, and also the limitations imposed upon them.

I believe that very many Canadians who uphold the law, but wonder increasingly about the police role, would welcome just such a clear and precise statement.

My concern is heightened by the local incident involving radio station C-FAX and Victoria Police Chief Jack Gregory.

A chief constable has formidable powers by virtue of his position, but do these powers include the legal right to cut a recognized news purveyor off from one of its news sources?

The judgment was arbitrary. Very well: police chiefs tend to be arbitrary, and no doubt there are times when they must be so.

But in banning the radio station from a news area, Gregory also banned such portion of the public as receives its news from that station.

This, I suggest, places the matter in the grey area referred to above.

Police power is no substitute for judicial authority.

Attorney-general Peterson has chosen to intercede in the dispute between Police Chief Gregory and the radio station that incurred the chief's ban.

Normally, I'm all in favor of peace-making.

But the attorney-general's action leaves unsettled an issue that badly needs settling.

I wish the matter had gone to the courts, where the law resides, and where a precedent clear beyond misinterpretation might have been established.

I am not in the habit of bleeding whenever little sister radio gets her fingers caught in the gate. But there are disturbing signs that we may be closer to an authoritarian state than we can afford to be.

One of them is an attack on the substance of the law that seems to be renewed whenever chief constables meet in convention.

What's sought is a capsizing of the principle that any man remains innocent in the eyes of the law until he is proved guilty beyond any reasonable doubt.

I find it ominous that enough heads of constabulary to indicate a distinct stratum of thought should seek to transfer the burden of proof to the person charged.

Police impatience with provisions that make a hard job harder is understandable.

However, I do not think that so basic a provision of law should be a matter for police tampering, and it is well for Canadians that such attempts have been received coldly.

Let that reversal take place, and the police state would not be merely a shadow on the horizon. It would have arrived, and we would be stuck with it.

The police have their role. It's an essential one. Without them, this city or any other would become a jungle. That fact was proved to the hilt in Montreal.

At the same time, we can't afford to ignore another fact, which is that police power does have its limits, and that those limits should be very plainly charted.

Puck Theatrics Cut Arena Loss

Victoria's Memorial Arena—getting a big assist from a good hockey season—cut its losses by $5,000 last year and finished $14,000 better off than expected.

A financial statement shows $12,354 as the amount expended over revenues. In 1968 the annual loss was $17,444.

For the 1969 operation it had been estimated that losses could go as high as $28,000.

Concessions were still the big money-earners, pulling in $75,178 in revenue, some $12,000 more than anticipated.

Revenue from skating sessions was down slightly, just topping the $46,000 mark as compared with $50,000 from skating in 1968.

★ ★ ★

Balancing that drop-off was a 100 per cent increase in revenues from hockey games.

In 1968 hockey generated $10,684. Last year the ticket office reported sales of $20,602.

The McPherson Playhouse also trimmed its losses in 1969.

In 1968 the theatre was subsidized to the extent of $15,826. Last year the expenditures over revenue amounted to $13,069. The expected loss had been $24,416.

Building rentals totalled $46,206 as compared with $42,194 in 1968.

LAST-DITCH STAND AGAINST N. VIETS

Thais Enter Laos War

Hanoi Envoy In Vientiane

Times News Services

VIENTIANE, Laos—Thailand today joined the war in Laos against advancing North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao forces which have now pressed to within a mile of the government army base at Long Cheng.

Two battalions of Thai troops were airlifted to Long Cheng in Air America transports, to bolster what appears to be a last-ditch stand against the Communist forces.

Informed sources here say it is the first real entry into the Laos conflict of Thai troops, although advisers from Thailand have been operating here.

Col. Thongphanh, Laotian defence ministry spokesman, continued to deny reports that the American-supported supply base at Sam Thong had fallen. However, other reports indicate there are no government troops inside the base.

Thongphanh also reported government forces have been driven from their last two outposts in Sam Neua Province north of the Plain of Jars.

The threat to Long Cheng, base of Gen. Vang Pao's Meo tribal army, was increased when the North Vietnamese overran three hilltop positions.

The development came as Col. Pradith Thiengtham, a Pathet Lao emissary, arrived in Vientiane from Hanoi carrying a peace proposal to Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma.

CALLS FOR TALKS

Pradith will present the peace plan of Prince Souphanouvong, the titular leader of the pro-communist Pathet Lao. Among other things, it calls for a conference of Laotian factions to seek peace and for the end of United States bombing in Laos. Souphanouvong is a half-brother of Souvanna Phouma.

Laotian air force T-28 bombers made 15 strikes one mile off the eastern end of the Long Cheng airfield after reconnaissance detected a North Vietnamese force of undetermined size moving toward the headquarters of Vang Pao's army of 7,000 Meo Tribesmen, which is trained and advised by about a dozen American personnel.

The Laotian military command reported earlier today that at least 20 government troops have been killed and more than 100 wounded in the North Vietnamese advance this week.

Fauteux Named Chief Justice

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux of the Supreme Court of Canada today was named Chief Justice of Canada.

Announcement of the appointment was made in the Commons by Solicitor-General George McIlraith who also said that Mr. Justice Bora Laskin of the Supreme Court of Ontario will fill the vacancy created by the retirement Monday of Chief Justice John Robert Cartwright from the nine-member court.

The new chief justice, whose appointment is effective Monday, was named to the Supreme Court in 1949. He has been second in precedence to Chief Justice Cartwright who was appointed before him on the same day. At 70, Mr. Justice Fauteux is five years younger than the man he succeeds.

Mail Slowdown Hits Canada, U.S.

MONTREAL (CP) — Postal service continues behind schedule in this city in the wake of the first meeting of government mediator H. Carl Goldenberg with post office officials and representatives of postal-truck drivers involved in a work slowdown.

Goldenberg said the meeting was "very informative in a friendly atmosphere" and promised to "make my report and recommendations before March 31, probably next week."

With outside help, the post office Thursday managed to deliver mail to all 33 substations, with 23 receiving double loads to make up for an earlier lack of transportation facilities.

Meanwhile, the U.S. government today halted a spreading mail strike by agreeing to re-open negotiations. Postmen had walked out in 11 states. See also Page 6.

'DON'T RETURN' PRINCE WARNED

PHNOM PENH (AP) — The Cambodian government warned today that it is prepared to use force if Prince Norodom Sihanouk tries to return to power.

"Our army has the right to turn to arms and actions in all forms" if the deposed chief of state "attempts to use the legal authority which he no longer has," said a communique broadcast by Radio Phnom Penh.

The government radio also announced declaration of a "state of danger" and suspension of all constitutional rights for six months.

Sihanouk is still in Peking and reports said he is conferring with members of the Cambodian embassy. There has been no mention of the ouster in the Peking press.

Ottawa Blocks Denison Sale

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Specific new limits on foreign ownership of producing uranium properties were set by the government Thursday, after the head of Canada's largest uranium mine said he plans to go ahead with sale of controlling interest to a United States-controlled corporation.

The limits announced in the Commons by Energy Minister Greene, set a 33 per cent maximum on total foreign ownership of proven productive capacity, and a 10 per cent maximum on holdings by any one foreign interest.

Stephen B. Roman, chairman of Denison Mines which operates the huge Elliot Lake uranium mine, said today "without additional resources, management definitely has to give consideration to closing the mine."

Denison's potential buyer has been Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd., 67.5 per cent of which is owned by Continental Oil Ltd. of Delaware.

At stake is the 25.5 per cent share of Denison now held by Roman Corp. of which Roman is the founder and president.

KEEPS PROMISE

The policy statement by Greene in the Commons was one promised by Prime Minister Trudeau on March 2 when he first told the House of the government's emergency decision to intercede in the sale.

Greene said the new regulations will be effective retroactive to the prime minister's statement.

They will not, however, force present foreign owners who have already held more than the prescribed interest to sell their "surplus" shares, Greene made clear.

The provision will exempt, primarily, Rio Tinto Corp. of London, which holds a 60 per cent interest in Canada's second-largest uranium property, Rio Algom Ltd.

Again, the new regulations will protect foreign companies now engaged in exploration. They will be given a reasonable length of time to demonstrate a commercially-productive mine before the new rules apply to them as well, Greene said.

PROTECT DISCOVERIES

Foreign ownership of new firms seeking uranium will also not be limited. Greene explained that should such a firm discover a mine, it will be permitted to hold a full 33 per cent interest and will be given time to arrange majority Canadian ownership.

Other aspects of the regulations will require foreign owners with more than 50 per cent interest to make any sale to Canadians. Where individual holdings by foreign firms now is less than 50 per cent, their transfer to other foreign investors is permissible.

A further point made by Greene is that the government may choose to bring in special conditions — "maybe even tougher regulations" — to deal with foreign companies which may in fact be an arm of other governments.

Roman said today he could not comment on his next step until the government's action had been thoroughly studied.

He said "many points" were left open in the statement by Greene but "if possible, I definitely will go through with the deal."

Roman called the government's action "arbitrary and discriminatory" and said he was "most concerned that the policy announced should so obviously be aimed at me and the corporations I control."

"The Canadian uranium industry," he said, "faces a very difficult time for three or four years."

Without additional resources of the type he had negotiated with Hudson's Bay, the company would have to consider closing the mine.

"The government knows that — both the federal and provincial government — but they never helped us," he said.

'No Beer' Draws Royal Sneer

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — Prince Philip told embarrassed civic leaders as he and the Queen left the North Island west coast port of New Plymouth today: "I'll always remember it—it's the city with no beer."

The royal couple spent three hours in New Plymouth during their 10-day tour of North Island.

The Queen and Prince Philip were at a civic luncheon at New Plymouth airport when he asked for a glass of beer.

But caterers, whose liquor stocks included everything except beer, said they could not immediately provide any.

After a short delay, they found one bottle in the building and it was served to Prince Philip.

'BRAIN TRANSPLANT NEXT'

PARIS (Reuters) — Dr. Christiaan Barnard, the South African who pioneered heart transplants, said today he is planning to do transplants of the brain.

In an interview with the newspaper Parisien Libre, Dr. Barnard said: "Heart transplants have become a job for immunologists. My goal now is a brain transplant."

Dr, Barnard is in Paris with his wife to launch the French version of his autobiography.

'Dictatorial' Control Over Hospitals Hit

The president of the B.C. Hospital Association, in an angry telegram to Health Minister Ralph Loffmark this morning, condemned proposed "dictatorial" government control of hospitals.

T. C. Marshall, a Vancouver lawyer, was reacting to an amendment to the Hospital Act introduced in the legislature Wednesday which would give a cabinet-appointed administrator exclusive power to run a hospital deemed to have administrative difficulties if the minister considers it in the public interest."

The amendment would also give the cabinet power to appoint at any time a public administrator to manage the affairs of a hospital society or corporation which either owns, operates, is planning or constructing a hospital.

"Conferring additional dictatorial power on minister to suspend board where he disagrees with their policies is not, repeat, not, the most satisfactory or democratic solution," Marshall's telegram to Loffmark says.

"Would appreciate being advised as soon as possible if bill intended as additional advance notice that henceforth all hospitals in province will be gradually taken over by your government."

Hospital boards in B.C. are made up of provincial government, municipal appointees their societies or corporations.

'STARTLING INNOVATIONS'

In a letter to Loffmark last month Marshall drew a bead on proposed bylaws for the new Coquitlam District Hospital, asking the minister to reconsider their "startling innovations."

In that case, he said, there was obviously no hospital society intended beyond the six members who would be on the hospital's board.

And he shot down the draft bylaw reference to the hos-

SEATTLE ARSON HINTED AS BLAZE KILLS 20

SEATTLE (AP) — An early-morning fire at the Ozark Hotel killed at least 20 persons today and Mayor Wes Uhlman said after meeting with fire and police officials that the blaze appeared to have been "intentionally set."

Firemen searching through smoking rubble said others also may have perished in the blaze.

Uhlman said the indication of arson was based on "fires that began almost simultaneously in the hotel's two main stairways." He also said teams of fire department officials had been making night checks of hotels after "receiving infomation from federal sources .... that there was a developing pattern of fire in downtown hotels."

The mayor ordered an immediate investigation to determine what kinds of material were used "to set the fire."

There were 617 arson fires in Seattle last year, fire department officials said.

During today's fire some hotel occupants jumped from windows and others sat on ledges or hung out windows to escape the smoke and flames.

A newspaper man on the scene said a woman crawling across a ledge toward a fire escape slipped and fell to her death.

DESPITE UNEMPLOYMENT—RASMINSKY

'Inflation Fight Must Continue'

OTTAWA (CP) — Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, says Canada should persist with tough credit and spending restraints, despite difficulties such as rising unemployment and regional recessions.

Inflation remains "the foremost economic problem of the country as a whole," the head of the central bank said in his annual report to the government, published Thursday.

Although there has been an encouraging change in the economic climate after more than a year of stringent restrictions on credit and government spending, Rasminsky added: "Policy will not achieve its objective if it is abandoned at the first sign of success, namely as soon as the growth of the economy shows signs of deceleration. . . .

"We have no choice but to continue the effort in spite of all the difficulties involved."

The report, which covers the year 1969 but includes comment on developments early this year, is dated Feb. 28. Its publication Thursday coincided with a report of increased Canadian unemployment in February and indications that United States authorities might be relaxing tight-money restraints on credit.

REBUTS ARGUMENT

Attacking suggestions that advocates of continued austerity do not care about people put out of work, Rasminsky said:

"There is not, as sometimes alleged, one group who care about people and their employment and another group who care only about price stability. This is a false antithesis.

"Everyone wants to achieve increases in output, employment and standards of living that are as great as can be managed."

REFLECTIONS

Differences of opinion are largely reflections of different outlooks about timing, he said.

"Some concentrate their attention on the short-run costs of anti-inflationary policies.

"On the other hand, those who stress as I do the importance of price stability believe that we shall have a better chance of maintaining a high rate of growth of employment in the future if care is taken to preserve the purchasing power of money.

PRICES WILL RISE

Tracing efforts to slow down inflation by restricting the supply of money available for spending, Rasminsky said growth of total spending in Canada has slowed down but prices will continue to rise for a while.

Although industrial countries generally have been experiencing inflation, Canada had special problems.

One is proximity to the United States, the major trading partner, where consumer prices increased more rapidly last year than in Canada.

Another result of living next door to the United States is that Canadians base aims for income and living standards on the U.S. example, even though Canadian productivity is at least 20 per cent lower. "This fact sets a real limit on our current living standards which no amount of wishful thinking can remove."

Another Canadian problem in
